Chocolates

"The Chocolates That Are Different"

One never knows how deeply Mothers appreciate the thoughtfulness of their loved ones.

Often a simple gift, with love, is more appreciated than something far more elaborate which is offered perfunctorily. It isn't what you give with her, so much as how you give.

So, for Mother, on her day of days, send Neilson's Chocolates.

DO NOT TRADE GOOD STOCK FOR DOUBTFUL ISSUES

High Pressure Salesmen Still at Their Wrong Games

In recent issues of The Advance mention has been made of the trick employed by some "high pressure" salesmen of attempting to induce people to trade well-known stocks for new issues that, to put it very mildly are of doubtful value. This question is dealt with in a special letter sent out by the Bank of Commerce. The Bank of Commerce letter quotes from a similar letter sent out by the Financial Service, Limited, Montreal, as follows:—

"One of the chief financial misuses of the day in Montreal and vicinity (and the same applies to Timmins) is the group of stock salesmen who pester shareholders of one company to switch into another stock, very frequently of doubtful value and sometimes worthless stuff. People who have sound listed securities are the ones mostly approached, owing to the readiness with which these can be turned into cash and the proceeds applied to the purchase of the offering they are making.

"Women shareholders are considered easy marks for these shark individuals and it would be well for them to consult their husbands before taking any action, or in the cases of spinsters and widows, their bankers, or some reliable, well-informed financial friend who is willing to give them conservative advice.

"Many of these salesmen, some of whom are known as "high pressure" artists in their line, were driven out of the U.S. by vigorous prosecutions for crooked dealings, and are following their customary tactics in Canada, some of them having headquarters here.

"One scheme which has been effective has been to approach small tradesmen and advise the purchase of some well-known local stock which enjoys an excellent reputation. The stock is supposed to be bought on the instalment plan, but the order is likely bucketed and the part payments put in their own pockets. Having established what seems to be a sound reputation for conservative dealings in the eyes of their inexperienced clients, a switch to some other offering is soon suggested. Sometimes, these are worthless if they are delivered, but delivery is generally delayed for a time on one pretext or another. In the long run, the client loses everything.

"This emphasizes the necessity of the public being extremely careful about dealings with strangers who adopt such methods. A great deal of money would be saved if old-established houses dealing in securities were consulted before undertaking commitments or exchanges."
