WORKMEN WELL USED IN THE TRANS-CANADA ROAD CAMPS

Among those who know from experience or who have personally investigated the matter, the following editorial from The Sudbury Star will be taken as generally expressing the truth about the trans-Canada road camps:—"Despite the isolated cases of complaint regarding the conditions in some of the work camps on the trans-Canada highway, any uneasiness because of them has apparently been set at rest through the instrumentality of official and private inspection of the camps.

"A party of youths recently returned to their homes in Oshawa bitterly denouncing conditions in the camp where they had been employed. Dan Douglas, assistant superintendent of the Oshawa employment office, paid a visit to the camp and found ideal conditions existing. He ate at the same table as the men and found clean, excellent meals, well prepared. The workers were not on rations, as some maintained, but there was an abundance on the table for the men to help themselves.

"It is not unusual, where large numbers of men are engaged in camp life, to find some dissatisfied ones, always anxious to complain. Such instances are not confined to work camps, either, but are to be found in other spheres of activity. The provincial government and the firm which is doing the catering for the forces employed in constructing the various links of the trans-Canada highway are vitally concerned in maintaining satisfactory working and living conditions. Public opinion, as well, will demand that this be done, and it is, therefore, gratifying to know that inquiries indicate there is no just cause for complaint."

On Thursday, January 28th, the community was shocked as the news spread that "Joek" Robertson had passed away at the Porcupine hospital after less than two hours' illness. He had taken a chill and as a severe cold seemed to be developing he was brought out to the hospital for treatment but his heart gave out. The late Mr. Robertson was born forty-one years ago in Tillicoultry, Scotland, and came to Canada twenty years ago. It is nearly thirteen years since he first came to the Porcupine camp as an employee of the Dome Mines and he has been a respected resident there ever since, the last year being spent at the power house on Porcupine Lake. He organized the first football team at the Dome and for twelve years was manager of their football team, during which some worth-while football was produced. He took an active interest in educational and public affairs. Along with Lieut.-Col. Geo. Cole, he was one of the first directors of the Porcupine-Dome library. The funeral was held on Sunday at the United Church and was very largely attended by people from every walk in life. The Masonic Lodge of South Porcupine attended in a body and held their Masonic rites for the dead after the preaching of the funeral sermon by Rev. L. Hussey. Mr. Robertson was a member of Ben Chuach Lodge in Scotland. Mrs. Christie feelingly sang "Abide with Me" during the service. Interment took place in the South Porcupine cemetery, the pallbearers being Messrs F. C. Evans, C. McInnis, J. Jordan, J. Armstrong, P. Andrew and Shary. A long entourage of cars followed to the last resting place of their friend and neighbour. He leaves to mourn his loss his widow, Helma Lahti, to whom he was married seventeen years ago, and their four children, Peter, aged fourteen years, Buddy aged twelve, Agnes eleven and Alice nine years. Mrs. M. Watson and Mrs. Miller of the Dome Extension are sisters and one brother, Will, also resides at the Dome. His mother came out from Scotland with Mrs. Miller two months ago to visit with her family here. She had not seen her son, John, for twenty years. Miss Lempi Niemi, sister of Mrs. Robertson from Sudbury, was up for the funeral. The floral tokens of sympathy were very beautiful

Legion Looks After Returned Men Here

Returned Man Objects to Statements Made by Transient Who Made Address to Town Council at Meeting Last Week.

The Advance has received the following letter for publication this week: Timmins, Feb. 1st, 1932

To the Editor of The Advance, Timmins. Dear Sir:—I noticed in your last issue a reference to a man before the town council who said he was "not a returned man and glad of it." Breathes there a man with a soul so dead," who is not proud that he has fought for Canada, even though his belt gets slack for want of grub. The man referred to also stated that the returned man was not as well used here as in other towns. I would suggest that any returned man who has a grievance about personal treatment state his case openly and honestly before our worthy president of the Canadian Legion, Mr. Austin Neame, who is always ready to meet a returned man half way, so to speak. Why should any ex-serviceman send in his grievance second-handed. Let him come forward without a spokesman. The members of the Legion will not tolerate a genuine comrade to suffer ill-treatment. "Step forward," you comrades with a grievance. You "stepped forward" over there. The Legion is waiting to attend your case. No other town can boast of better treatment to our deserving returned combatants. I know for a fact, Mr. Editor, there are some (very few, thank goodness) who want jam on both sides of their bread, and our worthy president will not stand for that. Let me give that individual who says he is glad he is not a returned man an instance of a better sort of spirit. There was a sailor, a Canadian, who was killed on the upper deck of H.M.S. Repulse in 1918. In his dying moments he made it clear that he was glad to die for Canada. The death of McLeod is on record; he was buried at sea. This man was not suffering from a temporary slack belt, but worse, yet there was pride in his dying eyes because his life was given for Canada. I have never met relatives of this man in Canada, but should this catch the eye of any of them, I can tell them something, as I was there.

Yours truly, Harry Nichols, 2646, H.M.S. Repulse.
