Cars and Teams Asked to Make Way for Dog Racers on Course

Public Requested to Assist Particularly on the Day of the Race, so as Not to Interfere With the Chances of Any of the Dog Team Drivers in Any of the Race Events Here.

At the meeting of the Dog Race Committee on Monday emphasis was given to the fact that the general public, and especially those driving teams and cars, had to assist by allowing the dog teams on the course to pass without interference or delay. This will not be a serious matter to car drivers or to drivers of teams, and it will mean much to the dog racers. If drivers generally will see that the dog racers have a fair show, it will help on matters considerably. In other years the public generally have been very good and have shown the real sportsmanlike spirit in this matter. It is to be hoped that the cars and teams will again assist this year by turning out on the course so as to allow the dog racers to get by without difficulty. The boys' race this year is to be longer than in previous years and Third Avenue will be used for the last lap of the race. It is to be hoped that car drivers and drivers of teams will co-operate to make it as easy for the young dog racers as possible. It is felt that the people of Timmins and district are such good sports that all that is necessary is to call their attention to the matter, and every help will be given to see that all the racers in all the races have a fair square show.

CORRESPONDENTS MUST SUBMIT THEIR NAMES

Last week The Advance received a letter headed "The Facts About Cornwall," in answer to a previous communication sent to this office and published in The Advance. The letter last week was simply signed "One and All," and there was no card or name enclosed. As a consequence the letter could not be published. In common with all reputable newspapers, The Advance follows the rule that no anonymous communication is published. The writer must submit his name as an evidence of good faith. The Advance would prefer that writers come out boldly and attach their names to letters written for the newspapers. Usually there is no reason why they should not do so. Some newspapers indeed, insist on the rule that only letters actually signed with the name of the writer are accepted for publication. There are occasions when for one reason or another a writer can not sign his letter for publication, and recognizing this The Advance does not demand the real name of the writer to be attached to every published letter. This paper does, however, insist that each writer submit his or her name as an evidence of good faith and so that The Advance may know the source of the communication. The name need not be published, if requested otherwise, but the real name must accompany the communication. No reputable newspaper will accept any anonymous letter for publication. On several recent occasions The Advance has pointed out these facts. Whether The Advance agrees or disagrees with the communication, no letter will be published when the origin is not known. If you wish to have something published in The Advance send your name along. If you do not wish your name printed, simply say so; The Advance will respect the confidence.
