JOSEPH SMITH IMPROVING AT THE COCHRANE HOSPITAL

Joseph Smith, who was found some weeks ago alongside the railway track at Cochrane with his skull fractured on a leg broken in several places, and other injuries, and who was scarce expected to survive, is now making good progress to recovery at the Lady Minto hospital at Cochrane. Ever when hopes were first entertained that he might recover, it was feared that he would lose one leg which had been fractured in several places, but latest reports from Cochrane are to the effect that the limb will be saved. The recovery of Smith under the circumstances is a notable tribute to the hospital and doctors at Cochrane and also to the vitality and stamina of the injured man. When Smith was picked unconscious in the T. & N. O. yard he was thought to be fatally injured. It was not known then who he was or how he came by his injuries. Later he recovered consciousness, but could throw little light on the accident, further than to say that he had been "beating his way" in a search for work and that he remembered nothing after having some drinks with an acquaintance in the bush near Cochrane. It is believed that he received his injuries while attempting to board a moving train at the Cochrane yards.

EVIDENCE AT INQUEST INTO DEATH OF KALLE PUKKI

Authorities Learn That Pukki and Ole Maki had Frequent Quarrels. Stabbing Follows Drinking Bout, It is Said.

Elsewhere in this issue will be found a report of the death of Kalle Pukki at Englehart hospital from a knife wound in the abdomen, said wound being alleged to have been inflicted by Ole Maki, a fellow worker at the lumber camp near Krugersdorf where the stabbing took place. Readers of The Advance may be interested to read of the inquest held into the death of Pukki. This inquest was held at Englehart on Saturday and one report from Cobalt gives the following summary of the proceedings:—

Liquor inflamed passions are believed to have been responsible for the tragedy at Myer's lumber camp, seven miles from Englehart, and which resulted in fatal injuries to Kalle Pukki, 30-year-old Finn, allegedly at the hands of a compatriot, Ole Maki, now being hunted by provincial police on a charge of murder. Investigations by Inspector W. T. Moore, of district headquarters here, have revealed the existence, it is said, of hard feelings between the men for two weeks prior to the stabbing affray which cost Pukki his life. Evidence at the opening session of the inquest at Englehart on Saturday afternoon suggest that a pay-day carousal had preceded the fatal clash.

Pukki died in the Red Cross nursing outpost at Englehart on Friday evening from hemorrhages, according to Dr. W. M. Martyn, who attended the victim, and who swore to Dr. J. C. McCullough and his coroner's jury that Pukki was in a state of intoxication when he first treated him shortly after the stabbing. Roye Wilder, youthful employee of a local firm also testifying at the inquest, said Pukki had assaulted a man he had driven out to the camp from Englehart, and who was drunk at the time. This individual, although not named by Wilder, is alleged to be Maki. The proceedings were adjourned for a week to summon other witnesses.

Thursday was pay-day at the camp, and a number of men were in Englehart cashing their cheques. According to Wilder's story, he drove two men from Englehart to the camp, by way of Wawkeewa, in the evening. Immediately on arrival at the Myer's place Wilder said, Pukki had approached the intoxicated man in his car and had enquired, apparently, regarding a bottle the passenger was supposed to have brought with him for Pukki. The latter struck the other man and a general melee followed, after which Pukki was placed in Wilder's car by two other men, the automobile then being driven down the road, where Dr. Martyn, who had been making a call in the neighborhood, was met.

Wilder brought Pukki to Englehart, together with the foreman of the camp, named Polnik, and another man, and on the drive in he had been told by the last named individual about the missing bottle of liquor. At the hospital, Dr. Martyn had treated Pukki who passed a fairly good night, but on Friday the wounded man became worse, and a blood transfusion, given after consultation with Dr. Roy Smith, was followed by an exploratory operation.

Pukki rallied temporarily but later "seemed to gradually snuff out," Dr. Martyn said. To Crown Attorney F. L. Smiley, K.C., Dr. Martyn said, "It would be a very large knife that would cause such a wound. Pukki was a very big man, with a thick abdominal wall, and it would require a blow of very considerable force, to inflict the injuries found internally," Dr. Martyn added.

The fight at the camp happened about 7.45 p.m. Thursday, Wilder estimated, and apparently Maki left soon after, accompanied by another man. Police information was to the effect that he had gone in the direction of Round Lake, across country, where there are a number of camps, and he had a night's start before the authorities got on to his trail. Inspector Moore was at the camp during Friday, and he learned, he said that Pukki, a "White" Finn, and Maki of the "Red" group, had not been on the best of terms for probably two weeks.

After the police had been notified of the stabbing, enquiries were started by Sergeant George Delves, of headquarters here, leaving for the Round Lake section on Sunday morning early, while police at other centres were notified and all trains carefully watched.

Pukki made no ante-mortem statement, although he had talked in Finnish to the man who accompanied him to the hospital, and who translated to him the suggestion of Drs. Martyn and Smith regarding an operation, to which he had agreed. Pukki, had been three years in Canada, while Maki, who is about 34 years of age, had been living in different parts of Northern Ontario, the police say, locating at Cochrane before coming to the Myer's camp about a month ago.

There were probably 38 or 40 men at the camp when the fight started. Wilder said at the inquest.

Recent issues of Toronto newspapers carried half-tone photos of Dan W. Lang, who is the newly-elected president of the Lawyers' Club in Toronto. Sir William Muirlock being the honorary president of the organization. Mr. Dan W. Lang is a brother of A. W. Lang, of Timmins, and of Col. Mac Lang, former member for this riding in the provincial house and more recently member for South Temiskaming in the Federal house.

Harold Lloyd Portrays Part of Comic Bookworm

It is a long time since motion picture fans have seen the popular Harold Lloyd in this part of the country, and there is little doubt but that this able and gentlemanly comedian with his clean and mirth-provoking screen work will be welcomed here on Wednesday and Thursday of next week, July 2nd and 3rd, in the talkie, "Welcome Danger," at the Goldfields theatre, Timmins.

What does a "book worm" look like? Sounds like an easy question, but Harold Lloyd had a hard time stalking one to his lair. Lloyd believes that the best way to put sincerity of character into his roles is to study the character he is portraying.

Lloyd even frequented the Los Angeles city library in the hopes of finding a typical book lover, but his hunt was fruitless. Finally Lloyd concocted his character from a number of personal experiences.

The clothes he wears in "Welcome Danger" are very simple. Shirt with very low collar. Hat that was steamed out of shape, up in front and back. Golf coat and vest, grey tweed, Windsor tie, white pants, about three years old, narrow at the cuff.

"Welcome Danger" is the first Lloyd comedy in over a year and a half. In this picture he is the peace-loving son of an illustrious father whose very name drove deep fear into the hearts of the most dangerous demons of the underworld. Lloyd finally is aroused and proceeds to imitate his father in the funniest manner you can imagine!

MAN HAS NARROW ESCAPE WHILE WALKING ON TRACKS

The warning shouts of the conductor of a passing train, combined with the prompt action of Moorman Hilton Brown in reversing his car, saved Dan Sullivan, North Cobalt resident, from certain death under the wheels of a Nipissing Central street car on Thursday afternoon. Sullivan was walking north along the street car tracks near Argentine, and was so intent, apparently, upon watching the southbound Continental Limited on the adjoining T. & N. O. rails that he did not observe the Nipissing Central car travelling parallel with the train and approaching him at a fair speed. Conductor "Paddy" Jessup aroused Sullivan to his peril with a shout from the train and Brown, motorman on the car, threw the latter into reverse, stopping within three feet of Sullivan as the latter jumped to one side.

WHERE SOME OF THE ROAD MONEY FOR THE NORTH GOES

In the current issue of The Eganville Leader there is an editorial note in which sarcastic reference is made to the request by A. F. Kenning, M.L.A. for more money for roads for this part of the North. The item in The Leader will remind many that the North Land is charged up with quite an amount of money for roads that are not anywhere near the North Land. For years past, for instance, old-settled portions of Renfrew County have been receiving thousands of dollars each year for roads. This is charged up under the heading of colonization roads but in the general opinion of the people of the south it is included in the money spent in Northern Ontario. Renfrew County has been settled so long that the ordinary living man does not remember when it was pioneered. It would have to be a man living in Renfrew County who could justify the expenditure of money in Renfrew County under the heading of "Northern Development" or "Colonization." Money spent in Renfrew County, Muskoka and other southern Ontario areas should not be charged against the North Land either in the public opinion or on the books of the province. If the province wishes to give money to rural roads in Old Ontario it would be well to do this openly and not have it appear as part of the grants to "colonization" or the North.

A large sum of money has also been expended on the Ferguson highway south of North Bay and this has been charged up also to the North Land, at least in the public mind. The section of country south of Northern Bay was settled long before there was any North Land settlement as at present and it does not seem fair to have money spent in these southern areas, whether it be Renfrew County, Muskoka, or near Orillia.

In raised gold letters there appears on the front of the new post office building the name "Timmins." There was much interest last week shown by passers-by in watching the workmen affixing the gold letters to the face of the stone front. There was double interest when one letter, an "M"—was put on upside down, and for a minute or two there was wonder as to what the word was going to be. Practically or two there was wonder as to what the word was going to be. Practically everybody in town, except the workmen, noticed almost at once that the letter "M" has been placed upside down. Eventually the error was noted by those concerned and the letter was taken off and put back in place right side up with care.

At a meeting of the Cobalt public school board last week it was decided that hereafter the school teachers there should pay their own superannuation rates. Previously, the board has been paying this fee for the individual teachers at the school, but it has been decided that this is not fair to the ratepayers and so the teachers themselves will have to look after the payments for superannuation.

The Englehart Times last week says: "Miss Lillian Ward of Timmins, is spending a short holiday visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Ward."

Peterborough Examiner:—When motoring conditions permit most people not only travel everywhere by automobile but they ship their freight and livestock by truck, letting the railways hold the bag and carry the mail, while the business that would give them a profit goes elsewhere. And yet when these conditions result in the operation of any particular train or trains becoming too costly to be maintained, the residents of the section affected immediately set up an outcry at the service being cut off, forgetting that themselves, by the diverting of business to some other mode of transportation, have contributed largely to the necessity of the proposed curtailment. It is too much to expect the Canadian railways to maintain service at a loss for the benefit of people who do not reciprocate.
