GOLF SWINGS

By the Brothers, Frank Thompson, present Canadian Amateur champion, and W. J. Thompson, Ontario Amateur champion and last year's champion of Canada. They are native-born and resident Canadians, members of a family of five famous golfing brothers.

NUMBER EIGHT

Remember flexibility is a great asset in any game and any tendency towards rigidity in golf is to be studiously avoided, and the tendency is always to stiffen the muscles. Even in exercises such as chopping and pile driving, where great physical force is required flexibility of grip is apparent.

There is no uniform position for the right hand similar to that of the left. Good players have the back of the right hand facing the ground while others have it facing the sky. Perhaps midway, or the natural position of the hand, would be the best theoretical position. When the arms are allowed to hang passively and naturally at the side it will be noticed that one or two knuckles of each hand may be seen. There are, perhaps, more good players using this method of grip than all others, and theoretically it seems to be the best, but each player must decide for himself. The thing of importance is to likewise place the right hand so that the greatest control over the club will result.

Some golfers worry over the fact that their grip seems to give a little at the top of the back swing. This has been a point of more or less controversy. When one remembers that there is a great deal of strain at this point of the swing, it is not surprising to find that there is more or less give could prevent it, but the attempt might take from the swing some of its flexibility and unless the give becomes so with most golfers. One, I suppose, great as to destroy control one had better forget about it.

W. J. THOMPSON
Ontario Amateur Golf Champion and last year's Canadian Champion.

The golfer should feel the club head as if it were a stone on the end of a string. To do this it will be necessary to keep the hands as close together as possible, and, in the making of the swing, sling the club head through with both hands. Some claim that the upswing is made with the lift arm and the down with the right arm. From analysis it may be possible to say that at certain points one hand is doing more work than the other, but this is quite different to stating that the other is passive and not doing as much as it can. The hands must work together and the idea of one being active while the other is passive or still worse, inhibited, prevents unity of effort. The question should not arise in practical golf any more than it should in batting at baseball, and what batter would think of taking the bat back only with the left hand and striking it with the right.

Both hands work to their limit or should do. In the back swing both hands pull the club back and are busily engaged steadying the club and keeping it in the proper path, and on the down swing both hands are forcing the club head through the ball. Each hand is doing the utmost work of which it is capable. The stars of the game do not bother themselves with such matters while making their shots, notwithstanding what they preach. If they did their games would not be so effective. —Copyrighted.

TRANSFERRING THE POWER TRANSMISSION LINES

The Cochrane North Land Post last week says:—

"It is reported that Lang & Ross who put up the transmission line from Island Falls to Timmins are given the contract to put up the line from Hunt to Stinson, and are now busy in dismantling the line from Hunt to Timmins, which material will be used for the new transmission line. They are going to make their headquarters in Cochrane and have arranged to occupy the buildings and warehouse formerly occupied by Grant Smith & Co. & McDonnell Limited."

CHICKEN WITH FOUR LEGS BORN NEAR NEW LISKEARD.

Recently a freak in the chicken line was born near New Liskeard, on the farm of Mr. T. Jones, R.R. No. 1. The freak is a four-legged chicken. The chicken appears to be a perfectly normal bird, apart from its extra legs and feet. The legs are without the usual joints and this makes the bird a little clumsy in its walk, but with four legs to hop around upon the freak chicken manages to get around quite lively and pick up a good living, as The Speaker phrases it.

P.S.—New Liskeard has a number of two-legged chickens who are neither freaks nor frights. Quite the contrary! They are birds!

Good deeds ring clear through heaven like a bell. —Dickens.
