

ONTARIO WOMAN LAKE TO INCREASE DIAMOND DRILL

On the advice of the company's consulting engineer, L. K. Fletcher, who recently made a detailed examination of the group, Ontario Woman Lake Gold Mines will undertake an extensive diamond drilling campaign on their Medicine Rock property, M. C. Cowan, president of the company, has stated. This property, which comprises six claims, is situated in the channel between Woman and Narrow Lakes.

"The drills are now at the camp" Mr. Cowan said, "and the programme mapped out calls for the drilling of a series of holes along the vein for several hundred feet in an effort to locate the downward extension of the ore lenses. Should results from the campaign, which will take until Christmas to complete, prove favourable, a complete mining plant will be installed immediately and underground work commenced.

While the property itself is one of the first stakings in the section, the showing on which we are working was only discovered during July of this year. The veins have been opened up for a distance of 1,100 feet on the surface by means of deep test pits since that time. Sample assays were considered very encouraging.

"Work has been discontinued for the present on the 11 claims situated at the portage between the two lakes where surface work disclosed three veins on which diamond drilling has indicated favourable geology. We are now concentrating on our Medicine Rock property, and the main camp, supplies and equipment have been moved to this location.

"The company is well supplied with funds," he concluded, "and sufficient supplies have been taken in to last until well after the freeze-up."

While the Sudbury fire truck was returning last week from a false alarm call, a Frood Mines man drove his car into the truck. He became excited when he saw the approach of the truck and stepped on the accelerator instead of the brakes. The fire truck was slightly damaged. The man was taken in charge by a constable and while driving to the station he crashed into another truck. In police court he was fined $10.00 and costs for reckless driving and also had to pay for all damage done. The police were satisfied that both accidents were due to the Frood Mines man becoming unduly excited when he saw the approach of the fire truck and being unable to get his nerves settled down until after the second crash.

JUDGMENT GIVEN IN CASE OF HORSE DEAL ACTION

A horse deal was the basis of an action heard before Judge Hartman in non-jury district court sittings at Halleybury on Wednesday last, and in which W. D. Harris, of New Liskeard, got judgment for the full amount of his claim against Harry Lew Tong, Chinese restaurant keeper, of Halleybury. Tong, it was alleged by the plaintiff, had endorsed a note for Percy Hume, who bought the horses from Harris for $300. The defendant asserted there had been misrepresentation, while, for the plaintiff, it was claimed the animals had been sold on instruction from Tong's solicitor.

The case had been in division court on three occasions, being adjourned twice for various reasons before being finally thrown out by Judge Hayward on the ground there was no jurisdiction. It was then transferred to the district court. According to the evidence, Harris had sold the team to Hume for $300. Hume did not pay cash, and Tong signed what he claimed he understood was an agreement on his part to turn over money he would ordinarily pay to Hume for wood supplied to Harris in 12 instalments of $25 each. One load only, amounting in value to $19, was delivered, when the bailiff from New Liskeard, acting for Harris, seized the horses.

In the subsequent sale the animals fetched only $90, against which there were sundry expenses reaching to more than $60. Harris then started action against Tong to recover the balance. The horses were sold to Hume in August, 1928, and were seized by the bailiff about the end of the following month. The plaintiff alleged that Hume telephoned to Harris from Tong's place of business at Halleybury regarding the purchase of the team.

CANNOT RESUME HUNT FOR INFORMATION RE AIRMEN

McAlpine Party Searchers Waiting Now for Freeze-up. Report That Flying is Impossible Just Now.

The following telegram appeared last week in the despatches from Winnipeg—

"Expect to be flying in two weeks." Signalled today out of the radio post at Baker Lake, west of Hudson Bay. This message told of a long delay before a searching air fleet can soar away in quest of Colonel C. D. M. McAlpine, who vanished into the barrens 33 days ago with seven companions.

Two weeks of waiting remain until the rescue fliers can start their winter work.

The message came to search headquarters at Winnipeg from Andy Cruickshanks, who joined the air-hunt for McAlpine and his men three weeks ago from Prince George, B.C. It told of snow flurries in the vicinity of Baker Lake, located on the eastern fringe of the rock-and-tundra earth area; of ice formed solid over all of the smaller lakes; of the certain, but leisurely, approach of the freeze-up. Until the freeze-up arrives, flying is impossible.

"Exactly five machines from Baker Lake will conduct the early search for McAlpine as soon as winter weather gets in. It had been planned that three other machines would be despatched from Stoney Rapids, in far-north Saskatchewan, to Baker Lake to join in the flying hunt. Now, it is announced, the three machines will be held in readiness at Stoney.

"Five machines will conduct the search—and they will be the only ones," stated W. L. Brinnell, directing movements of the planes from Winnipeg.

"We are holding the other planes in reserve and they will wait at Stoney until they are ordered to move to Baker. The same applies to two Royal Canadian Air Force machines due to leave Ottawa for the West tomorrow. They are to be stationed at Cormorant Lake, near The Pas in Northern Manitoba, until they are needed elsewhere."

Cruickshanks' estimate of two weeks as the further duration of the current "in-between" season forecasts a somewhat more lengthy period of delay than had been anticipated. Officials at Winnipeg had believed that it might be safe for ski-equipped planes to venture over the barrens by the end of this week; meteorological authorities had considered that a pronounced cold snap was due in the north today or tomorrow which would assure solid ice for landing within a week.

Captain G. S. Blanchet's five-plane patrol, instructed to handle all preliminary searching as soon as freeze-up comes, is manned by Cruickshanks, Roy Brown, William Spence, H. Hollick-Kenyon and J. D. Vance—every

BURIED BY LOGS IN BLAST ESCAPES WITH HURT FINGER

With only a broken finger as the result of an accident near Sudbury Knute Sandstrom, of Sudbury, engaged in blasting operations, on Friday morning last crawled out from beneath a pile of logs a few minutes after they had tumbled high into the air by a blast.

Sandstrom, who was a which-man on the derrick, had walked to a hole filled with a charge of dynamite when it failed to go off the first time. While stooping over the wires used to ignite the cap of the charge were joined together and the explosion followed. Sandstrom was buried under the logs in a wide rock crevice.

After crawling out from under the log pile, he was examined by Dr. D. A. Campbell, who said that the man had only suffered a broken little finger on the left hand and a few minor scratches.

MAY FINANCE FURTHER WORK ON THE BOBBO MINES, LTD.

A meeting of the shareholders of Bobbo Mines Ltd. will be called this month, according to an official of the company. At this meeting a financial statement will be presented as well as a report covering the development completed before the property was shut down on Sept. 19. Before the property was closed down, M. B. Little, consulting engineer, made an independent report. He recommended further work underground. This was carried out and revealed two or three high-grade stringers, but nothing of importance was found. Reports were also made by P. D. Reid, Vice-President, and L. K. Fletcher, Managing Director. The company still has considerable cash in its treasury. There is said to be enough there to develop another property and an active search for one is now being prosecuted.
