MINES HERE ATTRACTING ATTENTION IN BRITAIN

In a recent interview in Toronto, Mr. E. R. Peacock, a prominent British financier, and former director of the Bank of England, spoke of the improved position and outlook in Britain now in regard to the Canadian Mining Industry. Mr. Peacock is quoted as saying:—

"My friends in England often talk about this or that proposition where they have lost money in Canada. And I ask them who put them in the proposition and I usually find that it was some English promoter. There have been some Canadian mining scandals in London recently and I understand that in each case the promoters were Britishers. Yet it is Canada that the investors blame and not with justification."

"Canadian mines are attracting attention from serious British mining operators. There is going to be a great deal of British money put in Canadian mines; it is coming out today."
