WILL SHOW NORTHERN COAL DEPOSITS OF GREAT VALUE

Announcement that investigations being conducted by the Ontario Research Foundation may produce a cure for a cattle disease known as contagious abortion was made at Toronto Saturday by Premier G. Howard Ferguson in an address at the laying of the cornerstone of the new laboratories of the foundation. The Premier added the disease cost United States livestock breeders $50,000,000 a year.

"Our research officials are attacking this problem from a new angle and lead us to be optimistic as to the outcome of their investigation," said Mr. Ferguson.

Premier Ferguson also said that when a miniature smelting furnace and testing laboratory were built research experts would be able to discover a means of using Ontario low grade ore for use in the production of sponge iron and that tests they would carry out would show the great coal deposits uncovered in the north to be of tremendous value.

INDIAN CHIEF OF POLICE HURT IN MAKING ARREST

Sudbury Star—James Nootchtar, chief of police at the Naughton Indian reserve, is in St. Joseph's Hospital as the result of injuries received when he attempted to arrest John Neveoniquit. Chief Nootchtar had seen Neveoniquit early in the afternoon in Sudbury under the influence of liquor, had followed him to the reserve and when he attempted to arrest him the latter objected strenuously. It is said he threw the chief to the ground and with a sharp instrument of some sort, cut the officer across the upper lip and bruised him with his fists. When the chief began to get the upper hand Neveoniquit jumped in his car and disappeared. He was later arrested by provincial constable George Grassick and will be charged with assaulting a peace officer in the execution of his duty.

INITIAL SEARCH FOR LOST EXPLORERS IS UNAVAILING

Thought That Freeze-up May Delay Finding of Col. McAlpine and His Party in the Northern Barren Lands

Despatches received on Monday of this week from Winnipeg say:—

"The rock-girt barrens tonight still guard the mystery of the disappearance of eight aerial explorers who faded into the northern night 20 days ago. First reports from back-tracking airmen on the trail of the missing party told that no clues had been found at Beverley Lake, first stopping place of the lost flyers. From Baker Lake radio post, on an inlet off the west coast of Hudson Bay, Search Director Captain G. H. Blanchet sent a message last night to tell of initial failure in the hunt. With pilots Roy Brown and William Spence, he had found the first camping place of the lost octette after their take-off westward from Baker Lake on September 8; but no record had been left of the party's intended destination.

"Possibility of finding the missing party, commanded by Colonel C. D. H. McAlpine, president of Dominion Explorers, before the imminent freeze-up is remote, according to Captain Blanchet's radio message from Baker Lake. Until the winter season sets in and the northern lakes freeze over, search cannot be conducted in a systematic manner. The dreaded "in-between" season, bane of northern airmen, is almost at hand.

"Equipped with pontoons, which preclude possibility of landing except on open water, the cabin-planes of the Blanchet party attempted to proceed from Beverley Lake on the trail of the missing men. Heavy mists, snow flurries and low-hanging clouds balked them as they strove to surmount the height of the land south of Pelly Lake. Their goal—then the searchers turned and headed for Baker Lake whence they radioed their message of failure.

"As supplies of skis were being rushed to Baker Lake and Stoney Rapids, search base established at the extreme northeast and southwest corners of the barren lands, Captain Blanchet stood by at Baker Lake. If flying conditions improve the Blanchet party may streak into the northwest for Bathurst Inlet, trailing the lost McAlpine men. Otherwise—and the more probable contingency—the searchers will speed southwest to Stoney Lake, there to obtain skis and wait the arrival of winter.

"Meanwhile, another hope is rising for immediate discovery of the flying miners and their two machines. "Punch" Dickens, pride of Western Canada's northland aviators, is bound for Bathurst Inlet, a radio post on the distant rim of Canada's mainland and intended terminus of the western flight of the mining men. Mayhap Monday, and almost surely Tuesday, the Bathurst radio station will flash word of Dickens' arrival.

"Actually, there is an outside chance that Dickens may be the discoverer of the missing party en route to the distant inlet, though his approach is from the southwest. It is not impossible, air experts here believe, that the McAlpine crew may have spurned the roundabout water route to Bathurst and flown direct west from Pelly Lake—only to be lost in the barren vastness of the area Dickens is now traversing. "Punch" was to fly north from his Alberta post along the Mackenzie river, branching off over Great Bear lake to Bathurst.

"Communications from Bathurst late today indicated that Dickens had not reached his goal. His arrival was expected to be not unduly delayed as fog conditions in the Bathurst were reported today to have yielded to clearer weather.

"It was patent tonight that immediate chances of the discovery of Col. McAlpine and his seven companions rested between the two-plane Blanchet party at Baker Lake and the lone northern incursion of "Punch" Dickens to Bathurst. As the cold weather and the resultant freeze-up reaches Bathurst later than Baker, there was a chance that Dickens might be able to reconnoitre from the inlet after his arrival.

"Suggestion that members of the missing party might make a bid to walk out to the nearest post was advanced by air authorities today. It was pointed out that the McAlpine party carried guns, fish nets and provisions—enough to assure them food till late October. But mention was made that a couple of the men might easily decide to walk out, if for instance, the gasoline supply of the two planes became depleted.

"Favourable weather has hurried the "Ocean Eagle," Dominion Government boat, in its progress from Churchill, Hudson Bay port, to Chesterfield Inlet on the west coast of the bay. Captain J. Mack reported by wireless and radio to headquarters today. The "Ocean Eagle," which carries skis, gasoline, oil and provisions, will transfer its cargo to its companion boat, the "Neophyte," at the west extremity of the inlet. The "Neophyte" is to proceed west to Baker Lake, arriving, it is expected, on Thursday.

Montreal Star:—The late Mrs. John W. MacKay was none too fond of modern fashions. At a luncheon in New York one day she nodded towards a beautiful girl with bare arms, bare knees and so forth, then said grimly: "What wails would go up to heaven if it were poverty that made girls wear so few clothes."

High-Grade Samples From Week's Run of the Press

Huntingdon Gleaner:—There is an axiom that if a dog bites a man, that is not news, but, if a man bites a dog, it is a front page story. Therefore, it should be permissible to report a case where a dog fires a revolver and kills a man. It happened in Norington, England. Reginald W. Clark and his brother were watching some boys who they expected intended raiding their orchard. They were lying in the grass with their Alsatian dog fastened to a tree by a rope. Nearby was a loaded revolver. The dog got excited, started to run about and the rope caught into the revolver trigger. The bullet struck Clark and he died shortly after.

WRIGHT-HARGREAVES SAID TO BE MAKING GOOD PROFIT

Writing from Kirkland Lake a correspondent says that although operation of the mill on Wright-Hargreaves continues on a restricted scale of 400 to 450 tons daily, yet a moderate profit is being realized. Current output appears to be at a rate of about $1,500,000 per year, and with profits of between $300,000 and $400,000 indicated. While this performance does not suggest an early return to regular dividends, yet the treasury is being further strengthened. Considerable stress is being placed upon favourable developments in the upper levels, and with mention that work below 2,000 feet will not be pressed on a big scale at present yet the fact remains that any out-
