License Fee $250 Under New Transient Traders' By-law

Council Raises Fee Required for Transient Traders' Here. Error in Assessment of Jewish Synagogue Rectified. Tax Cases Considered. Routine Business Dealt with at Meeting on Monday. Other Town Council Business.

At the regular meeting of the town council on Monday afternoon there was much routine business dealt with, the chief item before the council possibly being the formal passing of the new transient traders' license by-law. Under this new by-law all transient traders doing business in town must have a license, this license now to cost $250.00 instead of $75.00 as heretofore. The council gave the by-law the required three readings, thus putting the by-law in force and effect. The conditions of the former by-law, apart from the license fee, will apply. Under the new by-law as under the previous one the fee for the transient traders' license will apply on the taxes of the person licensed if he or she remains in business. Some of the councillors thought the fee might be considered a little high, especially as it was such a big jump from the $75.00 previously collected, but the council in general after consideration felt that the established business men who were ratepayers deserved some protection and the transient traders who remained here would not lose anything as the fee was applied to their taxes after they had been here a year or more.

At the meeting on Monday, Mayor Geo. S. Drew presided, and Councillors A. G. Carson, H. Charlebois, P. Dougal, R. Richardson, Alfred Caron and C. P. Ramsay were present.

Mr. P. Chapman asked to have the house he occupied changed from separate to public school, as he had not had it rented to a separate school supporter for 18 months or more. The council agreed to the change and the necessary alterations will be made.

There was a request for a light on Hemlock street at the corner of Ninth avenue. Council thought this was far out in the town and that few ratepayers would be served, but the matter was referred to the fire and light committee so that it could be looked into and dealt with.

Hon. Wm. Finlayson's private secretary acknowledged the receipt of the letter and resolution from the town council asking that the timber limits on certain townships south of the town be reserved for the use of the lumber industries in Timmins. The timber from these limits would naturally come down the Mattagami river, unless diverted, and to reserve these townships as suggested would give some assurance for the continued life of the lumber businesses here, in which much money was invested and many men employed.

Mr. A. Parker, secretary of the Timmins Horticultural Society, wrote the council thanking them for the donation given this year and saying that the annual exhibition for this year had been a very successful one.

A petition signed by twelve ratepayers was before council asking for a drain in the southwest section of the town near Kirby avenue. The water from Pine, Cedar, and other streets, the petition said, drained onto the properties in the district causing much damage and lessening the value of the lots. Mayor Drew thought there were only a few houses affected, but that the matter might be looked into. Accordingly, the question was referred to the board of works for investigation and report.

A widow who had nine children to support asked council for relief from taxes in arrears. Only one of the children was able to be of any assistance to her, she said, and consequently it was hard to make ends meet. Council sympathized with her but explained there were scores of similar cases and the council did not feel they had any right to rebate the taxes. The relief officer might be able to help a second son to get work and help in the support of the family. In the meantime, there would be no pressure made to enforce immediate collection of the taxes, but the rates due would stand as a charge against the property.

A gentleman from the Bartleman township again appeared before council in regard to his taxes and also in regard to his water rates. Both he thought too high for a poor working man to pay. The mayor pointed out that he could scarcely call himself a poor man when he owned several valuable properties. In regard to the taxes the council could do nothing. The assessment had been made by the township of Tisdale and a court of revision duly held. The town council had to take the tax roll as confirmed by Tisdale for this year. Mayor Drew thought the water rates were on a different basis. The case was one where there were two houses on a lot with the one water service. The bigger house had been vacant for months, while the water was not shut off because the owner was living in the smaller house and using the water there. It would cost too much, the owner felt to instal separate services for the two houses. The township of Tisdale had taken the easy way in dealing with such cases and the man had felt that Timmins would do the same. The rule in Timmins, however, is that water is charged for in such cases whether there are part vacancies or not. In cases where the owner does not want to pay this way the only way out is to have individual services put in so that one or more may be shut off as occasion may require. It was felt that the Bartleman townsman had misunderstood the matter and that as the water for the larger house had not been used for three months or so a rebate might be made for a couple of months for the rates on the larger house. He was told, however, that this was not a precedent and that now that he knew he rules he would have to pay whether there were vacancies or not.

The matter of the taxes on the Jewish synagogue was again taken up. The assessor had visited the building and finding the rabbi there with a class of pupils had taken this to mean that the building was used for residential purposes. As a consequence this form of assessment had been followed. The taxes imposed through this amounted to $248.59, and council thought it only fair to rebate this amount as the synagogue was only used for church purposes like the other churches in town.

Authority was given for the re-decorating of the interior of the fire chief's residence which has not been given any attention in this line for some time.

Routine accounts were passed, some water rates rebated where houses had been vacant.

The three necessary readings were given for the final passing of the new transient traders' by-law. The penalties for breach of the by-law have been increased to correspond with the increase in the license fee.

There were several requests for rebates of taxes and water rates on houses that had been vacant. Council pointed out that no rebates had been given on taxes where residences had been vacant. Rebates were made in some cases where stores or other business premises were not occupied for three or more consecutive months in the year. The Hotel Goldfields building applied for rebates on account of vacancies that meant a loss of $2600 in gross revenue. The matter will be looked into and the amount of the rebate figured out. J. P. Bartleman again asked for rebate of taxes on account of vacancy in the building owned on Spruce street. As it was thought the building in question was used for storage purposes, the matter was left over until details could be secured. A request for refund for eight months vacancy in a store on Third avenue now owned by C. M. Auer was left over until the end of the year when the total vacancy would be known. Another gentleman asked for refund of taxes and water rates for six houses. One of the properties had been used for store purposes and so might be considered eligible for consideration in the matter of tax rebate for vacancy of business premises. The other cases were residences, and the town had not yet made any rebate in the case of houses, and could not see how it could. As one councillor said it would take a half a dozen of a staff to find out what residences were vacant and how long. In regard to the water rates in these cases, there did not seem to be any reason for granting a rebate. If the town had been notified of the vacancy, the rebate would have been given as a matter of course.

The necessary legal form was passed granting the Ontario Government the lease of a small strip of land behind the fire hall to be used for a building to be erected by the Government to house the equipment and supplies for the mine rescue station to be established here. The lease is for 99 years and the pay for same is $1,000, the town being glad to help in the establishment of the mine rescue station.

South Porcupine Young Man Killed at Sudbury

The Sudbury Star of Saturday last says:— "Apparently losing his balance while scaling, Enrico Frantini, a young Italian only recently arrived in the district from Porcupine, dropped 300 feet to instant death at the Creighton mine early yesterday morning. An inquest will be held in the course of next week, it was stated this morning. Two other men are said to have been working with Frantini, but neither saw him fall. They were all on the 3600-foot level of the mine and, when Frantini missed his step, he dropped through an ore pass to the 3,900-foot level. The body was brought to Ducharme's funeral parlors here, and the funeral arrangements will be made tonight, following the arrival in Sudbury of the deceased's father, who resides at South Porcupine and who has left for Sudbury. Coroner McKessock will conduct an inquiry into the fatality, probably on Wednesday or Thursday next, the date depending on the return to the camp of Mining Inspector Jarrett. The inspector yesterday visited the scene of the accident, but he is out of the district at present. Frantini was 24 years of age, and unmarried. He had been in the district but a short time, having come here from Porcupine, where he formerly had been employed."

Second Birthday Event at A. J. Shragge's Store

Starting last Friday, Sept. 6th, A. J. Shragge's store has been observing its second birthday here by a special anniversary sale. During the birthday sale, which is continuing all this week, special emphasis is being given the particular values on all fall and winter coats in the season's latest modes. The anniversary event is also being featured as it was last year by a handsome big birthday cake. As business has doubled over the previous year the birthday cake this year is double the size of last year. Every customer of the store is receiving a slice of the birthday cake and with this piece of cake goes the privilege of estimating the number of pebbles in the window scene at the store. The three coming closest to the correct number of pebbles win the following prizes:—first, $50.00 in merchandise; second, $25.00 in merchandise; third, $10.00 in merchandise. There have been a large number of estimates made. The judge of this contest will be Mr. C. G. Pirie, of The Advance.

OHIO MAN FINED AT NORTH BAY FOR ILLEGAL FISHING

A despatch from North Bay this week says that, charged with fishing without a license, J. A. Lambert, of Extonia, Ohio, Saturday at North Bay was fined $20 and costs by Police Magistrate Weegar. The case revealed one of the worst examples ever discovered by the local game and fisheries authorities. Lambert was taken in charge by Thos. Raycraft, local fish warden, who found the American at Franks Bay near the French River with no less than 300 pounds of fish in his possession. Most of the fish were in a condition of decay and when it was discovered that Lambert did not even have a license, he was brought to the city to face that charge. He was alone on his fishing expedition and most of the 87 fish which he had in his possession were pike. Besides imposing the fine, the court ordered that all Lambert's fishing equipment be confiscated.

ABOUT BEAUTIFUL GLADIOLI GROWN IN THIS NORTH LAND

The Barrie Examiner last week says: "In connection with the recent gladiolus show, it was stated that the farther north they are grown the better the gladioli. Concrete evidence of this was received by The Examiner this week when Alfred J. Carson of Halleybury brought into this office a dozen spikes good enough for any company. These were cut in his garden on Friday and after several days in hot weather still made a fine showing. Mr. Carson had a grocery on Elizabeth street a number of years ago, but for a number of years has been one of Halleybury's progressive businessmen. His hobby is floriculture, his special pets being "glads." He was sorry that his stock was not far enough advanced to make entries for the C. G. S. at Barrie but he had some consolation in winning the sweepstakes at the Halleybury flower show."
