ALL SHOULD WORK FOR INTERESTS OF THE TOWN.

The result of the municipal elections on Friday last came as a decided surprise to most people who have been following municipal affairs closely. Those who pretend that there has been a great upheaval in public opinion in regard to a change in the management of town affairs are speaking in disregard of the facts. The closeness of the vote disproves any such theory. The small majority in an unusually large vote shows that opinion is divided in the matter. There is reason to believe that clever organization on the one hand and lack of concerted effort on the other hand contributed chiefly to the result. Of course, the great personal popularity and general esteem enjoyed by men like Dr. Brennan and Dr. Joyal also had undoubted effect on public opinion. In any event there appears to be a good Council for 1926, and if the work is carried on amicably and without prejudice, the 1926 Council will prove as good a council as its predecessors. It is unfortunate that the town is split into two factions of about equal strength. If the Council carries on with a similar division, the result can not be satisfactory to the town. Business carried on in effect by the casting vote of the Mayor would not be representative government, but rather, one man rule. It is to be hoped that the 1926 Council will be able to avoid any such undesirable general situation, and that the work may be carried on for the best interests of the town.

Apart from serious objection to some of the campaign literature and canvassing arguments, there were reports after the election of illegality, it being charged that canvassers were unlawfully hired, canvassing carried on in the immediate vicinity of the polling booths, and cards bearing names of certain candidates improperly distributed on polling day, but to avoid the loss and cost of further election proceedings these matters were not followed up. It was recognized that the chief reason for the success of certain candidates was the superior organization and the personal popularity of some of the candidates. Accordingly the tendency was to follow the advice of a former town councillor of Timmins and "let her go as she looks." There may be matters of which the law must take cognizance, but so far as protests are concerned it appears that the town has had enough, and what is needed now is a return to harmonious work for the town. The town's business must be carried on, and the town's interest should be held supreme by all.

DEVELOPMENTS IN ROUYN
 GOLD AREA OF QUEBEC

Dominion Geological Survey Issues Statement on New Gold Field. in Quebec

The following statement was issued last week by the Dominion Geological Survey in regard to Rouyn:—
 The year 1925 has seen an astonishingly rapid development of mining in Quebec. The discoveries of previous years have, according to Dr. H. C. Cooke of the Geological Survey of Canada, been developed and tested more or less thoroughly, and though many have fallen by the wayside others have proved of unsuspected value. To this apparently sudden development many factors have contributed, chief of which is the improvement that has been made in transportation during the past two years. Roads have been cut to connect various parts of the area with the railroads to the north, south, east and west. Although these roads are as yet fit only for winter use, still a sufficiency of the heavier supplies can be brought in at this season to carry on work during the entire year. In addition more efficient motor boat and aeroplane services have been established, whereby the necessary supplies of more perishable goods and of men can be rapidly brought in to almost any part. Still further improvement in this regard will take place in the near future, as a railway is now under construction from O'Brien station on the Canadian National railway into Rouyn township.

The most spectacular development of the past year is the manner in which copper has taken the centre of the stage. Although the search for gold is still prosecuted as vigorously as ever, and by no means without favourable results, the copper discoveries have been so imposing that public attention has focussed on them almost to the exclusion of the other. This was not so evident a year ago, as the first copper deposits found, on the Horne claims, contain enough gold to be ores even without the copper values; in the later discoveries, however, the amount of gold is small and copper the main constituent of value.

On the Horne property a force of about a hundred men has been employed and work has proceeded rapidly. The property has been entirely cleared of bush, and suitable mine buildings erected. Plans for the erection of the first 500-ton unit of a smelter are well under way, and construction will begin as soon as the railway now building can bring in the necessary materials. Two shafts about a thousand feet apart have been put down, the deepest 328 feet, and the lateral working have blocked out bodies of ore valued according to the company's statements at more than twenty million dollars.

About seven miles northwest of the Horne is the Waite-Montgomery, another property that seems likely to be of great value. The ore body was discovered in the spring of 1925, and during the summer was exploited by surface trenching only. Drilling was commenced at the beginning of winter, but the results have not yet been made public. The ore is a solid mass of mixed sulphides of copper, iron and zinc, and average 17 per cent. copper at the surface. It forms a flat sheet of thickness yet unknown.

The Amulet claims lie about two miles south of the Waite-Montgomery. A number of small bodies of copper ore have already been found on it, and the chances are that a discovery of importance may yet be made. A number of other discoveries of copper have also been reported since the writer's visit to the district in September, but no definite information as to their value is available.

The gold situation is of less outstanding promise. Although numerous discoveries were reported in 1923 and 1924, most of them on investigation have proved to be too small, too spotty or too low in grade to be mined at a profit. The gold veins are of two general types: quartz veins carrying free gold, and replacement veins in which the country rock has been replaced by quartz, calcite, and auriferous sulphides. Although the quartz vein type has yielded many spectacular samples and discoveries, it has so far failed to produce any deposits of real value, with the one possible exception of the veins on the property of the Malartic Mining Company in Fourniere township. These veins have stood up under surface examination, and are now being drilled by the Porcupine Goldfields and Development Company. The replacement type of vein is found much more rarely, but when found is in general more likely to form a deposit of importance. Among those that have stood up under surface examination and are now being more fully investigated are deposits on the F. S. Arntfield claims in Boischatel township and on the claims of the Malartic Mining Company previously mentioned; on the Francoeur claim in Boischatel township, and on the property of the Huronian Belt Mining Company in Rouyn township.
