Says North Should Ignore Sault Plan

Scheme of "General Council" or "Unofficial Legislature" Just a Piece of Nonsense from Sault Ste. Marie.

Last week The Advance made reference to the latest scheme of Sault Ste. Marie to use the various sections of the North to play the purposes of Sault Ste. Marie and district. The Advance pointed out how the Sault used the recent so-called conference at North Bay for its own purposes, sacrificing the interests of all the rest of the North and of the Dominion as a whole. To The Advance it seems that no matter what other route may be selected for the Trans-Canada highway there is one route that should be avoided for every valid reason. This route to be avoided is the one proposed to be built along the north shore of Lake Superior. It seems to be generally admitted that such a road would be prohibitive in price on account of the rocks and gullies through which it would have to be built. It would take longer than any other route to construct on account of the natural difficulties to be overcome. Then, even when built, it would be of less use than any other route as it would pass through country that will not likely be settled for years, if ever. It is poor from even its vaunted advantage of scenery. After the first few miles it would prove most monotonous owing to the succession of rocks that would follow rocks upon rocks. The Ferguson highway route, going west from Cochrane to Hearst and thence to the Nipigon country seems the ideal route for the Trans-Canada road. It would be the cheapest and most economical. It would be the easiest and quickest to construct. It would have unrivalled scenery, with variety, and in addition it would have such striking points of interest as gold camps, silver camps and mining centres. Yet the Sault dominated the recent conference with the sole idea of forcing the routing of the Trans-Canada highway along this objectionable route. Now, the Sault, not content with what it has done so far is attempting to start an "unofficial legislature" for the North with the sole purpose, apparently, of upholding the Trans-Canada roadway scheme and other objectionable plans for the benefit of the Sault. Touching on this matter, The New Liskeard Speaker last week says:—

"Northern Ontario is not going to secede from the province, but it is going to make its voice heard in no uncertain way. That much is evident from the decision reached at the head of the great lakes, at the instigation of Editor Jim Curran and Mr. J. A. McPhail of the Soo, to set up an advisory council that will be able to speak for a united North. All the municipalities north of the French River will be asked to appoint representatives from their councils, boards of trade, chambers of commerce and other public bodies, as well as their editors, for a meeting in the Soo to be held on the 24th of August. Mr. Curran will convene the meeting."

The foregoing is an extract from a Toronto Daily Star editorial, and thus we see that the Daily Star of Toronto endorses the Daily Star of the Soo. And it would not be hard to conceive the motive in each case.

It would appear that the success of the Soo people in manipulating the North Bay "conference" last week has encouraged them to go a step farther in the hope that they may secure a free hand to speak for all the North and West.

Well, we can assure both the Stars that we are decidedly opposed to this proposed "advisory council," for reasons we shall present:

(1) We of the real North, that is of the territory immediately north of North Bay including James Bay country, have two representatives in the House of Commons and three in the Legislature to look after our interests. These representatives are elected by the men and women of this country. If they fail us we have the chance every five years of electing others to take their places. They come in direct contact with the people, and are responsible to the people. The appointment by irresponsible persons of a number of other irresponsible persons as a council to "lord it" over members of parliament who have been elected in accordance with the law would mean a step toward ignoring the principle of responsible government. An Advisory Council would be responsible to no one, and would laugh at the dupes who allowed it to speak for them.

(2) We have our municipal councils elected annually and they have fuller authority to speak for the people of the municipalities than could any so-called Advisory Council.

(3) We have local boards of trade in every town, and an associated board of trade which represents all the territory represented by the members of parliament as above stated. Then, we have in Temiskaming South a Farmers' Marketing Association, and the Cochrane have a similar organization. So we are organized to the limit, and certainly we are not desirous of "falling for" any fresh sort of organization scheme, and more particularly a scheme coming to us from a part of North-western Ontario in which the claybelt and the mining camps of the Temiskaming have but little community of interest.

We have always opposed the idea of the organization of the judicial districts into junior counties for the reason that the benefit to be derived from such organizations, considering the organizations the people now have, would not be worth the cost of maintaining them. Why, even the proposed Soo meeting, should it be held, will cost more than

Boy Scouts to Camp Last of Next Month

Timmins Boy Scouts Plan to Hold Camp Two Weeks in August. Other Scout Notes of Interest to Readers of The Advance.

(By the Scoutmaster)

Immediately after roll call last Wednesday all the boys practised knots, signalling and the composition of the Union Jack. Following this a competition was held which resulted in a win of six points for the Wolf and Beaver Patrols over their opponents. The boys also had a few minutes of drill which was followed by "Kim's Game" in which a number of the boys showed considerable improvement but others were not quite so good. It really takes practice in order to be able to be successful in these games of observation. Following "Kim's Game" we had some boxing and games. One game in particular proved very interesting, that was "Mount Ball" which is played with horses and riders and a ball. In this case we used a medicine ball which was a little more difficult to handle than the usual softball. When a rider misses the ball which is tossed to him by another rider, they change positions, the riders become horses and the horses riders.

We discussed the summer camp again and it was decided that we should hold a camp during the last two weeks of August. A site has not yet been chosen but we expect to have one shortly.

The South Porcupine Troop are holding their summer camp at Sesikinka where they have obtained permission from the Iroquois Falls Troop to use their permanent camp. The Falls Scouts have already been to camp.

Scouting is doing quite nicely throughout the North but there is plenty of room for more boys and troops.

The local troop is endeavouring to add a few more men to its committee in order that it may further Scouting and assist the present troop over any of its difficulties. The purpose of the committee is to recommend for appointment a Cubmaster, Scoutmaster, Rover Leader and one or more assistants, also to promote harmonious relationship between the Cub Pack, Scout Troop, Rover Crew and the institution with which they are connected. Also, to see that the Pack, Troop or Crew works in harmony with other boys' organizations in the community. There are several other responsibilities as outlined in policy rules for Canada.

Now for a few words on camps and camping which is of so much interest during the summer vacation.

To the normal Canadian boy there is something irresistibly fascinating in camp life. It is the big holiday adventure of the year, looked forward to for months in advance. Camping also plays a very important part in Scout training. Without it, indeed, the training is incomplete; for it is in camp that the boys gain that actual experience of day-by-day team work, the sharing of duties and responsibilities, and those practical lessons in cheerful, resourcefulness that most materially contribute to his training for good citizenship.

Each year parents of boys new to Scouting ask just why so much emphasis is laid on camping. Here are some of the reasons:

The Boy Scout Camp satisfies that "get away from home" urge which from time to time stirs in the heart of every normal boy, particularly the "gypsy" in town or city boy, restive after the restrictions of the winter and the school, that longs for the free spaces of the woods and lakes, the simple rough life of camp, and the company of a "gang" of his kind. It is this impulse, unwisely met, that has produced runaway boys.

Invariably the boy returns from the Scout Camp and its carefully worked out activities with a new appreciation of his home and his brothers and sisters and his parents, and generally a broadened outlook on life. As to health there is no safer or more beneficial place for a boy in the summer than a well run Scout camp, with its close attention to all matters of personal and general camp hygiene, its supervised games and swimming precautions.

It is really a shame that there are no boys organizations, other than the local troop of Scouts, interested sufficiently in boy life to have a summer camp, as such a camp run along proper lines would do the world of good in this town.

Annual Meeting Held of the Mining Association

Despatches last week from Temagami, Ont., say that the annual meeting of the Ontario Mining Association was held in Temagami last Thursday and Friday. D. L. H. Forbes, general manager of the Teck-Hughes Gold Mines, was made president for the new year. J. D. Dickenson, general manager of M. J. O'Brien Ltd., was appointed first vice-president, and C. H. Aldrich, general manager of the Ontario Refining Company, was made second vice-president. G. O. Baileman was re-elected secretary.

The meeting was dampened by news of the death of John L. Agnew, general manager of International Nickel Company of Canada and a former president of the association. Joseph Errington at the annual dinner referred feelingly to the late Mr. Agnew, whom he first knew more than 25 years ago when both worked for the old Canadian Copper Company at Sudbury. He spoke of his fine personal qualities and his hard-working nature. He was only 47

It would be worth, for it would cost the delegates an average of fifty dollars each in expenses and that would mean much, according to the Star, municipalities "are on the verge of bankruptcy," although we know of no such municipalities.

It were best for the real North to ignore the Soo request.

Count the Number of Chirps of a Cricket in Fourteen Seconds, Add Forty, and There You are.

Last week The Advance asked for some inventive genius to step forward with a plan for making some use of all the black bugs that have been infesting the town and district recently. They have been a nuisance. They have been charged with causing actual loss; one merchant here asserting that they make holes in cloth, something after the manner of the objectionable moth, though not so bad. If they were as bad as moths, there would not be much clothing left in Timmins this summer, for there have been bugs enough. There is no one forward as yet to say one single little good word for these big bad black bugs. But there is hope yet. There has been use found, for instance for the cricket on the hearth, and in the field. J. Henryette Hellenbeck, writing in "Boys' Life," a magazine for youth, says that the cricket is a regular little living thermometer, if you only know how.

"You can tell the temperature by the chirps of the cricket," says Mr. Hellenbeck. The Advance fears that you will have to go to Hellenbeck to find a use for these big black bugs.

Believe it or not, however, to return to the cricket on the hearth, that little black gentleman is a prize thermometer. "Count the number of chirps of the cricket in fourteen seconds, add forty, and there you have the actual temperature of the day." So says the genial and ingenious Mr. Hellenbeck, or words to that effect. It is all easy and all scientific, and if everybody believed it, and if crickets were as numerous as the little black bugs, the sale of thermometers would go down very materially. On the other hand it is foolishness to bother with a thermometer after the weather gets as hot as it has been recently. There will be this comfort, however, in the heat of the day, that so much chirping must be hard on the poor crickets.

Insects, it is explained, are very sensitive to temperature changes, and the reaction of some species to heat and cold gives a good idea of the temperature.

The grasshopper is noisier at 95 degrees, we read, and is "unable to chirp when the temperature falls below 62 degrees."

"Whenever you hear a grasshopper, you know the temperature is at least 62 degrees or 63 degrees." Further: Crickets are still more accurate. There are two species of crickets—the common house cricket and the white tree cricket—that are excellent thermometers. To calculate the temperature from the house cricket's tune, count the number of chirps he makes in fourteen seconds, and to that add forty, and you will have the temperature—that is, the temperature at the location of the cricket—not the temperature to which the chirping cricket or the very temperature itself may be consigned with emphasis by those who have to put up with heat and crickets and big black bugs.

Detroit News.—A young woman of Detroit tells of finding a diary she kept faithfully when about 16 years of age. "Almost on every page," she told, "is an account of meeting one of the boys in the neighborhood or any fellow, any place, and invariably after walking down the street with them, or having a soda, or going to a movie my only and one comment was "oh boy."

And after reading about a dozen entries such as "walked down the street today with Bill, oh boy, I gave it up as hopeless and wondered if all girls were as silly as I."

Darby's undertaking parlours an inquest was opened by Coroner Dr. J. L. Boullie, when an autopsy by himself and Dr. M. S. Rudd failed to definitely determine the cause of the death. By order of the jury Rosario Fontaine, Quebec Government autopsist, of Montreal, was ordered to town, his examination revealing serious internal complications, which had developed suddenly. The final sitting was held on the 9th of the month. Deceased, who was 31 years old, was a wife of Mark Ferderber, and had resided in Rouyn for several years past. She was born in Jugo Slavia, coming to Canada shortly after the war, and is survived by her husband and five children, ranging in ages from eleven years down to eight months. Interment was made in the Roman Catholic cemetery, Rouyn.

ROUYN WOMAN DIES WITH HER BABY IN HER ARMS

The Northern News last week says:—"Funeral services were held on Sunday last for Mrs. Megi Ferderber, Pelletier street, Rouyn, who expired suddenly on Tuesday, July 7th, at her home. Although alling for some time past, the deceased had been able to be up and about with her household duties, but the afternoon Tuesday died without a cry or a struggle, being found in a sitting posture in her bedroom with her youngest child in her arms.
