APPEAL JUDGMENT IN CASE REGARDING INDIGENT PATIENT

A despatch last week from Halleybury says that an appeal is to be taken from the decision of Judge Hartman in an action brought by the National Sanitarium Association against the township of Dymond, and relating to one phase of the indigent problem as it affects northern municipalities. Plaintiffs sued the township for the maintenance at the sanitarium at Gravenhurst of the 18-year-old daughter of a T. & N. O. section foreman named Miron, and, living at Uno Park, but his Honour, in giving judgment, held that the father had entered into a contract with the institution and that, in the circumstances, the municipality could not be held liable when he failed to carry out the terms of his bargain. Miron has been in steady employment with the railway for years past, it was shown in evidence, getting a salary of $125 per month, with house. The papers in the case have been sent to Toronto, where the appeal is to be argued at Osgoode Hall.

Citizens Urged to Observe Remembrance Day in Timmins

but was assured by the applicant that there would be nothing objectionable. The mayor advised the applicant to put up a complete partition shutting off the proposed club from the poolroom and using the rear entrance to the club, thus avoiding running counter to the town regulations.

Marcel Riard asked council not to press collection of taxes to the extent of selling his property for taxes. He said he had given the town $7,000.00 in rentals for people who could not pay and whom the town would have had to supply with shelter had it not been for his leniency. He thought he should at least be given a vote of thanks for the $7,000.00 he had given in this way. "Will that help you with your taxes?" he was asked, and he answered, "No, but it would make me feel good."

In explaining his present hard luck, Mr. Riard said the houses he had were the kind that would not rent to any kind of people except those who couldn't afford to pay rent at all. He suggested that the town build 200 or 300 shacks to house those who could not pay rent.

The attention of council was called to the case of a man resident in Timmins practically since 1917. He was 77 years of age and seriously ill at present. All concerned had done what they could for him, but the need for medical care now was very apparent. The council will look into the case.

A letter was received from the recently formed Ratepayers' Association in regard to its desire to co-operate with the council for the interests of the people. Mayor Drew expressed his appreciation of the kindly spirit of the letter. Such an association he thought, if rightly conducted could be of great help to the council and the community. He mentioned the danger of cliques or prejudiced people securing control and using an association like this for wrong ends.

He complimented the officers on the attitude of helpfulness and co-operation they had adopted and suggested that they could assist the council by bringing cases to attention that might otherwise escape notice. There was, of course, the danger that what might be termed the chronic objector might get the ear of the association after being repeatedly informed of the council's attitude in certain matters. Councillor Morrison added a word of appreciation for the work that might be done by the Ratepayers' Association. The president of the association, Mr. Cottrell briefly addressed the council saying the association was not formed to issue complaints but to co-operate with the council for the good of the town. S. G. Fowler, the secretary, spoke along similar lines, adding that those who had been repeatedly turned down by the council were not likely to be favoured unduly by the association, as it was the association's policy to insist that all complaints be in writing and signed before given consideration. All cases would be investigated before resolutions were passed. It was also intended that one of the executive attend each meeting of council to keep in touch with the council's work. Moise Maltais, vice-president, said the coming winter would be a bad one and the council would need help and co-operation such as could be given by the association. "The association," he concluded, "is non-political, non-sectarian, just good citizens of the town."

The letter received was in motion respectfully acknowledged and placed on file. Mayor Drew referred to the Canadian Institute for the Blind which was planning to have a campaign to raise funds for its work in the North. Any money raised here would be spent here for the benefit of the blind people in this town. The mayor pointed out the good work of the Institute here and elsewhere and thought it worthy of support. It was intended to have a collection made here and close the campaign with a tag day. Council gave permission for the holding of this tag day on Saturday, Nov. 12th.

Rebate of half a year's income tax was allowed in the case of a man who was married earlier this year.

Councillor Richardson suggested that the pipe be ordered at once for the water service on Kirby avenue, and council agreed.

Mayor Drew referred to the fact that some of the temporary employees of the town who would ordinarily be laid off at this time of year were now being continued in employment on town relief work. He thought that these men should come under the same regulations as the others on relief work, being paid by relief vouchers, etc. The council agreed with this as only fair to all concerned.

The question of Remembrance Day was referred to by Mayor Drew. He thought this day, Nov. 11th, should be generally observed in honour of those who had given their lives for King and Country. Some towns wanted only half a day holiday; others not even that much; but the Dominion evidently considered the day should be a public holiday. He urged the citizens to observe Nov. 11th, Remembrance Day in a suitably quiet manner. The mayor suggested that if a memorial service were held here this year, as in past years, that the council attend in a body.

Two Speakers at the Kiwans This Week

Organizer for Institute for the Blind Speaks of Work Done. Representative of Dept. of Agriculture on Ontario Farm Products Week.

There were two special speakers at the Kiwanis Club meeting on Tuesday at the Empire hotel. D. B. Lawley, organizer for the Canadian Institute for the Blind, spoke of the work carried on by that institution for the blind, and solicited the support of all in the campaign for funds to carry on the work. While the members of the club expressed sympathy with the work, the club as a club could not take action in regard to the campaign for funds, though no doubt individual members would personally support anything so worthy. Further reference to Mr. Lawley's address to the Kiwanis will be found elsewhere in this issue.

The second speaker was D. Pomerleau, of Cochrane, District Representative of Agriculture, who spoke on the Ontario Farm Products Week to be observed throughout the province next week. Mr. Pomerleau explained that the purpose of the campaign was to popularize the superior products of Ontario farms. In Timmins it was hoped among other things to have special window displays of Ontario products of the farm. Prizes will be given for the best windows. The judging will be done by Mr. Pomerleau and two others not connected with the grocery or allied businesses. Further reference to the Ontario Farm Products Week is also made elsewhere in this issue, while the plan was fully explained in the last issue of The Advance.

Dr. Day reported in regard to the milk situation. It is the intention of the Kiwanis to supply milk to undernourished children at the schools along the lines followed earlier in the year. The supplying of milk this term will commence next week, the necessary arrangements having been completed and the required information secured.

Dr. Day also reported on the case of a child placed in the hospital by the Kiwanis. This youngster needed treatment for bad tonsils, as well as having a cleft palate and a hairlip. Operations had successfully remedied the trouble in each case and the child is now well on the way to complete health. This is something that the Kiwanis Club has done that deserves special appreciation and approval.

The Kiwanis bridge tournament is on again. The following are the tables:—
