GRAVEL AND SAND—AND PLACER

Last week The Toronto Mail and Empire published a special section devoted to extolling the advantages of Ontario as a place for tourists to visit and giving particulars of its outstanding summer resorts and camping grounds. Naturally, special attention was given to Northern Ontario, and this section of country should benefit materially from this sort of publicity. One article, published elsewhere in this issue, deals exclusively with the attractions for tourists along the Ferguson highway. It is to be regretted that in this interesting article there is only a bare mention of Timmins. Timmins should offer very special attractions to the summer visitor, and so might well be given extended mention. Timmins is a city built where only a few years ago there was virgin bush. The town acreage includes the Hollinger Mine, recognized for years as the greatest individual producing gold mine on the continent. Other mines of almost equal importance are in the immediate vicinity. The modern type of buildings here, the size and grace of the school structures here, the importance of the wholesale and retail businesses in town, and the fact that the town is most modernly equipped in water service, sewerage, fire protection, streets and walks, all make the centre of particular interest. The money spent here for education, $1,500,000.00 being invested in the schools, and the importance given by the people to the finer things of life, make the town of especial interest. Visitors will not fail to be interested in Timmins,—a modern city of 12,000 people, situated where the casual visitor would scarcely expect to find a new town of such progressive and attractive type.

Dr. George, District Officer of Health, is credited with saying that unless quarantine is properly observed in Cochrane where there is at present an epidemic of a mild type of measles, police court cases will follow and penalties will be awarded for breach of the regulations regarding quarantine, rules that are designed to protect the public generally. It might be of advantage to the public if there were a number of prosecutions for contempt of the safeguards planned for the protection of the public health. Cochrane is not the only place where quarantine is disregarded and the public welfare thus needlessly jeopardized. In the past there have been some flagrant cases of the same evil in places much closer to Timmins, despite the care and watchfulness of the health authorities. It is regrettable that there seems to be an inability on the part of many to realize that the public in general have rights and that it is the duty of every citizen to guard these rights. An honourable observance of quarantine in most cases will avoid the menace of an epidemic and in all cases will prevent the epidemic from being as widespread and as serious as it would be without such safeguards.

Throughout the whole world there will be sincere regret and sorrow at the death this week in England of General Bramwell Booth, for many years in command of the Salvation Army. The Salvation Army is established in 80 different countries, preaching the gospel in 53 languages. Its social service and welfare work is a blessing and a help to every country in which the Army fights evil and uncleanliness. Bramwell Booth played a great part in making the Army successful. The world owes him a debt of gratitude for great service joyfully given.

Despatches from Toronto this week would suggest that the purpose of the delegation from Timmins interviewing Premier Ferguson on Tuesday was to protest against the idea of asking any guarantee before the railway should be started. A much fairer way to state the case would be to say that the Timmins town council and the Timmins board of trade are extremely anxious to have the railway constructed for the good of this town and for the early development of the Kamiskotia area. With the opening up of the new mining area they vision advantage to the whole province. They centre their ideas on having the railway built at once for the general good. Their protest is against further delay in the building of this railroad. There is a general opinion that the building of the railroad to Kamiskotia is fully warranted by the prospects of the new camp and that it will be completely justified by the development achieved after it is constructed.

The mayor of Toronto and the mayor of Kingston are conducting a spirited debate as to which of these two cities is the more loyal to the Empire. Figures in regard to recruiting for the recent world war, money contributed for patriotic purposes, and the history of the founders of the two cities are being quoted to prove that one or the other of these two cities deserves the laurel for loyalty. The truth is that both Kingston and Toronto are loyal cities, but judged by facts of actual contributions to the welfare of the Empire, there are scores of small towns and villages and other communities that considered proportionately have displayed much greater loyalty than either of the cities that now argue their merits. The rolls of the regiments and the books of the Red Cross and Patriotic Societies would prove this point. To the welfare of the nation the smaller centres have made magnificent contribution of talent, effort and service, and in those things lie the better test of loyalty.

Chief McLaughlin is to be complimented on the plan he has adopted this week for dealing with minor breaches of the traffic and highways acts. It is the sort of method The Advance suggested some weeks ago when there was considerable ill-feeling harboured by many good citizens against a neighbouring municipality because of the imposition of a small fine and large costs for technical breaches of the law, these breaches in most cases being due to no more than thoughtlessness or oversight. Chief McLaughlin's plan is to give a "card" to any motorist who breaks any of the minor clauses of the traffic laws. It is recognized that all the clauses must be observed, but twelve dollars seems too high a penalty to pay for a moment's oversight when no one is endangered or even inconvenienced. In cases of minor offences, such as wrongful parking that does no serious harm, perhaps in the particular instance noticed, a card is given to the offender requesting a call at the police station. If the motorist fails to obey the call naturally a summons to court will be a matter of course. If the offender calls at the police station the necessity for observance of the law is impressed without undue cost. In the case of good fellows, The Advance believes this type of warning will do more good than irritating fines. The man who offends once through thoughtlessness or carelessness, will pay more attention in the future, and the whole purpose of the law be thus advanced.
