The voters' lists for the town for the year were issued last week. Ratepayers should see that their names are duly on the roll. Now is the time to assure your vote. Don't wait until election time. If you wait till then, and your name is missed, all you will be able to do is to kick. Now you can have the name added if it should be there.

How modern benefits and up-to-date advantages are spreading to all corners of this continent is shown by the following little paragraph from the last issue of The Cochrane Northland Post:—'Mr. R. H. Thompson, E. E. Bilton of Ottawa and E. W. Dean, of Cochrane, left Saturday for Moose Factory and other points north to look over claims of Mr. Thompson and Bilton. Mr. Thompson is also showing DeForest-Crosley Radios, while there.'

BANQUET GIVEN IN HONOUR OF MR. GEO. E. COLE

Cole," said Mr. Sutherland. Mr. Sutherland created much amusement by his question as to whether the production of coal could now be added to the natural resources of the province of Manitoba. The toast was responded to with great enthusiasm by all, the Haileybury song and other expressions of popularity in this North Land being granted the guest of the evening.

A story by A. Laprairie at this juncture added to the fun of the time, and this was followed by the reading by the chairman of a bogus telegram from Winnipeg, which humorously suggested that Geo. E. Cole was completely changing the whole attitude of his life in this camp by blossoming out as a devotee of wine, women and song. It was the company's humorous way of letting the guest of the evening understand that his fine character and genial disposition were appreciated and respected.

Mr. A. F. Brigham, general manager of the Hollinger, took up Mr. Sutherland's challenge in regard to hair and goodness, pointing out that hair was naturally hereditary, and so there was no more to be said about it. He said that all felt very keenly the removal of Mr. Cole from this camp where he had given such excellent services. He had given the greatest care and attention to his work and he had been fair and courteous to all concerned. Mr. Brigham congratulated Mr. Cole on his well-merited promotion and said the good wishes of all here would follow him to his new position.

Mr. R. J. Ennis, general manager of the McIntyre, made humorous reference to the telegram from Winnipeg, and suggested that if Geo. E. Cole were to completely reverse his life like that, he had better stay right here in the Porcupine where he stood so high in the esteem of all. Mr. Sutherland had referred to the facile pen wielded by Mr. Cole, this being a suggestion relative to the several excellent papers on mining subjects given by Mr. Cole at conventions and elsewhere. Mr. Ennis made mention of the 'facile pen,' saying that they had several letters on file that showed how keenly he could write,—that the mine must do this and mustn't do that, and everything was to be effective immediately. However, Mr. Cole had been able and earnest in his work here, and the training he had received in this camp would be of great value to him in his new position. Mr. Ennis made brief humorous reference to circumstances and conditions in the early days of the camp, and concluded by expressing the general appreciation and good wishes of all to the guest of the evening.

A song by Capt. D. Jones in fine voice made a big hit. It was the "Plumber's Song," and was very effectively done indeed.

Mr. Robt. Dye, manager of the V-pond, quoted a friend as claiming that George Cole represented the two greatest kings in history—King George and King Cole. At any rate he had the kindly virtues of devotion to duty and of geniality and happy disposition. Mr. Dye felt the removal of Mr. Cole was a distinct loss to the North, where he had been active and helpful in so many good works. He extended sincere congratulations to Mr. Cole on his advancement in his chosen line of work. "I am sure that the guest of the evening will win success wherever he may be," he concluded.

A yodelling song (or a "garling song" as A. Laprairie announced it) was very effectively given by Mr. A. Chisholm and very heartily enjoyed. Later in the evening Mr. Chisholm pleased the gathering with other fine songs including "Girl of My Dream," "Wild Irish Rose," "Born in Killarney," his fine tenor voice being heard to advantage. Chairman read notes of regret from Messrs Jas. Denny, Ralph Parker, V. H. Emery and Capt. Young, who were unable to be present but expressed their appreciation of Mr. Cole and their good wishes.

Mr. C. G. Williams, on behalf of the mining staffs of the Porcupine, presented Mr. Cole with a very handsome and complete travelling bag, as a mark of the appreciation and esteem of the people in this district. In making the presentation Mr. Williams said he felt the departure of Mr. Cole as a personal loss and he knew that all who knew Geo. Cole would feel the same way. He had won the admiration, regard and respect of all as an official and a citizen. He had not only given ability, energy and faithfulness to his duties, but he had been a helpful and public-spirited citizen of the district and a fine type of man. He congratulated Mr. Cole on his promotion and the province of Manitoba on the fine official secured.

It was some time after he rose to respond before Mr. Cole could proceed. The gathering enthusiastically sang verse after verse, with variations, of the popular, "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." Mr. Cole feelingly expressed his thanks for the handsome gift, for the banquet and for the kindnesses that had been showered upon him. "Like the man in the story told me recently by a Cornishman in town, I have a notion to stay on here where people seem to think so well of me," he said. Mr. Cole said that he had been mining inspector here for eight years. He felt he knew the resources and possibilities of the mining development of Ontario, and he hoped to become equally well acquainted with the mineral wealth of Manitoba. A mining inspector, Mr. Cole pointed out, was really working for three different parties—the Government, the public and the mine owners. Accordingly, the position was full of difficulties. He had done his best here, and on the whole work had been pleasant. He felt he had many good friends here and he regretted the fact that he was about to leave so many fine fellows in this North Land. He hoped that in Manitoba he would win the same friendship on merit. "I will always remember this evening," he said. He hoped to visit the Porcupine on occasion in the future, and he assured all that anyone from this part of the North visiting in Manitoba would be gladly welcomed by him at any time. Mr. Cole concluded by again thanking all for their kindnesses and the good wishes so generously extended. "Auld Lang Syne" and "God Save the King," brought the auspicious evening to a close.

Bicycle for Business, Sport and Exercise

That very readable column, "A By-stander at the Office Window," in The Toronto Globe, makes the following able and thoughtful plea for the bicycle:—

Is there any good reason why cycling as an exercise and a diversion should not be more widespread and popular in this country than it is at the present time? Most of us can remember a time when the bicycle was a pleasant and healthful means of escaping from the city into the country highways and byways. There is no doubt that cycling would be just as prevalent today were more provision made for the safety of cyclists on our roadways. That, in a word, is the only thing needful to bring the pastime back into vogue.

In England and on the Continent cycling is still a popular sport, and statesmen as well as schoolboys are seen astride the little leather saddle, we are told. Women ride fearlessly. No fewer than 6,000,000 cyclists have been listed in England by the Touring Club. It is getting ready to celebrate a golden jubilee in June. A feature is to be a relay race around England, Wales and Scotland. At the finish, on the birthday of the Prince of Wales, who rides a bicycle himself, there will be a distribution of prizes.

In the Scandinavian countries bicycles are in general use. All the monarchs ride as well as most of their subjects. Girls fit along the country paths. Men no more on the sunny side of 60 tool about serenely. In Europe there is not a touring car to every five persons. The rights of cyclists are recognized and enforced.

Even pedestrians there have some consideration. An elderly person on a bicycle is not a ridiculous sight—he may be the Prime Minister, or a professor of logic, or a society leader.

What adult in this continent dares to ride a bicycle on the highway unless he is a mechanic going to work in overalls? asks a writer in The Times (New York).
