EDUCATION HAS HIGH PLACE IN THE DOMINION

High Ratio of Literary Ability in Canada. Despite Large Proportion of Foreign Immigration

A town like Timmins that has invested over a million dollars in school buildings, is naturally greatly interested in education. Accordingly, the following will be especially timely in this year of the diamond jubilee of the confederation of Canada:—

Canada had in 1925, the latest year for which statistics are available, 2,228,869 persons, or one-fourth of its population, at school. In the year 1867 it had 718,000 persons at school. The nine Canadian provinces have therefore to look after the educational needs of three times as many people as when Canada came into being.

Educational activities in 1867 were confined to that portion of Canada lying east of Lake Superior, and in that portion of the Dominion the school attendance has increased marvellously, except in Prince Edward Island, where there has been a decline along with the decreasing population of that province. But west of the Great Lakes migrating populations have had to create educational facilities to keep pace with their rapid growth. The advance in civilization in Western Canada is given sketchily by the following statistics of school attendance in the years named: Manitoba, 1871, 817; and in 1925, 145,834; Saskatchewan and Alberta combined in 1886, 2,553, while in 1925 the attendance for Saskatchewan alone was 206,595 and for Alberta 147,796; British Columbia, 1886, 401, and in 1925, 97,954.

During this whole period by the aid of compulsory education laws in all but one province and free schooling the length of time spent by individual students in gaining tuition has been steadily on the increase. There has been a decided decrease in illiteracy even though since 1900, the difficulties in dealing the death blow to illiteracy have been vastly increased by the addition to the population of hundreds of thousands of illiterates from Europe.

In 1921 Canadians of ages from 10 to 14 had two per cent of illiterates, from 15 to 20 there were 2.8 per cent of illiterates, from 21 to 34 there were 3.9 per cent of illiterates, from 35 to 64 years there were 6.5 per cent of illiterates; and at ages not given there were 24.3 per cent of illiterates. The average for all ages showed 5.1 per cent of the population over 10 years of age unable to read or write while back in 1891 the average illiteracy was 13.8 per cent exclusive of Indians who are included in the 1921 figures. The progress has therefore been amazing in the last forty years, and the percentage figures would be much more favourable if the situation among foreign-born Canadians were eliminated. But even with the foreign-born population the progress is very encouraging. Though the percentage of illiteracy is 18.8 per cent among the foreign-born 21 years and over it is only 5.7 per cent among the foreign-born from 10 to 20 years, 2.9 per cent among the native-born of foreign descent from 10 to 20 years and 3.9 per cent among the native-born of foreign descent 21 years and more of age. In most parts of Canada illiteracy is practically unknown. Not only that, but the quality of education is continually advancing in every province, due in great part to the higher salaries for teachers, the higher qualifications which teachers now have, and the greater regularity of attendance.

The 1925 school attendance was divided as follows: publicly controlled kindergarten elementary and secondary schools, 1,965,832; private schools of the same kind, 72,104, Indian schools, 14,222; schools for the deaf and blind, 1,561; agricultural, technical and night schools or courses under college grade, 95,684; teacher training schools, 10,220; private business colleges, 16,046; preparatory courses, 4,995; short and special courses at universities (of which there are fourteen in Canada) and colleges, 11,941; Quebec classical colleges, 9,899; regular courses in other colleges, 8,531; regular courses in universities, 22,723. There are more than sixty thousand teachers in Canada ministering to these students in more than 40,000 class rooms. In 1925 the total cost for this was $121,034,234 for day schools alone, six-sevenths of the cost being met by taxpayers direct to school municipalities, and more than one-third being spent for salaries of teachers.

CANADIAN LEGION TO HOLD MEETING ON FRIDAY, JULY 15

The Timmins Branch of the Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., will hold its monthly meeting on Friday evening of this week, in the Town Hall, Timmins, at 8:00 p.m. sharp. All members are requested to be on hand and make a strong showing. There are several new members to be added to the roll, and all men who have seen service in His Majesty's Forces are welcome. The meeting will be of much interest to the members, as there is the possibility of a report from the committee in charge of securing permanent quarters for the branch. The matter of dues, also will be looked into and it would be well for all in arrears for this quarter to come prepared to pay the small amount which is due. Don't forget to-morrow evening (Friday), town hall, Timmins, at 8:00 p.m. sharp.

Wild Animals Friendly on Banff-Windermere Highway

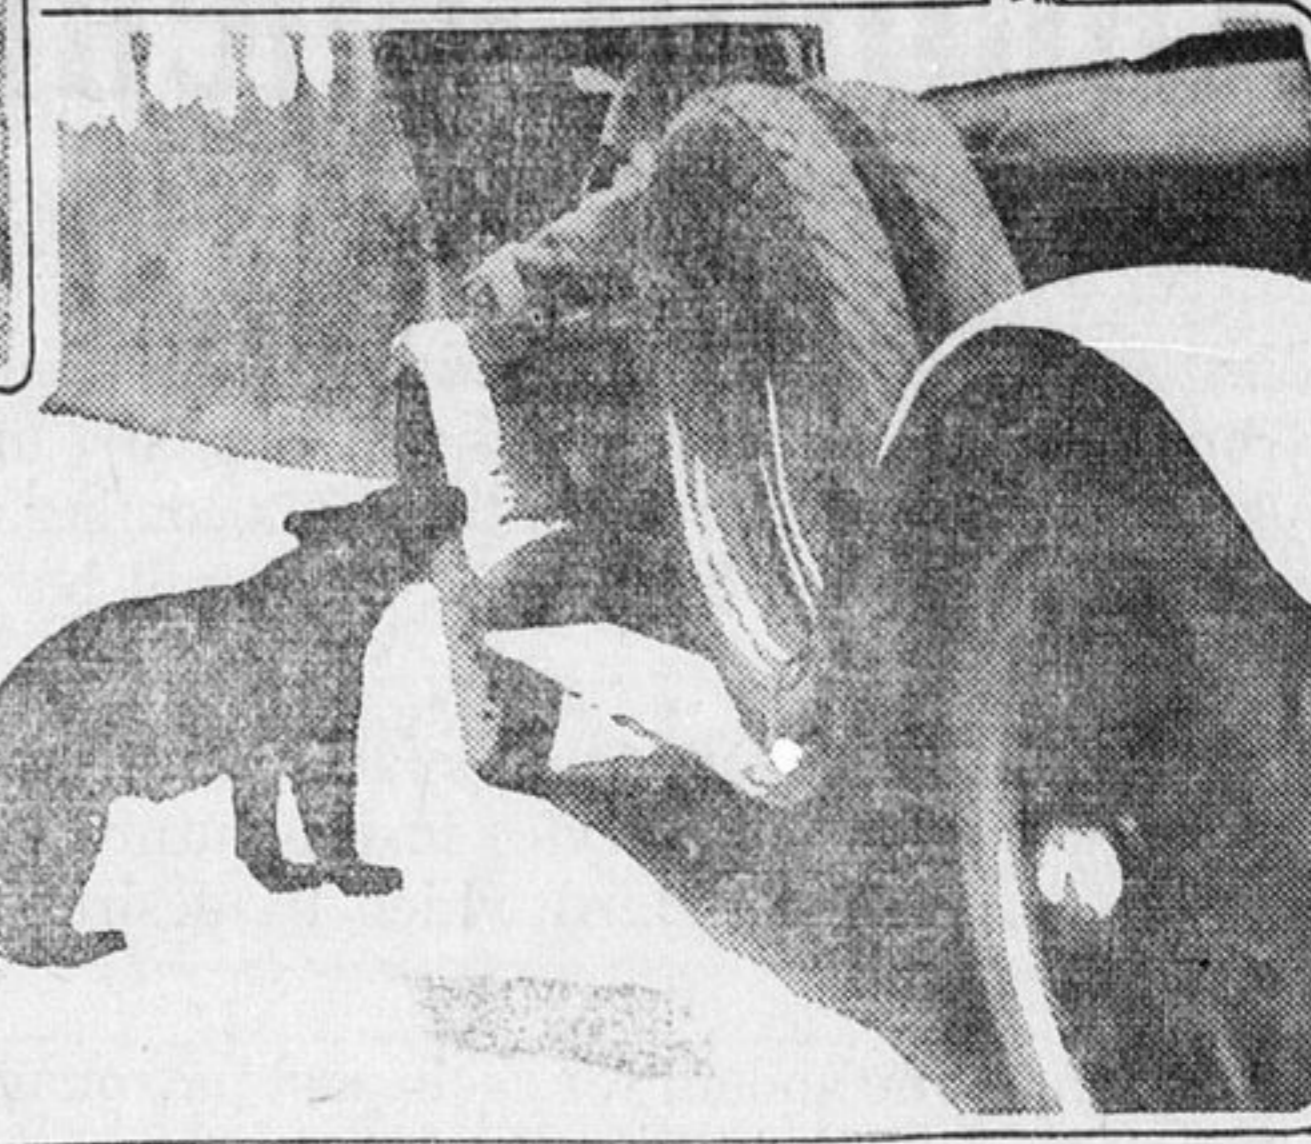

MAMMA BEAR AND KIDS, LAKE LOUISE

CINNAMON BEAR NEAR BANFF

BIGHORN SHEEP STOP CARS NEAR BANFF

BOZO BEAR TRAFFIC COP

"The Friendly Road," by David Grayson, which is well-known to many lovers of nature, depicts incidents and friendliness of people along country roads and in the rural districts. There is, however, a road in the Canadian Rockies the friendliness of which is not due to mortals as in Grayson's book, but to the friendliness of animals. Animals termed wild, but in this instance a word that cannot be applied to those on the Banff-Windermere Highway.

There is possibly no more beautiful road than this which runs from Banff to Lake Windermere, in the Columbia River Valley. The distance of 104 miles is spectacular and the scenes are constantly changing. The views from the high passes looking down into valleys, thousands of feet below, tiny lakes surrounded by alpine meadows, rivers crossed and recrossed, and glimpses of cascades tumbling down slopes from dizzy heights are intriguing and beautiful.

To this natural beauty is added that of seeing the animals in their natural haunts. Rocky Mountain sheep are seen on the road along Vermilion Lakes not far from Banff. They are so tame that often motorists have to slow down as they will persist, almost to the point of danger, in standing in the middle of the highway.

Bozo, a black bear, is a friend to many motorists on the Banff-Windermere road. He comes out on the highway as if he had sole right to it. He does not resent these invaders in the least and really wishes to show his friendliness. Sometimes he has lunched handed to him and the remarks of "nice old chap, fine old fellow," please him tremendously, and he will try to come even nearer. Bozo no doubt had many dreams during the winter of summer tourists, and possibly has figured out in true bear fashion just how to get the most out of the tourist season.

Deer are seen, also, on this famous highway, though not as often as other animals. They are regular visitors to Banff, and are frequently seen on the streets of the village. There are hundreds of miles of smooth motor roads through the Canadian Rockies, and devotees of the open road are visiting this region in increasing numbers annually.
