GRAVEL AND SAND—AND PLACER

Hon. Mr. Finlayson was recently quoted as saying that prospectors are responsible for the commencement of most of the bush fires that occur in this North Land. No doubt, Hon. Mr. Finlayson will deny making such a false charge against as fine a body of men as are the prospectors of this North. Mr. Finlayson, however, need not deny another statement credited to him in which he asserts that his charge against the prospectors is difficult to prove. He might have gone further and blurted out the truth that it would be impossible to show that prospectors are responsible for the bush fires, the fact being that prospectors are not as much responsible for the bush fires that start as is Hon. Mr. Finlayson himself. The Advance does not know, and has never heard, of an authentic case where it was ever shown that prospectors were responsible for a bush fire. Prospectors have to be good bushmen and good bushmen do not start bush fires. Good bushmen realize only too well the vital necessity for guarding against bush fires. Even if prospectors had no regard for the lives of others, they would know that bush fires endanger prospectors particularly. Travelling in the bush so much, the prospector is one man who realizes that his own life depends on carefulness and thought. No one is desperately endangered by the bush fire as the prospector. Knowing the prospectors of this country, however, the Advance does not believe for a minute that even if they were perfectly safe themselves that they would endanger the lives of others by starting bush fires. The story about prospectors starting bush fires to clear their claims for prospecting work is one of those foolish stories that gain more or less popular currency without foundation in fact. Men like Hon. Mr. Finlayson should know better than to accept such unwarranted theories. It is a fact that usually the bush fires commence in areas where no prospectors are working. Not only does the Advance believe that no real prospector would start a bush fire, but this paper further is convinced that the average prospector seeing or knowing of any bush fire in progress would not only do his best to notify the nearest fire rangers but he also would spend his own time and strength to fight the progress of the fire. The prospector knows the danger to life and property from bush fires. No one knows better, not even Mr. Finlayson, quoted or misquoted. To suggest that the prospector would be even careless about bush fires is to pretend that the prospector is not a very desirable type of man. The truth is that the prospector is unselfish, kindly, careful and considerate. Whoever else may be blamed for the bush fires, Hon. Mr. Finlayson and all others concerned should leave the prospector free from the charge.

At the meeting of the Northern Ontario Associated Boards of Trade at Englehart last week, the few delegates present decided that it was not an opportune time to press for the completion of the belt line of roads for this North. Some of the members were quoted as saying that roads for settlers were more important. It is worthy of note that there was no move made by the Associated Boards of Trade at this meeting to secure any more roads for the settlers. The Advance persistently advocates roads for the settlers, but at the same time this paper believes the belt line of roads should be completed. The belt line of roads in itself would add materially to the mileage of roads for the settlers. Without this belt line of roads, the whole section of this country north of New Liskeard can not hope for any material part of the tourist trade that is constantly referred to as so valuable to this province. With the belt line of roads completed, the tourist trade in all the North would be increased many fold. The North Land needs roads for settlers all right. The Advance would be delighted to see the Northern Ontario Associated Boards of Trade fighting, as it has fought in the past, to secure roads for settlers. The North Land also needs the belt line of roads. Roads for settlers and the belt line of roads would both be good investments. Last year Hon. Mr. Finlayson hypnotised the Northern Ontario Associated Boards of Trade into saying that the Ferguson highway was not so bad. Some who fought against the mesmerism were censured by the Associated Boards. As soon as the influence was removed, however, the Associated Boards was quite noisy in its condemnation of the condition of the road. It would be a pity if further hypnotism should delay the completion of the belt line of roads. If the Associated Boards will earnestly centre its efforts on securing the needed roads for the settlers it would be doing good work, but to sidetrack the belt line of roads for roads for the settlers and not press to get either is poor business. The Northern Ontario Associated Boards of Trade is on record for the belt line of roads. The belt line of roads should be emphasized, while at the same time the need for roads for the settlers should be kept ever to the front.

During the past week The Advance has received scores of enquiries regarding civic holiday. There appears to be a misapprehension in regard to the purpose and reason for a civic holiday. Some seem to think that the civic holiday should be set to coincide with the holiday of other towns and cities in the province. Those who ask for a province-wide holiday are missing the whole foundation idea of a civic holiday. Perhaps another provincial holiday is needed or desirable, but the whole purpose of an annual civic holiday is to meet the desires of the individual community. If the holiday is set with the consideration of other towns and cities in mind, it should not be misnamed a civic holiday.

Blue books are notoriously uninteresting. There need not be lack of interest, however, in a blue book that is pink. Such is the 'Index to the House of Commons Debates, Session of 1929,' just received. A glance through this pink blue book would appear to give indication of those who do the most talking in parliament. For instance it takes over four columns of the two-column pages of the book to index the addresses of Hon. Wm. Lyon Mackenzie King. The indexing of Hon. H. Bennett's addresses takes even more space suggesting that it is easier for an opposition to criticize and suggest than for a Government to do things worth talking about. Other who take up large spaces in the Index include—H. B. Addison, East Calgary; Hon. P. J. Carden, Minister of Marine and Fisheries; T. L. Church, of Toronto; Hon. C. A. Dunning, Minister of Public Works; Robt. Gardner, Acadia; E. J. Garland, Bow River; G. R. Geary, Toronto; Hon. J. C. Elliott, Minister of Justice; Dr. R. J. Manion, Fort William; Hon. Fernand Rinfret, Secretary of State; Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Finance; H. E. Spencer, Battle River; H. H. Stevens, Vancouver; Hon. Chas. Stewart, Minister of the Interior; Hon. P. J. Veniot, Postmaster General; J. S. Woodsworth, Winnipeg. Hon. Mr. Heenan, Minister of Labour, appears to have talked the least of any member of the cabinet. Miss Agnes Macphail's addresses to the House occupy less than a column in the Index. Some of the members appeared to have talked too much and others not enough. North Temiskaming's own member, judging by the Index, struck the happy medium. He was heard whenever the constituency had special interest in the subject at issue and when he had knowledge of the case. The Index lists J. A. Bradette, M.P., as speaking on the following topics:—The Budget, Dominion Elections Act, Foreigner Miners in Northern Ontario, the Hollinger Mine Disaster, Immigration Policy, Kapuskasing Experimental Farm, Medical Relief for Indians, and on an article in The Thunderer.

According to an announcement this week from Toronto a provincial election is not contemplated this year.

There is much disappointment throughout the district at the fact that no announcement has been made in regard to the proposed railway to Kamiskotia. Hon. Mr. McCrear while on his recent visit to Timmins said that a definite announcement would be made inside of ten days. That is more than two weeks ago.

Creditable Number of St. Maurice Valley Paper

The Advance recently received a very creditable special number issued by the St. Maurice Valley Chronicle of Three Rivers, Quebec, dealing with the recent development and future possibilities of Three Rivers and the St. Maurice Valley district. The special number comprises 60 pages, all well printed and handsomely illustrated. The issue was presented as a souvenir number to note the annual convention of the Canadian Municipalities. The various industries of the St. Maurice Valley are very effectively dealt with, while the municipal organization such as the councils, boards of trade and other enterprises of the citizens are set forth in able way. The sixty pages are crammed full of the most interesting and helpful information. For instance it is pointed out that Three Rivers is the second oldest French city in North America, and the centre of the pulp and paper industry of the world. The expansion and development of the city of Three Rivers is indicated in striking way by one article headed, '4860 Telephones in Operation in Three Rivers.' The special number says that Three Rivers was founded in 1634 by Sieur de la Violette, a lieutenant of Samuel de Champlain. The latter chose Three Rivers for his main trading post, and it is still a most important centre. In recent years Three Rivers has been the centre of a large manufacturing and agricultural district and its growth in recent years has been phenomenal. The special number referred to is in itself proof of the modern type of printing office possessed by the St. Maurice Valley Chronicle, for only the best equipped office and a very capable staff could be expected to produce so noteworthy and excellent a number.

INVESTIGATED CLAY AND OIL IN THE NORTH TEN YEARS AGO

Recently much has been heard of the clay and oil possibilities of the James Bay area. In this connection a paragraph from The Advance of ten years ago should be of special interest. The Advance of August 6th, 1919, said: 'Dr. Williams and Joseph Keele, of the Dominion Mines Dept., of Ottawa, left Cochrane last week for the James Bay area. They are going to the district north of Cochrane to examine the clay deposits on the Mattagami river, and also to investigate the stories that there are oil possibilities on the James Bay slope.'

ANNOUNCEMENT

Mr. H. L. Sanborn, Vice-President and Managing Director of the Abitibi Electrical Development Company of Iroquois Falls, met a quorum of the Council of the Town of Cochrane and the Public Utilities Commission on Thursday, July 25th, in the Town Hall and the Power Question was discussed at some length. As a result of the meeting a favourable settlement was arrived at agreeable to all parties and we beg to announce to the public that the antagonistic question is no longer an issue. The rate has been officially set at $50.00 per Horse Power per annum, subject to a rebate from the Abitibi Company rendered by a thirteenth bill, such rebate being in direct proportion to the consumption of power consumed by the Town during the year. A monthly peak will be the basis upon which accounts are rendered, such monthly peak to be the maximum ten-minute interval arrived at within the month. The rebate is retroactive for the years 1927 and 1928, and when applied will bring the rate per Horse Power per annum to approximately $35.00 per Horse Power. The Town Council and the Public Utilities Commission are now in a position to have the Abitibi Company apply the 1927 and 1928 rebates to current bills till such rebates are absorbed.

We are very pleased to make the above announcement in the public interests and to assure all concerned that the Abitibi Company have offered terms and conditions of settlement more favourable to the Town of Cochrane than those placed before the Minister of Lands and Forests for suggested arbitration. Signed on behalf of the Town by: FRED C. IVY, Mayor. J. LANNING, Chairman Public Utilities Commission. Cochrane, Ontario. -32

LAST DAY THE BIGGEST DAY OF KIWANIS KARNIVAL

The Kiwanis Carnival in the skating rink last week, scheduled for three days only, was continued for the whole week in response to the very general demand for 'more' on the part of the general public. The Kiwanis continued the event simply at the request of so many patrons who found the feature so enjoyable. However, the last three days proved successful and pleasing like the first days and the biggest day from an attendance standpoint was the closing one, Saturday bringing out big crowds who enjoyed the carnival and even then regretted that it was closing.
