GRAVEL AND SAND—AND PLACER

It was Shakespeare who made one of his characters say that the evil that men do lives after them. In the same way the evil effects of ill-advised laws are seen even after the laws in question are removed from the statute books. One of the evils growing up under the Ontario Temperance Act was that of using canned heat for beverage purposes. Some men who tried this form of alcoholic stimulant found the objectionable stuff eventually quite suitable to their needs. After a course of drinking canned heat ordinary liquor lacks the "kick" that the confirmed victim of the canned heat variety demands. As a consequence of this the police recently have been troubled by some of these canned heat drinkers. They are all elderly men, who apparently drifted into the practice years ago. It is true that the most of them will not long survive their practice of drinking this adulterated beverage. It is equally true that young men do not acquire the canned heat habit, with good liquor available. Accordingly the canned heat habit and the canned heat artists will soon die, but in the meantime they are a nuisance. When the police find a wild and vicious drunk or one that appears sick physically or mentally or both they are practically sure it is a case of the native wines or the canned heat curse. It would be well if something could be done to curb the sale of some of these wines and of the canned heat. The latter is obtainable by anyone with fifteen cents. In the depths of this winter there were men buying it in quantities though the prevalence of stove fires in the cold weather made its use most improbable for any proper purpose. Canned heat drunks are the worst type. The stuff completely undermines the constitution of the drinker. There is no possible excuse for its use, and if some plan to curb its sale could be evolved it would be a good thing indeed.

At the present time a canvass is in active progress to secure funds for the carrying on of the work of the District of Cochrane Children's Aid Society. The last public appeal said that the public is being unnecessarily bothered in regard to the financing of the work. Every year literally hundreds of children are helped through the Children's Aid work. Youngsters whose homes are such as to prejudice their tance will be extended at this time.

This week The Advance is in receipt of a long letter with no other signature than "A Reader" The writer of this letter can scarcely be "A Reader" of The Advance, or else always reaches the wrong animal. It is very seldom, indeed, he reads without any understanding. Literally scores of times The Advance has emphasized the fact that anonymous contributions are given no notice in any reputable newspaper. Only last week The Advance referred at some length to a letter received, to which no signature was appended. Time and time again, with more or less patience it has been explained that to receive publication or even must be known to a newspaper. During the course of any severe punishment should be meted out for the risk taken year The Advance receives many of these anonymous letters. in placing out poison should be apparent to all.

At the present time there seems to be a regular epidemic of them. Again it is noted here that The Advance has never wasted time or attention upon anonymous letters. It may not be out of place, however, to call the attention of the anonymous letter-writers to the fact that if they have not the courage to even mention their names confidentially in regard to matters that they pretend to know about, they are certainly unfair in expecting a newspaper to shoulder the responsibility, unsight and unseen. Letter-writers must know the rule by this time. They must give their names, "not necessarily for publication, but as an evidence of good United States ... $3.00 per year faith." If they can not do that it must be admitted they have little faith in their own writings. In passing it may be said that the average anonymous letter-writer would certainly weep bitter tears if he could see his letter in print over his own name.

So general has been the complaints in regard to the abuse of firecrackers in town in past years that the town council some weeks ago decided not to license the sale of fireworks here. This decision was reversed at a later meeting of council, but it would be well for all concerned to note the strenuous objection made to the abuse of firecrackers. If the evils of past years are repeated this year there is every reason to believe that public opinion will force the council to refuse licenses another year. In the last year or two the abuses in regard to firecrackers have assumed ridiculous proportions. One practice has been for over-grown louts to stand on street and throw lighted firecrackers at the heels of passers-by. On some occasions the silk stockings of the ladies have suffered as a consequence and on all occasions the nerves of the public have been rasped. Another game of the louts has been the throwing of lighted fire-crackers into automobiles, with consequent danger of damage. One half-wit last year actually threw a lighted firecracker into a baby carriage, with the result that the unfortunate infant was thrown into hysterics and the mother was almost in as bad condition. Other supposedly sane young men found a delight on at least one occasion in tossing lighted firecrackers into the Goldfields theatre while a show was in progress. If these things are to continue this year there is no doubt that public opinion will be so roused that the sale of firecrackers will be forbidden altogether in town. It has been admitted this year that the dealers are entitled to consideration and that those who act sanely also have their rights, but a carnival of idiocy in regard to the use of firecrackers along the lines of the senseless annoyance and danger of ly esteemed mining engineer, who passpast years will bring forcibly to the front the fact that the safety and comfort of the public is the first consideration. No one wishes to interfere with either youngsters or adults in any harmless celebration, but those who celebrate should remember that the public are entitled to consideration and people who use the streets lawfully have rights that no rowdy should be allowed to take away. If the firecrackers are used sensibly and decently this year everyone will be pleased for funds for this work was made in 1928, so it cannot be but if former abuses are repeated it will in all probability be the last year until the rowdies are civilized.

Cases are reported in town of dogs being poisoned. Last week two dogs belonging to P. J. O'Neill met death in this chances in life are benefitted through the efforts of the way. The dogs were only away from the house for a few C. A. S. If possible influence is brought to bear to have minutes before they were poisoned. It was apparent that the homes improved. If this is impossible, better homes poison had been left out within the reach of animals—and are secured for the children. Sick and crippled children are children, it should be added. At Kirkland Lake recently a helped to health and strength. Children who have fallen youngster died from poisoning and many at Kirkland Lake foul of the law find a good friend in the C. A. S. superin- believe that the little tot met death from poison placed out the funeral and the large number of tendent. The neglected and dependent child has surety of to catch stray dogs. Surely, no sane person will place out floral tributes testified to the esteem home and friends in the Children's Aid Society. "A fair poison and thus take a chance of causing the death of little in which the late Mr. Symons was held chance for every child," is the motto of the Children's Aid children. Yet this is the chance that has to be taken by by all who knew him and the deep Society. "A fair chance for the C. A. S." might well be the placing out poison whether it is intended for dogs or othermotto for the public in this present campaign. The public wise. Youngsters have a habit of picking up things and have given the most generous support to the work in the testing them in their mouths. Usually the habit leads to past and there is every confidence that the same good assis- little harm, but if poison is spread around a great danger is created. This fact is recognized by the law, very heavy penalties being imposed for the placing out of poison within the reach of animals or children. The chief trouble with the placing out of poison lies in the fact that the poison nearly that the stray cur succumbs to poison placed out. Usually the victim is some harmless animal that just happens for once to be away from home for a few minutes. In Kirkland Lake and other towns of the North during the past few months a number of valuable and prized dogs have met death from poison. At least one little child met a similar fate according to common belief. The record is a sad one attention at all in any serious way the identity of the writer and if the poisoner or poisoners could be brought to book

The North Land lost one of its best The late T. A. Jamieson was one of known and most popular old-time prospectors in the death of T. A. Jamieson on Friday morning.. passed away while being brought by ally known. He had spent practically dog team from Kamiskotia to Timmins for medical attention. On Tuesday morning of last week Mr. Jamieson went out by airship to Kamiskotia to work on his claims there, intending to return in about ten days by dog team. He reached his camp on Tuesday in safety and that evening Mr. and Mrs. Billy Leclaire dropped in to see him. Finding him to be unwell they stayed all night so that in case he proved to be seriously ill they could attend to him. On Wednesday morning he was apparently quite ill, having pains in the chest and otherwise evidencing serious illness. By Thursday he was quite evidently very ill and Mr. and Mrs. Leclaire decided to bring him into Timmins for medical treatment. On Friday at daybreak Billy Leclaire and his wife had the patient warmly wrapned and as comfortable as possible on > the oldest and most popular of the prospectors of this section of country. Everybody liked "Bert," as he was usuall of recent years in prospecting in this district, specializing in the Kamiskotia area where he had a number of very promising claims. He was a genial, gentlemanly man and had hosts of friends. The late T. A. Jamieson was about 40 years of age. He went to France with the first Canadian Division in 1914 and gave notable service in the war. He was gassed at St. Julien. He is survived by a widow and two young children in Toronto and the sincerest sympathy of all goes out to these in their loss and to the other near relatives and friends bereaved. Two brothers live in the Porcupine camp, one being George Jamieson, the noted prospector whose discoveries in Kamiskotia were responsible for most of the interest in that camp, and Elwyn Jamieson, of South Porcupine, the wellknown hockey coach and manager. Mr. T. A. Strain, of South Porcupine, another active prospector in this camp, is an uncle of the late T. A. Jamieson. The body was taken to Toronto on Sunday's train for interment there.

FIGURES TALK

(Port Arthur News Chronicle) Figures talf, but strange is their talk sometimes. By grouping a number of communities the attempt is made to prove that there was a material reduction in the number of fatal accidents in Ontario last year, as compared with the two previous years. But actually there was an increase in the the dog sleigh and started for Timmins number of this class of accidents last by the trial.
