WHEN THE OWLS HOOTED IN THE JACKPINES AT SOUTH END

Writing from Ottawa, where he is manager of the Canadian Credit Men's Association, Mr. M. H. McKay (better known in early days in Porcupine as "Mac") says:—"I was glad to receive a copy of The Advance. It is the first that I have seen since 1913, but on reading it over I noticed that a considerable number of the old crowd are still on the job—Hugh Stevens, Jack Bacon, Micky Adams, Doc McInnis, and others. I understand that Timmins is quite a city now. Some changes since the day I went out there in November, 1911, with a suitcase full of cash and books to open the first bank (Imperial). I was doing business there before the doors or windows were on the building, my clientele consisting principally of Charlie Pieree, a bunch of blind-piggers, and a wild-eyed crowd of miners from the Hollinger. The owls used to keep me awake at night—hooting from the jackpines behind the Bank. I was glad to see the Sault win the Allan Cup. They played a couple of games in Ottawa, and looked pretty good."

Now, honest, Mac, was it the owls that kept you awake? Of course, there were a lot of owls those days. Owls and Night Hawks. The Night Hawks were so wild that they did wake up people, screaming and smashing into closed doors and whistling and everything about three or four in the morning. There were many cheerful birds in the Porcupine in the early days,—and "early days" is right in more ways than one.

THE CANNY STORY OF A CLANNISH MAN AND SON

A reader of The Advance contributes the following for the amusement of other readers. In view of what happened in the story itself, it might be well not to attempt to figure it out, but just take it "as she looks." (The item is from an Eastern newspaper, and has gone the rounds of the press on several occasions:—

A man was visiting a lunatic asylum and while walking in the grounds he met a patient, to whom he said:

"Well, how did you get here?"

The man replied:

"Well, sir, you see, I married a widow with a grown-up daughter and then my father married my wife's daughter, and that made my wife the mother-in-law of her father-in-law, and my father became my stepson. Then my stepmother, the daughter of my wife, had a son and that boy, of course, was my brother, because he was my father's son; but he was also the son of my wife's stepdaughter and therefore her grandson and that made me grandfather of my stepbrother. Then my wife had a son so my mother-in-law, the step-sister of my son is also his grandmother, because he is her stepson's child; my father is the brother-in-law of my child, because his step sister is his wife; I am the brother of my own son, who is also the son of my step-grandmother; I am my mother's brother-in-law; my wife is her own child's aunt; my son is my father's nephew, and I am my own grandfather."

Among the specials coming to the New Empire Theatre in the near future are:—"The Spoilers," April 11th and 12th; and "The Prodigal Son," April 18th and 19th; also, Marion Davies, in "Little Old New York," on April 25th and 26th.
