Community Singing a Special Feature of Meeting Monday Evening, and "Clementine" an Extra Special Among the Songs

The Timmin's Kiwanis Club held heir weekly meeting on Monday evenng at 6.30 instead of at the luncheon hour, the evening meeting being desirable because of the annual election of officers. The officers elected for he ensuing term were as follows:-

President-Karl Eyre. Vice-president-Jack Walker. Treasurer-Geo. N. Ross. District Trustee-V. Woodbury. Directors-Geo. Lake, A. T. H. Tayor and Reg. Smith. The secretary for the ensuing term will be elected by the directors. For Monday evening's session President W. Rinn occupied the chair and carried the proceedings with his usual

A special feature of the meeting was the community singing, and an extra special feature of the singing was the evised and modernized version of "Clementine," which was sung with particularly deep feeling in spots by some of the Kiwanis. This song, to the old favourite tune of "Clementine," was worded as follows:---Clementine-Telephoned the blooming market Every morning just at nine. Bought a big block of Noranada 'Cause she thought it was a mine.

-Chorus-Oh, your money! oh, your money! Oh, your money, Clementine! It is lost and gone forever! Awful sorry Clementine.

-Repeat Chorus-Got a message from her broker That more margin was in line. She got turned down by her banker; Lost her shirt in the decline.

-Chorus-Now she's broke and lost her money Matrimony I decline. When she was rich I sure did love her. Dreadful sorry, Clementine. -Chorus-

BY DIVISIONAL COURT

H. E. Harcourt, Who Was Found Guilty Last June is Acquitted by Finding of Higher Court at Toronto This Week.

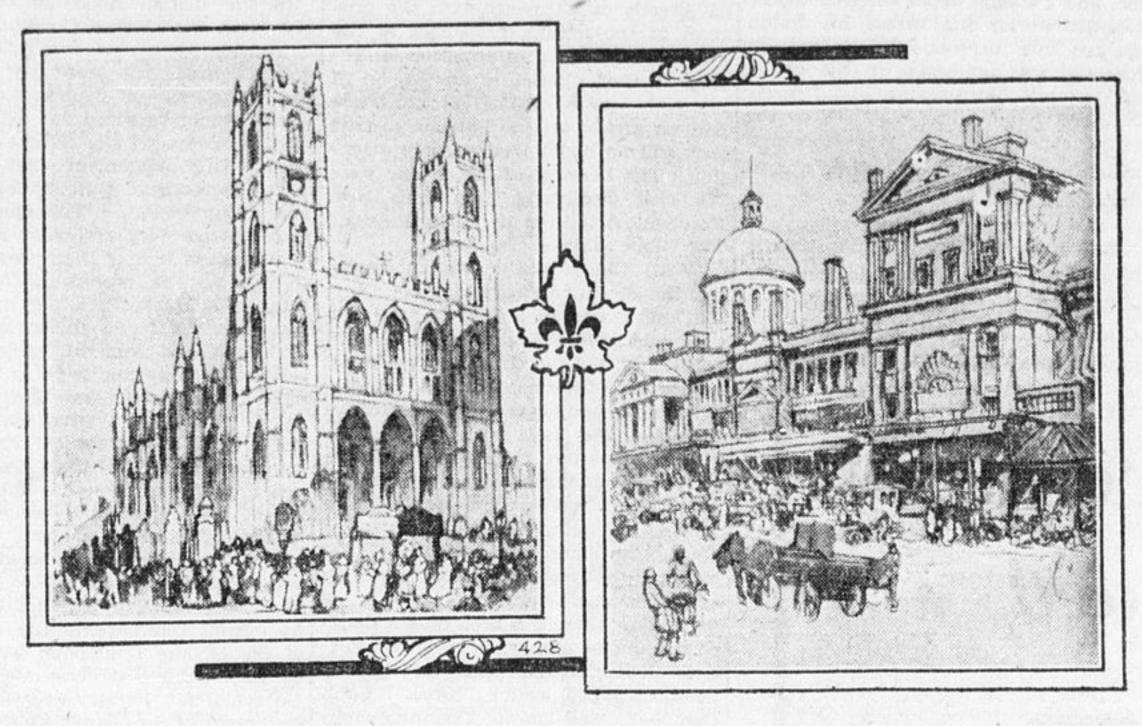

Despatches this week from Toronto say that the First Divisional Court at Osgoode Hall on Monday quashed the conviction of Harry E. Harcourt who was found guilty on June 26 last on a charge of unlawfully making, circulating, publishing or concurring in false statements relative to Jackson Manion Mines, of which he was managing director. It was charged he knew these documents to be false in material particulars with a view of inducing persons to become shareholders or with intent to defraud shareholders or creditors.

Justice Mddleton, who writes the judgment for the court, says the whole course of proceedings was to fix guilt upon the accused on the theory that he must have known the information received from the mine manager was unreliable.

Justice Middleton points out that "a man may honestly misrepresent-that is to say, he may state as true something he believes to be true. If he has given a warranty or entered into a civil contract founded on the assertion of the fact in question, he may be liable in a civil action to be defeated, but that would not be sufficient for the present purpose. Here you must be satisfied that that which is alleged to have been misrepresented was known to the defendants to be false, and in acting upon that knowledge and with deliberate intent to deceive and defraud he did that which is alleged to have constituted the criminal offence for which he is now on his trial." "His crime is his guilty knowledge and nothing else," continued His Lordship. "He is charged with personal dishonesty and you must be able to affirm that by evidence before convicting him." He finds "Harcourt was not a criminal because he accepted and believed the information given him by Thompson (the mine manager)."
