SUPPORTING ASSOCIATED BOARDS OF TRADE STAND

The New Liskeard Speaker last week says:—"Since our last issue—and, we must confess very much to our surprise—Cobalt has decided to send delegates to the "compromise" meeting which it is proposed to hold at North Bay in connection with the trans-Canada highway. This decision was adopted at a meeting in that town which was attended by the President of the Temiskaming and Cochrane Districts Associated Boards of Trade. So, it would appear that Timmins, Kapuskasing and New Liskeard are the only towns in the North to stand solidly behind the resolution unanimously passed at Cochrane in support of the Ferguson highway as the Northern Ontario contribution to the trans-Canada highway; and we are old-fashioned enough to believe that standing behind that resolution was the only consistent course we could pursue."

To what The Speaker says it may be added that The Advance understands that Hearst and Matheson and other boards of trade represented at the Cochrane meeting of the Associated Boards of Trade are also standing by the well-considered action of the Cochrane meeting. As The Speaker says "Standing by the resolution was the only consistent course." The matter was very carefully and very fully considered at the Cochrane meeting and since that time there has not been a single fact or theory produced that was not worked to the limit at Cochrane. The only known difference between the situation now and at the time of the Cochrane meeting might be described in the words of modern youth by saying that someone has been feeding the president of the Associated Boards what is scientifically known as "apple sauce" and he has swallowed a little too much of the same. Then, with his well-known eloquence he has been able apparently to convince three or four of the boards of trade of this part of the North Land that "apple sauce" is the food of the gods. It may be said, how-a very sustaining diet for this North Land. The Associated Boards of Trade disregarded the "apple sauce" at the Cochrane meeting just as they refused to be influenced by the veiled threats of political influence. The boards of trade at that Cochrane meeting studied the matter carefully and came to the conclusion that the logical route for the trans-Canada highway through this North was by way of the Ferguson highway. This was the cheapest, the easiest to build, the quickest to build, and would help the most of the North, at the same time offering the incidental advantages of scenery, game and fish, and other attractions for tourists. At the same time it was evident to the meeting that effort was being made on the plea of "compromise" to euhre this part of the North into throwing its weight with one or other of the rival factions in Northwestern Ontario. It was seen that for the Associated Boards to endorse any "compromise" was to defeat the chances of the Ferguson highway being on the trans-Canada route as well as approving a route that was not the best from the patriotic standpoint. The Associated Boards by unanimous vote endorsed the Ferguson highway route. Since then not a single fact or theory has been brought forward to warrant any charge of opinion. Standing behind the resolution is the only consistent, logical, fair, patriotic, or sensible course.

SETTLERS ARE WARNED TO HAVE ALL HORSES TESTED

Agricultural Representative for Cochrane District Reports on Recent Tests in Regard to Swamp Fever and Other Diseases of Horses.

During the past couple of years The Advance has had a number of articles in reference to the deaths of horses owned by settlers in the district. While many settlers in this immediate area have lost horses from a more or less mysterious disease or diseases, still more serious losses have been experienced by the settlers in other sections, particularly around New Liskeard and in the neighbourhood of Cochrane. The loss to the settlers at Brower, near Cochrane, was so serious through the death of their horses that the Ontario Government sent an expert, Prof. Schofield, of the Ontario Agricultural College, to investigate and report. The first report of Prof. Schofield suggested that the horses were dying from swamp fever. Reference was made to this report in The Advance some weeks ago. A further report on the matter was made by Prof. Schofield recently. Writing to D. J. Pommerleau, the district representative for the Dept. of Agriculture for the District of Cochrane, Prof. Schofield said:—

"You will be interested to know that the horses injected with blood secured from supposed cases of swamp fever, on Nov. 12 died, 17 days after the injection was made. Fifteen cubic centimeters of blood was used in the inoculation. This was composed of five c.c. from each of the acute cases which we observed when in Cochrane. Our experimental animal showed a slight rise in temperature for about one week before death. Typical symptoms of acute swamp fever were also typical."

When Prof. Schofield was in the Cochrane district some weeks ago the request was made that a veterinary agent to the district by the Dept. of Agriculture to help combat the disease or diseases that was causing such heavy losses to settlers through the death of their horses. This request was endorsed by Mr. Pommerleau, district representative of agriculture. Mr. Pommerleau now has issued a warning to all settlers to buy only horses that have been given a blood test for swamp fever and other diseases. It has been claimed that swamp fever is quite prevalent among the horses imported here on occasion from the West, and if the blood tests are used the settlers can thus avoid the purchase of infected animals that would otherwise be bought only to die on their hands later.

LIVE BUTTERFLY OFFERED TO GOOD HOME AT ORILLIA

Perhaps the people of Orillia think they have a record in butterflies, but that is not so. Some three or four years ago A. J. Downie then on the staff of works at the Hollinger brought to The Advance office on one of the coldest days of the year—either in January or February—a live butterfly that he had caught flying around the Hollinger yard. Mr. Downie thought he had something unusual and The Advance thinks he had. Compared to a live butterfly free and flying outside in January or February in the Porcupine the idea of a butterfly in Orillia in November is not so impressive. The Orillia News-Letter last week speaking of the Orillia butterfly says:—"While Allan MacDonald and family were having their supper in the park on Sunday night a large butterfly flew low over their heads. Mac at once gave chase and captured it on the 4th concession. Allan says it is nothing unusual to see mosquitoes in the park at this time of year but never butterflies. The editor of the News-Letter is at present in possession of the butterfly, and anyone who can assure a good home for the pretty creature is welcome to come and take it off the present guardian's hands."

Compared to the Porcupine butterfly referred to the Orillia bird is not in the same class.

REMAND GRANTED IN CASES AT SUDBURY FOLLOWING FIRE

Last week at the general sessions of the peace at Sudbury a remand was granted to Dec. 15th in the cases of J. H. McKinnon, charged with conspiracy to defraud, attempt to defraud, and perjury, and D. C. McKinnon, charged with conspiracy to defraud. The charges followed the provincial fire marshal's investigation into a fire which destroyed the warehouse of the McKinnon Bros. at Sudbury on Nov. 11th, 1929, and from enquiry into the circumstances of a fire in Coniston in May, 1929, which destroyed a store operated under the name of J. E. Lamoreux, but which the Crown alleges was owned by J. H. McKinnon. The solicitor for the defendants applied for the remand on the ground that the illness of the solicitor who had taken the case first it was impossible for counsel now to familiarize himself with the case and prepare the case to proceed. A representative from the office of the Attorney-General opposed the idea of leaving the case to next June, pointing out to proceed with the case other counsel could be secured. The Crown also pointed out that there had been a remand last year, but not wanting to be unfair to the accused a shorter remand could be approved. Judge Proulx allowed the remand to Dec. 15th, and bail was renewed for $20,000.00 for J. H. McKinnon and $5,000.00 for D. C. McKinnon.
