Nationwide Network of Willys-Overland Dealers

With its nationwide network of dealers, distributors and authorized service stations, the Willys-Overland Company has one of the largest and most efficient organizations in the automotive industry serving the four major price classes. Every station is equipped to render service on cars from the lowest price class, represented by the Whippet Four, to the luxury car class, in which the Willys-Knight Great Six dominates.

To facilitate the handling of replacement parts, hundreds of parts distributing stations are operated through the factory branches and distributors. These distributing stations are located at strategic points, thus guarding against unnecessary delay when replacement parts are needed.

The vast Willys-Overland dealer organization, with modern, fully equipped service stations in every section, has proved a great aid to tourists who find they are never more than a short distance from some factory representative.

All employees in the service departments of Willys-Overland's dealer organization are thoroughly schooled in the type of workmanship necessary to render expert service to motor car owners. Special training courses have been worked out by the service department at the factory, and are made part of the working equipment of the dealer organization.

Traveling service men conduct schools for the service and sales departments in all parts of the country and give special courses to salesmen in order that they may be thoroughly versed in

He said he was feeling 'off colour' and would start the Kruschen habit next day. I always recommend Kruschen Salts."

WHERE TO FIND ONE OF THE McDONOUGH'S IN ROUYN

This one is from The Northern Miner, and will be of interest in this part of the North where so many of the McDoughs are so well known and popular. The Northern Miner says:—

"This yarn is blasted on Jack Croteau, well-known Swastika prospector. Everyone knows that the McDough brothers—seven, count 'em, seven—were very active in staking in the Rouyn district in the early days. Anyone walking over the freshly-staked townships during the winter of 1922-23 found a great preponderance of McDough claims, and one could easily get the impression that there were dozens of the family in the area. Croteau apparently had this experience. On the way out to Dane, across country, he met an engineer on his way in to examine one of the groups staked by the ubiquitous brothers. The two travellers met near the boundary of Boischatel and Rouyn townships and, of course, stopped to chat. The engineer, a stranger in the country, asked Jack how to find the McDoughs in Rouyn. Jack said: "If you follow this trail for two miles you will come to a creek which is on the township boundary. From there on shake every brush pile you come to and there will be either a jack rabbit or a McDough pop out."

Why Was it Necessary to Kill the Poor Bear?

Thinking people must regret the regular mania some folks have for slaughtering wild animals. They see a bear, a moose, a deer, a mink, or any other of the wild things of the woods or streams and their first reaction is to attempt to use a club or a gun to kill the animal that they have seen. Most of the animals of the woods are harmless under normal conditions. There is a bear, for instance, that has made his habitat on a settler's farm up the river for some three years past, and he is viewed only as a fellow of great interest and a most amusing denizen of the woods. The settler encounters the bear quite frequently, but the bear is a much faster-moving object at these meetings than the man. Indeed, the settler does not fear the bear, but would like to make friends with him. Likely, he will succeed. In any event the bear is harmless and unobtrusive, so why murder him? That is the way the settler in question looks upon it, and it appears to be a good way.

There was a bear frequenting a camp near Sudbury recently and the men had a lot of fun from this animal. Eventually, the animal was shot, on the plea that he was threatening to become vicious and so might be a danger to life or safety. There was no doubt full excuse for shooting that bear near Sudbury, but what excuse can be given for the destruction of another bear near North Bay a week or so ago. According to the despatches the murder of the bear at Diver was a piece of business that may well make men ashamed of themselves. Listen to what the despatches from North Bay says:—"A sleepy brown bear, an insomniac or one that had become mixed up in his dates and was looking for his shadow, met an untimely end in a lumberman's camp near Diver on the T. and N. O., when he was suddenly appointed with a woodsman's axe. Bruin walked up to the camp with the air of one who had had a bad night and was only partially awake. When he was near the cookery, one of the employees noticed him and on observing his condition walked up to it and fondled it affectionately. The bear seemed to like the treatment and stood as in a trance. The bushman departed only to reappear a few moments later with an axe. After patting it again the man swung his trusty axe and the lights suddenly went out for Mr. Bear, never to re-appear.

Apparently, the bear was harmless and inoffensive. A bear that could be "fondled affectionately" by a man could easily be "shoo-ed" away from a camp. Probably, left alone the bear would have wandered off itself without troubling anybody. Certainly to read that the woodsman "reappeared a few moments later with an axe," and "after patting the bear again" swinging his axe and killing the inoffensive animal, does not make anyone feel very proud of that bushman. If bears could talk they might be pardoned for saying uncomplimentary things about the sportsmanship, judgment and fairness of men.

A Cake and Pastry Expert says:

"Since Purity is a strong, rich flour, with great expanding qualities use 1 tablespoon less per cup if your cake recipe calls for ordinary pastry or soft wheat flour. If it calls for milk, use half milk and half water (lukewarm) with Purity."

New Recipe for Flaky Pie Crust
For two pie shells use 2 cups Purity Flour, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup shortening ½ cup cold water. Mix flour and salt, cutting in the shortening until the mixture is like fine meal. Mix thoroughly with the water. Roll out thin, keeping it quite dry. For extra rich pastry use half butter and half lard.

Burns has been transferred from Cobalt to Kirkland Lake, to take over the place held by Constable Stringer.

Simcoe Reformer—Much ado followed the refusal of a request to permit an inmate of Kingston Penitentiary to visit his dying father in Hamilton. It was apparently a case for poignant sympathy, but if every prisoner were to be released to go to the bedside of dying relatives, no end of trouble might ensue.

Huntingdon Gleaner—William J. Palmer was walking along the streets of Chicago early last Sunday morning. Two men stopped him and demanded five dollars to which he replied: Listen lads. Five dollars is a heap of siller and I ken I need it more than ye do. I'll no gie it up. To this they did not agree and decided to drag the Scot to an alley and beat him up. However, Palmer had his own opinions and smacked one fellow on the nose and he hit the sidewalk with a bump. The other decided he did not want a blow like that, so fled. Palmer then sat down on the fallen fellow and waited until a policeman came along who removed the man to the police station. At the station Palmer explained he only had five dollars.

"When we are married Why, what will you do?"

MODERN WOMAN has every right to ask this question of the man who wishes to marry her.

When a man marries, he gives up nothing. The woman, possibly, gives up a comfortable home, a good job and a certain economic independence. What is her compensation? Very possibly she becomes a hard working wife and mother, without pay. If death comes riding and gathers up the husband, she may be left with the care and financial worry of a young family.

It's well to give presents to a bride, but many a bridegroom might better give his bride a Life Insurance Policy for a few thousand dollars. Such a gift is the true measure of his intention to provide — until death — and beyond.
