NEW WORLD MAY REDRESS
THE BALANCE OF THE OLD.

Recently ten British journalists made a tour of Canada, and since their return to the Old Land they have been writing and speaking of the special impressions made upon them by the visit. A review of these impressions will be found elsewhere in this issue. It is worth of special note that practically every British Press representative who visited here was impressed with the fact that Canada's great needs may be summed up in the two words, "Money" and "Men." Capital is needed to develop the undoubted resources of this Dominion, and men are required in the employment of the capital and to settle the wide spaces of the country. With increased population and the development of the natural resources of the Dominion practically all of the pressing problems of Canada would be solved automatically. A developed country would mean a greater spread of the present burdensome taxation. It would mean new business to maintain railway facilities too expanded for present day requirements. It would mean progress and prosperity for Canada. All this the British Press men seem to see quite clearly. Some of the British journalists are also convinced that Britain may assist in the solving of Canada's problems and at the same time overcome some of the handicaps now endured by the Old Land itself. "I found conclusive proof that once again the new world has the power to redress the balance of the old," says Mr. Hugh Martin, of The London Daily News. Mr. John A. Buist, of The Glasgow Herald boldly advocates financial assistance to Scottish immigrants to Canada, and urges close co-operation between the Dominion and British Governments to this end. Britain's surplus of population and Canada's need of population appear to suggest the way to solve the vital problems of this land and the homeland. Some weeks ago Mr. Corliss, of Sudbury, advanced a plan that was worthy of far greater consideration than it has received to date. He suggested that the British and Dominion Governments should co-operate, combining the immigration expense money of Canada and a material part of the vast sum expended in Britain for unemployment insurance. With these combined resources, suitable immigrants should be brought to Canada from Britain and financed until they were able to care for themselves. The plan would cost both countries no more than the present unsatisfactory efforts to solve the problems of the day. Such a plan could be made to work to the great advantage of both lands. Britain would receive some relief from one of its pressing problems, and this British country of Canada would be developed by British men and British money.

It is to be hoped that the British journalists, representing as they do, immense circulations and unusual influence in the Old Land, will consider and discuss this plan in Britain, and that Canadian newspapers, after the excitement of the election is over, will find time to deal at length with a question that is of vital importance to this Canada of ours.

CLAREMONT FOOTBALL BOYS PLEASED WITH USAGE HERE

Last night Mr. W. A. Field received a letter from Mr. M. E. Morgan, Secretary of the Claremont Football Team, expressing the sincere appreciation of the visiting players for the fine treatment accorded them in Timmings last week when they were here to play in the semi-final of the Ontario Cup. The letter states that the Claremont boys will all be at Toronto for the final match to cheer the Timmings team and to see them win the Ontario Cup. Had the weather been warmer, Mr. Morgan says, the Claremont boys would have put up a better game. This is no doubt true, but at the same time it may be said that Claremont has no need to apologize for its team. The Claremont boys showed very decided football talent and put up a steady and gallant game. Mr. Morgan, however, thinks the cold weather was particularly hard on the Claremont boys. He says that a majority of the team are now somewhat crippled up as a result of the exposure at Saturday's match. However, on their return to Claremont this week has no snow and much ground and the weather cold like Timmings on Saturday. And Timmings this week has now snow and much warmer weather. It is a fact, though that all the Ontario Cup matches

Popular Errors About the Forests

THAT THINGS WILL RIGHT THEMSELVES

"Muddling Through" is the unofficial motto of the British Empire. "Dien et mon Droit" may go down before Socialist attack and "Honi soit qui mal y pense" fall out of modern fashion, but "Muddling Through" will surely remain dear to the hearts of all our race. This national vice has reached the point at which, being admittedly impossible to excuse, it has to be made the object of sentimental pride. In spite of unpreparedness, we say, we have always won; and we take a special credit for doing so, and for beating the silly devils of foreigners who had schemed and prepared in vain. This is nothing, of course, but an idle and senseless boast; we forget conveniently the times when we did not win, as when we muddled away the loyalty of the American colonies, or the life of Gordon at Khartoum, and equally we glaze over the fearful cost at which our muddled victories have been purchased.

Muddling the Forests.

Just as in the case of wars and policies in the past, so we in Canada are now muddling about in the toilsome question of the forests. We know, or some of us know, that all is not well with them, and some are even aware of the seriousness of the situation and the importance of the issues involved. Those who have read the earlier articles of this series may have gathered an idea of some at least of the abuses of our lack of system and the kind of reforms that are required to put them right. But such knowledge will be absolutely wasted if its possessors allow themselves to give way to futile British optimism and to suppose that we can in this case "muddle through" to a safe and satisfactory conclusion of our troubles.

Muddling through can only succeed by luck as when chance mistakes or failures upset the calculations of the careful enemy. But in the fight over the forest questions our opponent is Nature, which does not change her laws and cannot make mistakes. We cannot think that fire will cease to burn, that caterpillars will cease to breed, or that tree-growth will suddenly double its speed to suit our convenience; if these things were possible luck might again bring us a costly victory and we might hope to continue in our present waste and thoughtlessness and yet not pay the penalty. But "God is not mocked"; and there is no such hope for use and it is we ourselves who must change if we wish to preserve the wealth and prosperity which the forests give us. We Must Change Attitude. And we must change soon. Muddled-through wars are always long and bloody, and look like defeats until the enemy makes the convenient mistake which turns defeat to victory. And in victory we may forget the price that has been paid. But in the present case the cost is always mounting up and there is no hope of luck coming to our help; consequently the price will have to be paid sooner or later, and our only expedient is to pay it as soon as possible and so prevent it from mounting to still more onerous proportions. We must face the question of our forests now, while they can still be saved and are still worth saving. We must face the question of fire, the question of permanent forest reserves and their relation to settlement, the question of silviculture and skilled management and all the other questions which must be answered before these great natural resources can be put upon the sound and stable basis that is necessary for national economic welfare. Above all things, we must face these things ourselves and not leave it to our Leaders in Parliament, or to our neighbours or to newspaper men or societies or public-spirited persons. We must ourselves possess a sound and informed opinion; then there will be the 'public' opinion which is necessary for all big movements. We must ourselves put pressure on our members, for only then will these matters receive in the legislatures the treatment that they deserve. Everybody's business is nobody's business, and as long as the forests remain vaguely everybody else's business nothing will be done about them at all. To save our forest wealth every individual citizen must himself be active in his own sphere; if he does no more than ask questions, inform himself, and create an interest he will have done something at any rate for the cause. Let our motto be, not "Muddling Through," but "Heaven helps them who help themselves."

should be finished earlier, so that weather too cold for comfort might be avoided, both for the sake of the players and the gates. Dorothy: "Before we were married, you called me angel. Now you don't call me anything." Jin: "That's because I try to remember I am a gentlemen."

MAN HURT IN EXCAVATION WORK ON SATURDAY LAST.

John Grendola was injured on Saturday last by a fall of earth in a trench while at work for the McNamara Construction Co. He was crushed about the body but fortunately is not seriously injured. He was taken at once to the Cairns Hospital, Cedar Street, where he is making good progress to recovery.
