

Timmins and District Notes

Born—In Timmins, Ont., on Friday, Dec. 14th, 1928 to Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Brazeau—daughter (Vivian Rita).

Mrs. O. Chenier left on Wednesday for Powassan, Ont., to make her home with her father, Mr. James Campbell, of that town.

The mild weather last week interfered with road work and work in the bush in this North. Accordingly, the colder weather this week was welcomed for business reasons and well as because it was more seasonable.

For quality and quantity the Family Herald and Weekly Star, Montreal, is the prudent farmer's first choice. At $1 a year or three years for $2 it is a marvel of value, and all members of the family get a wealth of reading of marvellous interest.

A number of cases of influenza are reported from Porquus Junction, both adults and children suffering from the disease. The disease fortunately is of a mild type.

This (Thursday) evening is the date of the Cornish Christmas Tree for 1928. There is a pleasing programme and a delightful time ready for all members of the Cornish Social Club on this occasion.

All this week and on Monday evening all the stores in town are open evenings for business to allow opportunity for Christmas shopping. There are only three more shopping days until Christmas and the famous old-time advice, "shop early" still holds good.

Burglars at North Bay last week secured $200.00 in cash and $300.00 in goods by two robberies in the city. The Dominion Store was one place entered, the cash register being robbed of $200. The $300.00 worth of goods were stolen from Wasserman and Rosenberg's second-hand store. The methods of the burglars in both cases seemed much the same.

Presentations to Messrs.

C. G. Williams and V. H. Emery

Marks of Appreciation Shown at Kiwanis Club on Monday for Two Fine Kiwanians and Good Citizens. Those Interested in Work for Children Give Token of Appreciation for Mr. Williams' Interest and Effort for Youngsters.

The luncheon of the Kiwanis Club on Monday at the Empire hotel was a specially interesting and pleasing one, the only matter for regret being the fact that a chief business of the day was to give farewell wishes and appreciation to two members of the club who had taken a prominent and helpful part in the activities of the organization and in every other good work for the progress and benefit of the town, but who are soon to leave Timmins to join the ranks of the Kiwanis Club on Monday from the lodge to the work of the two members, Messrs C. G. Williams and V. H. Emery, have taken so important a place in the town for so many years and have won such general appreciation and regard, that their expected departure could not be viewed otherwise than with deepest regret.

During the luncheon, Messrs Williams and Emery were each presented with a handsome Parker pen desk set as a mark of appreciation from the Kiwanis Club, while a number of speakers referred to the goodfellowship and fine citizenship of these two gentlemen, the sincere appreciation for what they had done for the club, the town and every worthy purpose, and the deep regret of all at their expected departure from Timmins. The event was also made the occasion for a presentation to Mr. Williams of a pen and pencil set as a special reminder of the appreciation felt by those interested in work for the children, who knew the great debt owed to Mr. Williams for the time, money, effort and interest he has given in this district. A specially pleasing feature of this presentation was the fact that the actual presentation was made by one of the little girls from the Shelter, who was the guest of the Kiwanis Club for the occasion.

President C. G. Keddie occupied the chair for the day and carried on proceedings with his usual efficiency and despatch. After the visitors had been introduced and welcomed, and after several popular community songs had been enjoyed, the president explained that the chief business of the meeting was to express appreciation for Messrs Williams and Emery, and he called on a number of those present for brief addresses in regard to Kiwanians Williams and Emery.

G. A. Macdonald, president of the District Children's Aid Society, thanked the president and members of the club for the opportunity given to express appreciation of Mr. Williams. The fact that in the recent campaign for funds for the Children's Aid Society there had been well over 1000 individual subscribers in the Porcupine area showed that the interest in the youngsters was very general in this town and district. Accordingly, it was felt that a man who had done as much for the advancement of Children's Aid work as Mr. Williams should not be allowed to leave the camp without some tangible expression of the regard in which his good services had been held. Due to Mr. Williams' own attitude the Children's Aid Society could not do anything in this regard as a society. Mr. Williams had been most persistent in insisting that every cent of money and every ounce of effort of the C.A.S. should go to the children. He would not agree even to purchase of milk for youngsters who were not wards, as that opened the way indirectly to assistance to adults, which was not the purpose of the society. It was the same with boots and clothing for youngsters not wards, as Mr. Williams held that the Children's Aid was directly and indirectly concerned only with the children. Mr. Williams, however, was never known to let any child he knew of go without milk or clothing,—he was known often to pay for milk and clothing in needed cases out of his own pocket. Just as Mr. Williams had thus gotten around his own rule, so those interested in the work for children felt they should find a way to express in some tangible manner the regard and appreciation in which he was held for what he had done for the welfare of the youngsters. He had been prominent in establishing the Children's Aid in Timmins and largely instrumental in forming the District Society. To both he had contributed more than any other single individual to the success of the work. He was the first president of the Timmins C.A.S., and with the exception of one year he had been president ever since. He had taken a very important part in keeping the District C.A.S. a helpful and successful society. As chairman of the building committee of the Shelter, he had in that home a monument to his kindly heart and his clear head. The Kiwanis president had said he would be much missed in town; by none would he be more missed than by the Children's Aid. A young lady from the Shelter, little Julia Jemmuth, then presented Mr. Williams with a gold pen and pencil set, engraved with his initials. The little girl made a big hit by her modesty and charm.

In acknowledging the presentation Mr. Williams told of a wonderful chance he had carelessly missed recently when he had noticed a book advertised in the Kiwanis Magazine for only 50c. He had not sent for the book, which was guaranteed to give a suitable address for any occasion. He felt the need of it now. He said he did not know how to express his appreciation for the handsome gift and particularly the spirit in which it was made. The charming little girl made the presentation all the more touching to him. He suggested that too much stress had been given to what he had done or tried to do, but he confessed that it was always a pleasure to him to do anything for the youngsters.

Mr. Keddie in apt way referred to the inadequacy of language to express exact meaning. The French language, had no equivalent for the word so beloved of those whose native tongue was English,—the word, "home." On the other hand the English language had no word to express the "Au Revoir" of French. "Farewell" had too much of finality about it. In the case of two Kiwanians, Messrs Williams and Emery, the feeling was to bid them only good wishes till all should meet again as soon as possible.

Mr. R. Dye, past president of the Kiwanis Club, was called upon, and in opening his brief address he said it would be felt by all that it was a sad thing to see two good fellows like Kiwanians Williams and Emery departing from the community. "Few here have been in this town as long as Charlie and Vic," he said, "and few have left their stamp upon the community so notably." He referred to the services they had both given to the work of the club and the various activities of the town. Both had long and valuable service to their credit and to the town's advantage as members of the school boards here. In wholesome sports and in other more serious spheres both had contributed much to the pleasure and progress of the town and district, and they will be greatly missed, indeed. Mr. Dye referred to the fact that Messrs Williams and Emery were opening offices as consulting engineers in Toronto and he felt sure their services would be of outstanding value because of their wide knowledge, long experience and intimate acquaintance with this country and its mines. He wished them all luck, prosperity and success in their new field. Their new community was to be congratulated on securing such citizens. They would be sincerely missed here. The hearty applause that followed showed how fully the Kiwanis Club endorsed all that Mr. Dye had said.

On behalf of the Kiwanis Club Messrs C. G. Williams and V. H. Emery were then presented with very handsome Parker desk sets. Mr. Emery was called upon first to reply and expressed his deep appreciation of the token given and the kindly words spoken. His associations in Timmins and district had always been most pleasant and he felt it quite a difficult thing to think of severing the many friendships formed. Never again, he thought, would he have the good fortune to find as many good fellows gathered in the one place as he had encountered in his stay in Timmins. All his associations here had been harmonious and pleasant and he would carry away especially happy remembrances of Kiwanis meetings and similar events here.

Mr. C. G. Williams humorously suggested that the partnership could not be considered as starting auspiciously when on the very first occasion V. H. let him down. "I impressed on him that he was to speak for both of us, but he hasn't said a word specially for me." Mr. Williams in his usual efficient way expressed the pleasure he had taken in the Kiwanis meetings, the inspiration drawn from them, and the deep appreciation he felt for the kindly token given.

Rev. Fr. Theriault spoke briefly but feelingly of his long friendship with Messrs Williams and Emery and what good fellows and good citizens he had found them to be always. They are always ready to help any good cause, he said, and he endorsed fully what had been said of the special interest and effort given by Mr. Williams on behalf of the children of the district.

Rev. J. D. Parks touched on the fact that in a community like this there seemed to be opportunity for making better and truer friends than in some other places, but one of the sad things about a community like this was that because of conditions and circumstances inseparable from towns of this type, too often there came the call to say good-bye to fine fellows whom opportunity was calling elsewhere. All would be sorry indeed to lose old-timers of the camp like Messrs Williams and Emery. "I feel that Timmins will not seem just the same without them," he said. Rev. Mr. Parks referred to the work these two men had done for the community, touching especially on the help that Mr. Williams had always been so generous in giving to all good causes. He joined all in wishing them all success and happiness in their new location.

Messrs Williams and Emery leave here early in the New Year for Toronto where they are opening offices as consulting engineers.

Greetings

to our Customers and Friends

SOME folks have said that there is no sentiment in business—that we, of this age, have become too engrossed in business, too commercialized, to pay heed to the finer things of life.

Times have changed, it is true, since this House celebrated its first Christmas, twenty-four years ago.

And yet, in spite of the outward changes, that have occurred, the spirit of Christmas remains the same. It is still the day of universal joy, because it is still—just as it has always been—the day when, more than at any other time, we look beyond ourselves. It is the day on which we pause for a moment in the busy whirl of life to realize our dependence upon others, and to acknowledge openly and frankly the obligations we owe our friends.

It is only natural for this reason that our thoughts should go out today to those who have helped so materially in our growth and prosperity. To you, therefore—our customers and other friends—we extend our sincere appreciation for past favors and the hope of the officers and employees of this Company that you, and those whose happiness is yours, may have a Christmas of whole-souled joy.
