North Country May Have Huge Smelter

Ottawa Inclined to Consider Proximity of Iron and Coal at James Bay of Particular Importance, It is Said.

On several occasions in referring to the iron deposits at Belcher Islands and the coal fields in the James Bay region, The Advance has emphasized the possible importance of coal and iron being developed together in this North Land. If twin industries of this kind were commenced here their importance would be great indeed. This feature of the case is dwelt upon in a despatch this week from Ottawa. This despatch says:—

Visions of the establishment some time in the future of a huge iron smelting industry in the district of James Bay were stimulated by the announcement that the Government has withdrawn the unalienated portions of Belcher Islands, in Hudson Bay, from public exploitation pending a thorough investigation into the character and extent of the hematite deposits there.

Coupled with this in the mind of those who foresee further extensive developments for Northern Ontario was the fact that examinations of a most elaborate nature are at present being made on the suitability for all purposes of the lignite deposits in the Abitibi region. Within the past few days another carload of this was received by the Dominion Department of Mines and was immediately turned over to the experts in continuation of their scientific researches.

Coal and iron being complementary the one to the other in establishing the basis of all manufacturing industry, the discovery and development of the two in such close proximity as Belcher Islands are to the Abitibi have encouraged the hope that Canada's independence of external sources for the nation's supply of iron ore may eventually become considerably more than a "pious wish." The prospect of the ore being transported in barges from the islands of Hudson Bay to the ocean port which the Ontario Government proposes to found at the debouchment of the Moose River, there to connect with the coal conveyed thither by the new extension of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway from the Abitibi, was one which has captivated the imagination of those most closely connected with the operations.

Expanding the theme, the possibility was envisaged of such a development furnishing an additional outlet for the coal of both Nova Scotia and Alberta. In the former case the coal could be water-borne all the way from Sydney, N.S., up the coast of Labrador, through the well-charted Hudson Straits and down to James Bay. In the latter case, a comparatively short haul from the Alberta coalfields to Churchill would bring the western product to tidewater.

The Government's examination of the Belcher Islands deposits will be conducted under the supervision of the Department of Mines.

For Developing of Iron Ore Deposits

S. Sainsbury Tells of Plans for Iron Deposits on Belcher Islands, Has Hopeful Ideas Regarding Navigation of Hudson Bay.

For over ten years past The Advance has had frequent references to the possibilities of the iron ore deposits at the Belcher Islands in Hudson's Bay. John Jones, well-known prospector, gave out much information in regard to Belcher Islands after a prospecting and exploring trip there some dozen or more years ago. Considerably before John Jones, however, S. Sainsbury, prospector, had investigated the Belcher Islands and was an authority on the prospects there. It has been conceded for some years that there were important iron ore deposits on the Belcher Islands but this knowledge was scarcely considered of practical importance until some form of transportation was assured. With the extension of the T. & N. O. to tidewater at James Bay the transportation facilities needed are put in sight and the iron ore deposits of Belcher Islands assume a special and practical importance. The value of iron ore to this North has often been emphasized and the fact that the said iron ore deposits are not too far away from water power and coal has a particular significance in regard to the possible development of the iron areas.

Considerable information of interest and value was suggested by an interview at Ottawa in which Sam Sainsbury, of Toronto, mining prospector and arctic explorer, referred to Belcher Islands and other parts of the far north, touching particularly on the iron ore deposits. Mr. Sainsbury recently completed his sixteenth successive trip to Belcher Islands in Hudson Bay. He mentioned in the Ottawa interview that he made his first visit to the Belcher Islands in October, 1914. Sainsbury is greatly elated over his latest trip having made it from Cochrane and return in 13 hours of actual flying time. This compares with winter trips he made taking four months to cover the same ground.

The trip just concluded was undertaken to stake iron ore claims on the Belcher Islands which iron deposits were originally discovered by Sainsbury and his associates in 1914. Sainsbury, at that early date, realized the potentiality and economic value of the Belcher Islands to the future development of the steel industry of Canada.

During the intervening years Sainsbury has seen his ambition fast nearing the goal of realization as transportation facilities may shortly be available that would make these iron ore deposits available to Canada and the British Empire. According to Sainsbury millions will be saved to the Dominion by the production of iron ore within Canada for its iron and steel industries.

Of his latest trip Sainsbury says that apparently a great moderation has taken place in the climate of Hudson Bay area. Shortly after leaving the mainland in their plane, which was only equipped for landing on ice and snow, open water was encountered as far as the eye could see and the only ice observed was around the archipelago in the vicinity of the coastline.

Sainsbury is inclined to believe that when adequate data are available it will be found that navigation across Hudson Bay and James Bay will be no more hazardous than navigating the Great Lakes. Sainsbury is of the opinion that an ordinary sailing vessel could have navigated the Hudson and James Bays throughout the past winter. According to Sainsbury, this is of great importance to Canada and especially to the north country's progress when one considers there are now two railroad terminals in Hudson Bay and a third projected by the province of Quebec.

Sainsbury is now completing plans to return to Belcher Islands the latter part of next month with supplies and equipment for development work on his iron ore deposits staked under government license.

ABITIBI MAGAZINE NOW REPORTED AS DISCONTINUED

"Abitibi," the monthly magazine issued by the Abitibi Power & Paper Co. for the employees of the company at its various plants throughout Canada, is reported by "Marketing" as having been discontinued after the February issue.

"Abitibi" was a magazine of very decided merit. It was edited by Alec Dewar, for many years editor of The Broke Hustler, the Abitibi Co.'s paper at Troquois Falls. When "Abitibi" was first published the company apparently hoped that it would take the place of The Broke Hustler and any other papers published at the other plants. The fact that "Abitibi" was only issued once a month made this hope one that could not be fulfilled. The Broke Hustler was greatly missed at Troquois Falls and its ceasing of publication did not have a good effect either on the town or Troquois Falls, the industry or the employees.

While "Abitibi" was an excellent magazine and remarkable for its enterprise and interest, it naturally had a difficult position, and it is likely that only its superior merit kept it running as long as it did continue.

Convention Called for May 8th and 9th

Open Meeting to be Held at Kapuskasing to Discuss the Problems of the Settlers. All Interested Invited.

A general convention of the settlers of the North and all who may be interested in their problems has been called for Friday and Saturday, May 8th and 9th, at the town hall, Kapuskasing. The gathering is not restricted to settlers but all others concerned in the difficulties of the settlers and anxious for aid and benefit to the settlers are also included in the general invitation that is extended to all interested to attend the gathering. The objects and hopes of the convention are set forth from the official viewpoint in The Northern Tribune, of Kapuskasing, as follows:—

"Acting on his own initiative under the realization that there would not be time to consult the directors of the association and formalize all arrangements, President Joseph Lacasse of the Northern Ontario Settlers' Association has issued invitations for a convention to be held at Kapuskasing on May 8th and 9th, in the town hall. His purpose is to bring about a thorough discussion of settlers' problems, not only by the settlers themselves but by all who are interested, including cabinet ministers, members of Parliament and Legislature, officers and members of public and semi-public bodies and public in general. In other words, anybody may attend.

"Mr. Lacasse has arranged with the C.N.R. officials to grant a special return fare for the convention, to make it easier for out-of-town persons to take part. These considerations are in the usual form for conventions; single fare tickets are to be bought first, along with a certificate to be presented to a validating company official at the convention. If 100 or more persons come by rail from points west of Opatatika and east of Gregoire, return fare chits at the rate of one-half the first-class fare
