THE SETTLERS SHOULD BE PROTECTED IN ANY EMBARGO.

In his address of welcome to the visiting members of the Toronto Board of Trade yesterday, Mr. F. M. Wallingford, President of Timmins Board of Trade, made timely reference to the propaganda now being carried on with the view to having an embargo placed on the shipment of all pulpwood from Canada. Mr. Wallingford's idea was to secure the sympathy and support of the Toronto Board of Trade in efforts being made to protect the interests of the settlers in case a complete embargo on pulpwood is instituted.

One of the chief difficulties in countering the propaganda for an embargo is the fact that many who earnestly advocate the embargo are doing so because they do not understand certain salient facts in the case. Many are being metaphorically swept from their feet by statements such as those to the effect that an embargo would mean the erection of a number of new pulp mills in Canada, with consequent increased employment and other advantages. It is argued that the United States pulp industries simply have to have Canadian pulpwood, and if an embargo is placed upon the pulpwood the United States mills will have to build branch mills here. This appears to be a plausible theory. As a matter of fact, however, the United States is by no means entirely dependent upon Canada for a supply of pulpwood. Indeed, during the past year or more the Scandinavian countries have been supplying pulp to the United States at a price that has stopped much of the purchase of pulpwood from this section of the country.

Another fact that has been side-tracked is the fact that United States buyers have had long freight hauls to pay for on pulpwood and yet have paid better prices on pulpwood generally than obtainable from mills established on this side of the line. The settlers have depended upon the competition from the United States to keep the price of pulpwood at a living level. It is easy to understand that the settlers are not anxious to have the United States competition removed by an embargo. The settlers are by no means sure that an embargo would mean more mills in Canada. With thoughts of the Mattagami Pulp and Paper Co., in mind, and with the knowledge that there have been perhaps a dozen other similar failures among pulp and paper companies in the past year or two in Canada, with the settlers being heavy losers in each case, it is not to be wondered at that even the promise of new mills in Canada does not rouse overwhelming enthusiasm.

Still another fact that should have prominent attention is this: that, if settlement is to proceed, the pulpwood on homesteads must be cut and must be sold. It is not a question of conservation. It is a question of a good market for a product that must either be sold or be allowed to rot and waste. So far as the wood from settlers' lands is concerned the embargo could not save a stick of it. Either the pulpwood would not be cut, and so settlement could not proceed, or being cut it would have to be used or wasted. With the advantage of the additional freights to the United States, it would appear that the Canadian mills would be able to compete with the U.S. mills provided they are ready to pay anything like a fair price.

It cannot be too often emphasized that Ontario already has an embargo on pulpwood. This embargo applies to all pulpwood cut on crown lands. Anything further in the way of an embargo is bound to affect the settlers adversely. If for the sake of fine-spun theories an embargo is insisted upon then exception should be made in the case of wood from the lands of settlers. With such an exception, there would be little objection to an embargo of any kind. It is an odd fact, however, that the present Ontario embargo on pulpwood receives little, if any mention. The idea seems to be to stampee opinion to theories and propaganda and by emphasizing conditions in Quebec, for instance, leaving the impression that Ontario's conditions are similar.

Failure to grasp the essential facts of the case, together with a decided lack of knowledge of conditions and circumstances are features of the campaign now under way to force an embargo on pulpwood. Certain interests at the present time are paying for large spaces in the advertising columns of the daily newspapers and magazines to turn public opinion to favouring a complete embargo. Money to spread the propaganda is being spent freely. Unfortunately the settlers are not able to counteract this paid propaganda by advertisements giving their side of the case. The paid propaganda of the interests concerned in forcing the embargo shows the lack of knowledge referred to in the opening of this paragraph. The paid advertisements all bear a large sketch of a "pulpwood special" bearing Canada's pulp to the United States market, according to the imagination of the artist. Never was there such a type of pulpwood special; never cars of this kind used for such a purpose; and the way the artist has pictured the pulpwood as being thrown in the big open-top box cars, just like mill waste is dumped into wagons for removal shows how pitifully meagre is the knowledge of the propagandists. Before attempting to teach anyone anything about pulpwood, its transportation, its markets, or its possibilities, there should be at least a little knowledge on the part of the would-be teacher. But it is to be feared that many loudly advocating an embargo on pulpwood are so little informed on the facts of the case as to be ready to accept any glittering generality and to allow themselves to be hurried into action without suspicion of the results or the reasons for the propaganda.

If any further embargo is forced in regard to pulpwood, there should be provision to protect the rights of the settlers. That is not too much to ask, nor too little. If the settlers are protected, there are enough organizations and combinations to look after any other interests there may be.

DOLLAR DAY HEREABOUTS FOR PENS AND PENCILS.

While travelling on the T. & N. O. this week the traveller for a Toronto stationery supply house lost his grip on the train. He suspected that someone had taken it off the train, perhaps, by mistake. However, he got wind of the way in which he lost his grip and contents, the latter including many valuable fountain pens and eversharp pencils. Apparently, a man living at Barber's Bay had taken the bag off around Connaught. He then went around selling the articles in the sample case for whatever might be secured. He sold a number of fountain pens and silver pencils at one dollar each. Chief Greer and Deputy Chief M. Salley taking up the case in the absence of a Provincial Official, soon traced the person taking away the sample case from the train. Then it was found that this same man—a settler living at Barber's Bay—had sold pens and pencils at $1.00 to people in Connaught. Search of his premises resulted in the discovery of a quantity of the stolen goods. The accused was brought to South Porcupine last night by Constable Kenny, who had just returned from a trip south. The accused will be given a hearing to-morrow before Magistrate Atkinson.

A high building was being erected in Dublin when a workman lost his footing and fell from the roof. In his fall he managed to grasp a telegraph wire, which still left him at a perilous height from the ground.

"Hang on for your life!" shouted his fellow-workmen, and some of them ran to procure a mattress on which he could drop.

He held on for a few seconds only, and then shouted: "Stand from under!" and dropped.

He was picked up senseless and taken to the hospital. On his recovery he was asked why he did not hang on longer.

"Shur," he said, "I was afraid the wire would break."
