South Porcupine Firemen Hold Fine Masquerade Ball

All Delighted with Event Last Thursday Night at South Porcupine. Many Fine Costumes. South Porcupine Band Playing Over Radio. Another Band Concert Sunday. Dome Directors Visit Camp. Other Interesting Items from South Porcupine Correspondent.

South Porcupine, Nov. 5th, 1929. made on Saturday with a willingness (at will put it over the best yet. Mrs. (Dr.) Barry has charge of the arrangements for South Porcupine district and it is likely that she will be aided by the Girl Guides, who helped so ably last year.

Mr. Otto Spiers, who has been ill for a month with rheumatic fever, is recovering, although slowly. It will still be some time before he is able to be around among his old friends again.

Messrs Paddy O'Shea and James Alexander have returned from the Red Lake district.

Mrs. Barry and Mrs. H. M. Martin entertained the bridge clubs at the Bluebird Tea Rooms on Thursday evening. It was a decided success, the ladies coming in costumes, many of which created much amusement. Miss Sullivan and Mrs. F. C. Evans were dressed as old-fashioned girls, Miss Shaw as a gypsy, Mrs. F. Clarke as a Chinese mandarin, Mrs. W. Johns was an old-fashioned lady of the day when ringlets reigned supreme, Mrs. Somerville was a baker, Mrs. D. MacPhail as a duke had as a companion, Mrs. Maxwell Smith, in striking representation of Hon. Howard Ferguson. Mrs. Martin was a pirate and the nigger wench who vociferously announced "Ise in town!" turned out to be Mrs. Barry. A group of small boys followed Police Officer Brooks (?) down town, while some of their older brothers dislodged gates, etc., but to their amazement the officer disappeared in Mrs. Martin's and seemed to enjoy the ladies' company so much that he stayed. However some of the older youngsters declared at the self-same moment Officer Brooks had been elsewhere. In fact, the whereabouts of Officer Brooks seemed to be a puzzling question to young celebrants of Hallowe'en. There were too many of him some thought. But it happened that he had just loaned one of his official outfits to Mrs. J. Ostrom for the bridge party. There were six tables of cards the winners being Mrs. MacLellan and Miss Sullivan, while Mrs. Kincaid and Mrs. LeForest had the consolation scores. Miss Shaw won the guests' prize. A very dainty lunch was served, little Misses Betty Martin and Phyllis and Norma Pamplin assisting the hostesses.

Hallowe'en passed off here with the usual amount of soap and noise on the part of the younger fraternity. Many of the windows in town have had a thorough washing without the owners having to buy any soap for them. There are one or two yet who have not found their gates. It is up to the boys now, who have had their fun to take a look around and see whether the gates are back or not. If not there would be just as much of a thrill got out of replacing it some of these fine nights and giving the owner a second surprise.

In the police court on Thursday last there were three drunks who paid the usual. The case of a person charged with being drunk in charge of a car was again remanded.

Mrs. E. Anthony has been on the sick list for the past week.

A large number in town appreciated the service put on at the Majestic theatre on Wednesday, election night. A telegraph system with an operator in charge was installed and between the reel of pictures shown, the latest telegraphic news of the elections was read out, Mr. C. V. Gallagher doing the announcing in the early part of the evening and Mr. H. M. Wilson making the later announcements, and at the close moving a vote of thanks to Mr. Fera for the service given.

The South Porcupine Fire Department held their annual masquerade ball on Hallowe'en night in the hall of the Continuation School. In spite of the fact that there is a gloomy aspect through so many being out of work at present, everyone forgot to be glum and helped to make merry with the others. Tommy Stephens' orchestra supplied the music. The flag pole outside was outlined in vari-coloured lights and there was a pleasing variety of electrical effects used in the hall. The attendance was exceptionally good making the dance a financial success as well as socially. Nearly everyone was in costume, a considerable number coming in from other parties at midnight. The winners for costume were: fancy dress, ladies, Miss Walker as Pochontas; gentlemen, Dr. Kinsman, as a minister; comic, ladies, Mrs. Rayner and Mrs. Hannaberry, as Mr. and Mrs. Who-the-Newly-Weds; gentlemen, Messrs J. MacDonald and J. Cowan, the rainy-day bum and the hungry Turk. Many other costumes were worthy of special mention, some not being in time for grand march after which the prizes were given. Miss MacNeil was an Egyptian Princess; Miss V. Morris wore a particularly striking costume representing the sun. Miss Thorburn, of Timmins, was the Pled Piper. Mrs. B. Longworth made a typical dark-eyed gypsy. Mrs. R. Cameron and Miss T. Burns were Scotch lassies. Mrs. S. Sky represented a Russian merchant's wife of the 18th century. Mrs. T. Lang, of Timmins, wore a beautiful Spanish costume while as a quaint maiden of the Victorian era Miss Eileen Hansen was very pretty. Mrs. T. Smith was a funny white cat. The men were an awe-inspiring conglomeration of escapade convicts, cooks, clowns, bums, professors and Indians with Pete Mill as a cowboy in chaps from the wild woolly west, ready to lasso any that got too far out of bounds. The firemen themselves looked epic and span in their uniforms and assiduously tried to see that everyone was having a happy time. After the lunch hour Reeve C. V. Gallagher read a letter of appreciation from Mr. J. H. Stovell, of the Dome Mines, voicing the appreciation of the Dome management for the gallant work of the South Porcupine fire brigade on the night of the burning of the Dome mill. A rousing cheer was the response to this letter of thanks.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Farrant are on a two weeks' vacation to his parental home in Toronto. Miss M. Farrant, who had been visiting her brother during the past week, returned home with them.

Mr. G. Clyne was a business visitor to town this week.
