this means that five hundred children who would otherexaminations for entrance to High School, two of them with ment problems should be permitted here. honours. Reports from parents whose children are taking the courses is to the effect that so cleverly are the lessons carried along that the children do as well as they would at school. In some cases it is believed that the child's progress is much better than it would be at the nearest school available. In establishing the correspondence courses Premier Ferguson did a noteworthy service for the province and one that will have increasing results for good as the days go by.

There used to be a barber in the town of Perth, Ontario, who became more or less famous for the odd way in which he would twist words without consciously attempting to do so. On one occasion he told a merchant that he never bought anything for his home without first "insulting" his wife. Another time he boasted about being the first barber in the district to instal "indecent" electric lights. He also described his shop as being painted by himself with yellow "oakum," when "ochre" was no doubt what he had in mind and on the shop. A visitor to the Timmins fire hall some days ago would appear to be a lineal descendant of that oldtime Perth barber. He referred to a visit to the "supposal" plant, a trip to the "insinuator," and also to boating on the "Photogami" river. For a time he puzzled the firemen by repeated reference to "Pete Arizona," until one of the boys identified "Pete Arizona" as being no less a personage than Pete Bardessono himself.

At the stock exchange this week a well-known local gentleman when asked why the Wright-Hargreaves stock was so weak on the board, replied:-"Oh, I guess that must be because the Wright-Hargreaves baseball team was defeated by the McIntyres recently." Lesser causes appear to make stocks fluctuate on the board on occasion.

General reports would appear to indicate that the fish and game laws are being observed better in this immediate district than in some past years. Of course, there are breaches of the law occurring this year, but there is a decided improvement. Indeed, between the good work of the Rod and Gun Club and the game warden, Mr. Robt. Eddleston, there is a possibility that all fish and game may not be completely lost to the district in the course of a very few years. For some years past, through the flagrant violation of the rules and regulations made with the purpose of conserving fish and game, it did appear as if in a very short time the district would lose all the fish and game once here in such abundance. The fish and game laws are designed to conserve the fish and game and if they were fully observed this good purpose would be assured. Sportsmen and others should keep this thought in mind and remember always that to break the law is almost invariably to act in unsportsmanlike way. Mr. Eddleston is using good judgment in the enforcement of the law in the matter. He appears to be striving for public co-operation rather than to secure fines. If he can succeed in his missionary work it will advantage the country more than scores of police court cases. Of course, there will be some who will respond only to the force of the law and these delinquents will have to be treated accordingly. It is to the advantage of all to conserve the fish and game of the district. With all showing the proper spirit of good sportsmanship there will be enough fish and game in this country to continue it as a sportsman's paradise. A number of details will have to be observed. The good work of the Rod and Gun Club in stocking the waters with fish fry is of material advantage. The installation of fish ladders on the Mattagami river would help considerably also.

The remarkable growth of the Timmins High School is shown by the figures in the case. In 1923 the High School had 40 pupils enrolled. In 1928 the enrolment is 356. In 1923 the High School had four teachers, while to-day there are no less than sixteen on the staff. In 1923 the school opened in temporary quarters in King's hall. To-day the building of the Timmins High and Technical Schools is one of the large and imposing structures of which the town has much reason to be proud.

Perhaps the reason some of the city girls do not wear any hats is so that they may describe their costumes with the words, "and hat to match."

If the newspaper despatches from Calgary may be taken at their face value, there is a gentleman at present in that Western city who claims that he has the solution of the Ambrose Small mystery practically solved. This gentleman is described as an "internationally-known criminologist of Vienna," and his name is given as Dr. Maximillian A. Langsner. Ambrose Small was a millionaire theatre, owner in Toronto and he disappeared some eight years ago. Dr. Langsner says that Small was murdered and he can bring the guilty to justice. The Advance is doubtful as to whether too much reliance should be placed on the Calgary despatches. There appears the possibility that something may be other than it appears. The interview may not have occurred, or the celebrated criminologist may have been misguoted, or the criminologist may not be as celebrated as suggested, or there may not be a criminologist concerned at all. There are so many things that may be wrong in such a case. But if the facts are all as stated, and if this is Dr. Languser, and Dr. Langsner can do all they say he can do, then one of the greatest mysteries of modern times may be gleared up. To this end the authorities may be depended upon to give the fullest co-operation and support. They should be required, however, to go one step further, if Dr. produced.

Langsner can clear up the Ambrose Small mystery. The authorities should at once engage him, regardless of expense, to bring to justice the cowardly assassin of Inspector Constable at Cochrane in October, 1926. Inspector Constable did not gather wealth, but he gave loyal service to the country. He met his death because he did his duty. His murderer should be brought to justice.

Out of over 8000 British miners brought to Canada through the co-operation of the British and Canadian Govments and the railways and steamship lines, only about 600 have proved unsuitable for the work of assisting in the harvesting of the West great wheat crop this year. Fully ninety per cent. of the men brought out here have done well. The few who have had to be returned make a very small percentage of the grand total, and so the experiment may be considered a success to the present moment. It may also be noted that even less trouble would have been encountered had there not been some communist agitators along with the party to deliberately foment dissatisfaction. The meth-The correspondence courses, conducted by the Ontario ods said to be used in handling the few hundred men who Department of Education for the advantage of those pupils had to be returned have been rather strenuously criticized. in sparsely-settled areas who are not within reach of schools, It would appear that these unsuitable fellows expected to be are doing excellent work and filling a great need. The best they can do with that sensational story of attempted bribery is to complain that it can not be true because swimming must naturally be a clean sport. The Advance always understood that in these big swims the entries were "greased" before they entered, but it was never told before how much.

> John Catto, for sixty-five years a merchant in the city of Toronto, died last week in that city at the age of 95 years. The leading Toronto newspapers devoted columns to references to Mr. Catto's fine character and useful life and his attractive personality. The life he lived so long,honest, upright, industrious, genial-was a blessing in itself to the city he honoured by his residence. Both The Toronto Mail and Empire and The Globe published extended editorial articles on the value of Mr. Catto's citizenship and the benefit of his public spirit. He was honoured in death charge of conspiring to commit robas he had been in life, the newspapers publishing pictures bery and was sentenced to three years of the good man who had passed on and of scenes at his in Portsmouth Penitentiary. Investifuneral, in addition to the reviews of his life and work. The newspapers gave his death as great prominence and attention as is often given by lighter newspapers to others less deserving of the public notice. The Toronto newspapers by their attitude proved once more that good is just as truly news as evil or the foolishly sensational. The attendance at Mr. Catto's funeral and the interest taken by the public even in places far removed from Toronto and by people who positively identified Szymonski as the had no acquaintanceship with the late Mr. Catto also proved man responsible, it is alleged. that newspapers like The Mail and Empire and The Globe are closely in touch with public interests and public opinion and that the vast majority of the people in Canada after all still retain their interest in real men and real matters of importance.

> Montreal is having another investigation into the probity daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Mcor otherwise of the police force of that city. One charge made now is that over $50,000.00 was paid by one gang of of Mr. Chas. Roberts, of Johannesburg, law-breakers for immunity from prosecution. Two men were discussing the investigation in a Timmins cafe the other evening. The one was inclined to believe all that was suggested against the Montreal police, while the other was Parks. equally keen in defending the uprightness of the Montreal officials. The bride wore a beautiful in the stories, for the confidence men who are supposed to rope of pearls, a gift to her from the have paid some fifty thousand dollars to escape the law in Montreal are said to have transferred their business to Ontario. The interests of one section of Canada nearly always prove to be the interests of all other sections. It is very important to Ontario towns and cities that the law is honestly enforced in Montrea! and elsewhere.

> The town of Timmins will save considerable money each year through the new plan adopted by the town council in regard to the assessment. The 1928 assessment is being accepted as the assessment for 1929, subject of course to any additions and to the finding of the court of revision in regard to any appeals made. Beginning next year the assessment will be made between April 1st and Sept. 30. The assessment made one year will be the basis for the next year'e van, of New Liskeard. She was daintily taxation. In this way taxes may be collected earlier in the dressed in white crepe-de-chene, and year and the necessity for large borrowings of money to tide the town over until taxes are due will be avoided. There will be a large saving here in bank interest and charges. After the first year there will not be the slightest inconvenience to the public. For the one year the taxes will follow a little more closely than usual upon the taxes of the previous year. This will not, however, be anything like as a gold bracelet. serious a matter as in 1927 when two years' taxes had to be paid in less than a year. Indeed, the public may get the of the bride's parents, 115 Elm street, advantage of the privilege of paying in three instalments under the new plan, as such a method would be practical if the taxes were collectable earlier in the year.

TO BE TRIED ON CHARGE OF ROBBERY AT TEMISKAMING

The Attorney-General's Department Tuesday granted an order on application of W. H. Williams, K.C., Pembroke, legal representative for the Canadian Pacific Railway to move Victor Szymonski to Temiskaming, Que., to stand trial on a charge of holding up and robbing the C. P. R. station at that point on September 19 of last year, when approximately $600 was stolen from the company's safe. Szymonski is at present in jail at North Bay.

Szymonski was recently convicted at North Bay before Judge Valin in the District Judge's Criminal Court on a gations conducted while Szymonski was incarcerated in the district jail awaiting trial led to him being indentified, police say, as having committed the Temiskaming hold-up.
