THE T. & N. O. SHOULD COPY THE C. N. R. IN THIS MATTER.

Canadian Government Railway trains in the North Land favour the prospector. They allow him considerable latitude in the way of excess baggage if he travels on the Canadian National with his equipment and supplies when on the way to his claims or to new fields. The T. & N. O. Railway is not showing the same consideration for the prospector. The T. & N. O. makes the prospector send his supplies and extras by express—a costly proceeding. The T. & N. O. is supposed to be a colonizing factor, and should be ready to give special consideration to the men who are truly helping to make this country. Yet the commercial traveller gets special privileges and special rates, while the prospector (without whom the North would not be what it is to-day) has no preferences or assistance. In the long run it would pay the country and pay the railway to transport the prospector, bag and baggage, free. Because he is a generous fellow, the prospector has not thought of asking anything like this. But it certainly is not too much to suggest that while on his prospecting trips the prospector at least be given special rates and special privileges in the way of transportation of supplies and equipment. The prospector travels on business of very vital importance to the development of the country and it would be only good business to assist him in every reasonable way.
