Ontario's Standing Due to Gold Mining

Ontario in Envious Position as Result of Gold Mining Progress, Says Lieut.-Governor in Opening Ontario House

Readjustment of the Ontario Legislative Assembly's membership; further relief for mortgagors and lighter burdens for ratepayers were forecast in the Speech from the Throne read last week at Toronto by Lieutenant-Governor Herbert A. Bruce before a House crowded with legislators and women.

Perhaps the largest crowd ever to witness an opening attended the opening of the Ontario Legislature in tribute to Ontario's newly-appointed Lieutenant-Governor, Dr. Bruce. Gaily-dressed women and solemnly dressed men packed the Chamber. Outside, guns boomed dully as the Lieutenant-Governor, accompanied by Premier George S. Henry, walked into the Chamber.

No Tax Increases

There was little in the Speech from the Throne not already forecast. The redistribution issue had been announced publicly before, and had aroused considerable comment. Premier George S. Henry, in a recent speech, had stated there would be further relief for mortgagors, and that taxation increases would not be made this year.

Tribute was paid in the speech to Hon. W. D. Ross, former Lieutenant-Governor, who retired recently, and to Sir William Mulock, Chief Justice, who had been acting as Administrator.

The speech carried praise for Ontario's gold mines which had "placed Ontario in an enviable position and helped the province to sustain the credit of the Dominion. All indications," it said, "point to further expansion of gold production in this province."

Brief reference was made to the recent Federal-Provincial Conference on unemployment insurance, with existing duplications of public services and instances of overlapping legislation. "Progress was made towards an understanding from which, after further investigation, definite results may be expected."

Open Up New Country

Completion of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway to James Bay had opened fresh avenues for the progress of Ontario, with a wide range of attractive possibilities, the speech continued. The new terminus at Moosonee was destined to become an important distributing centre.

All the time-honoured ceremony was adhered to as the House opened. Lieutenant-Governor Bruce left Government House and was met by a contingent of Royal Canadian Dragoons. Outside the building a guard of honour from the Royal Canadian Regiment presented arms, and the Lieutenant-Governor then entered the House with Premier George S. Henry as the customary salute of 15 guns rang out on the frosty air.

Inside, hundreds of men and women rose and stood in silence as the Lieutenant-Governor mounted the throne. Immediately after completing the speech, Dr. Bruce left the chamber, and those present then attended the annual tea in the Speaker's chambers.

Outstanding Achievement

"One of the outstanding achievements of the province during the past year was the completion of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway to James Bay," the speech declared. "The event opens fresh avenues for the progress of Ontario, with a wide range of attractive possibilities. The new terminus at Moosonee is destined to become an important distributing centre."

"As a people we have a deep interest in the progress and development of Northern Ontario because of the opportunities they offer for enterprise and individual effort, and for their bearing upon the general prosperity of the province. The vital importance of cheap and abundant electric power prompted the recent purchase of the Abitibi Canyon power project by means of which industry and mining in the North Country will be placed in an exceptionally favourable position."

"A close scrutiny of the proposed expenditures for the current year has been in progress during the past few weeks by the recently appointed budget committee. It is expected the economies recommended by the committee, in addition to the retrenchment effected during the past fiscal year, will improve materially the financial outlook of the province."

In Envious Position

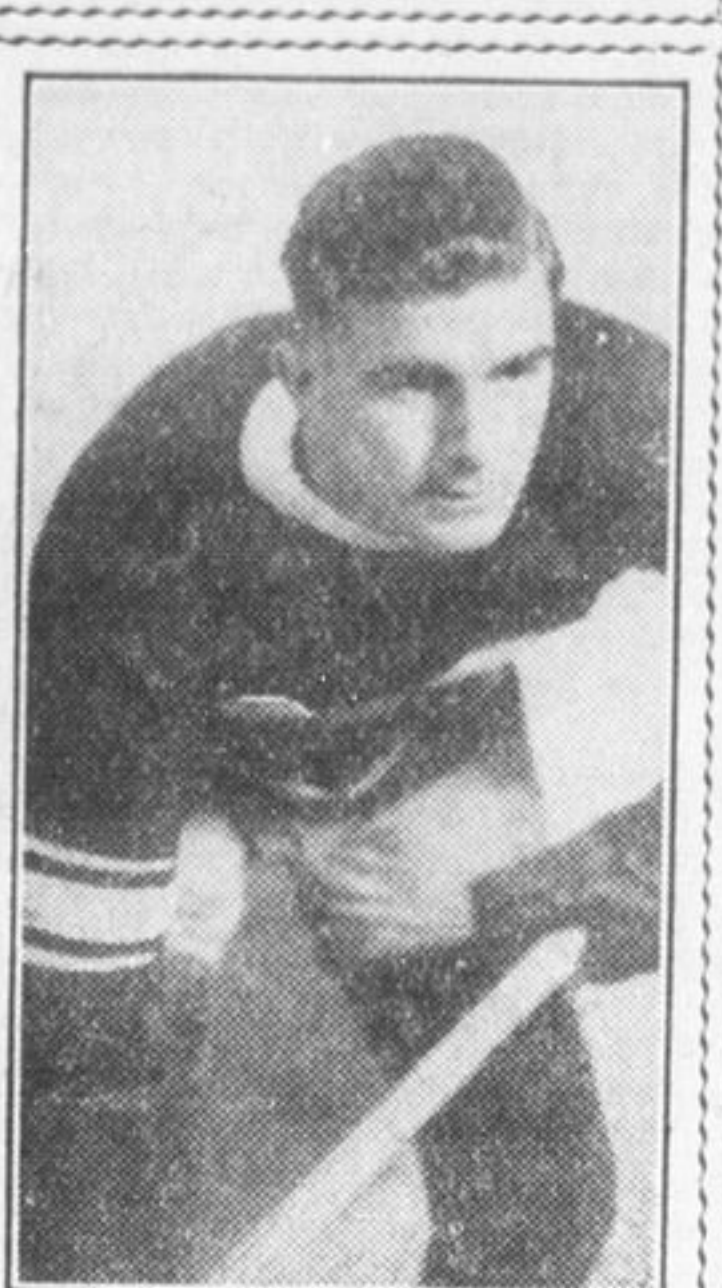

"The results of gold mining have placed Ontario in an enviable position," the speech also declared, "and helped the province to sustain the credit of the Dominion. All indications point to further expansion of gold production in this province."

"Throughout the province, the schools have been maintained with courage and sacrifice by the ratepayers, assisted by the Government, as generously as present conditions permit. Legislation will be proposed to lighten the burden of taxation to local taxpayers, without impairing the efficiency of the system."

"A measure will be submitted to you to readjust the representation of the people in this House with a view to removing existing inequalities as revealed by the recent census. In this connection you will be asked to approve of a reduction in the membership of the Legislative Assembly."

"Legislation will be introduced to afford further relief to mortgagors, par-particularly to those who are home owners; other measures have been prepared to make amendments to the statutory law in conformity with experience and changing conditions."

As Dr. Bruce concluded, Harry Price, newly elected member for West York, moved the adoption.

A. C. Burt, Norfolk, seconded the motion.

The House then adjourned.

Coniaurum Shaft to be Sunk to 3000 Feet

Shaft may go Down to the 4,000-ft. Level. The Past Year Reported as Good One for the Coniaurum Mine.

Despatches last week from Toronto dealt with the Coniaurum Mine, and referred to the fact that the main shaft is to be sunk to 3,000 feet and may be put down to 4,000 feet in the near future. The Toronto despatches in this regard say:

"Coniaurum directors have decided to deepen the mine's workings and a start will be made on continuing the main shaft below its present depth of 2,000 ft. The first drop will be to 3,000 ft., with the possibility of the shaft being extended on down to 4,000 ft. at a later date."

"Deepest work at Coniaurum is at the 2,500-ft. level, reached by a winze. At this horizon No. 7 vein has been opened up and a promising orebody developed. Drilling below the level indicated downward extension of the ore. This section of the property will probably be one of the first points of attack at the 3,000-ft. level. The vein is about 800 ft. southwest of the shaft."

"During the past few months Coniaurum has been searching on the 400-ft. level, particularly for the upward extension of orebodies which have been giving good production on levels from 1,000 to 1,750 ft. So far the work at shallow horizons has not been productive of much ore, but possibilities have not yet been exhausted."

"Coniaurum's operations in 1932 were most satisfactory. When the annual report is issued it will show production in dollars about the same as in 1931. Average ore grade will be lower, but this was offset by reduction in costs, despite a large amount of exploration during the period. Operating net profit will likely be about the same, perhaps a little better than the 1931 showing of $180,795."

Travelled 42 Miles in 11 Hours by Ski Route

Iroquois Falls ski experts claim the season's long distance record in this part of the North. According to the claim made by the Iroquois Falls ski artists, Laurie Beards and Phil Abramson made the trip from the Falls to Timmins, a distance of 42 miles, in 11 hours running time. Leaving Iroquois Falls at 6:15 in the morning they reached Connaught at 9:15 a.m. After lunching at Connaught they proceeded to Hoyle, arriving at that centre at 12:30. They reached South Porcupine, which they figured as 35 miles from the Falls, at 3:15. They remained at South Porcupine for about an hour and a half, before tackling the remaining seven miles to Timmins. One of the Falls ski artists claims that the trip from Iroquois Falls to Timmins can be made without difficulty in nine hours. From Iroquois Falls to South Porcupine the skiers used the right of way of the railway, but from South Porcupine to Timmins was made by the highway.

Suggests Financing of the Prospectors

Serious Difficulties in the Way of Proposal by New Liskeard Speaker. Hundreds of Good Prospects. Finances the Need.

In the desire to find something to assist present conditions a number of suggestions are being made, some of them rather absurd to those who know. Because the gold industry is so vital to the prosperity of the country and because the gold mining industry has stood up so nobly under the adverse conditions of the day there is a tendency to particularly centre on this industry in seeking solution of the problems of the day. One of the latest to suggest the "Utilizing of Our Gold Mines for the Benefit of Canada," is The New Liskeard Speaker. As might be expected, The Speaker approaches the question in a reasonable and fair manner and also with some apparent hesitancy. Further, The Speaker concludes by leaving the suggestion with the Ontario and Dominion Departments of Mines for consideration. The Speaker's suggestion is that the Government employ skilled prospectors to uncover the gold mines of Canada. At first sight there seems to be much in the suggestion. On closer consideration, however, it will be readily agreed that only the best prospectors should be financed to search for new gold mines. When the mines were found, so far as prospectors can find them, what then? To bring each one of them to production would mean an expenditure of $100,000.00 to $1,000,000.00. Is the government to take a chance on putting up this money? If so, why not finance the literally hundreds of mines already discovered by prospectors. Old and skilled prospectors believe they have properties of unusual value in the Night Hawk area, the McArthur area and other parts of the Porcupine; in the Matachewan, Red Lake, Patricia, Lightning River and other districts. These claims are just as likely to prove valuable as any new ones discovered by prospectors sent out now by the government. These properties await development, while new ones "discovered" by prospectors sent out would take so much longer before they would be worthy of financing. In other words, the chief trouble is the financing of the properties to the producing stage. If the prospectors could have only a few of the properties they have already staked and developed to the interesting stage give back to them some of the money due for their time, labour and expense, they would forthwith be off again at their own expense to discover still further properties. Grub-staking prospectors would be some help, but to recompense prospectors for their past work would be still better, and it would also mean that they would do more prospecting "on their own" immediately. To emphasize the point it may be repeated:—There are hundreds of promising discoveries awaiting capital for development. If the governments can not finance this development, then how can they finance further discoveries if such are made. The trouble rests, not with the lack of discoveries, but with the lack of capital to develop them to the producing stage.

However, with this preface, The Advance gives herewith the proposal or suggestion of The Speaker:—

"The exploitation of Temiskaming upwards of thirty years ago was because of its agricultural prospects. True, there had been some prospecting for silver done, but the failure of the Wright Mine on the Quebec side did not offer encouragement to the few prospectors who were working on the Ontario side until the Timmins Brothers, and the Tretheways started the world by their silver discoveries. For a number of years the Cobalt camp was the talk of people in many countries, and notwithstanding that prospectors went north and reported rich gold discoveries they could not for several years get people with capital to help them develop their prospects. And, unfortunately, in some cases, the first mines developed did not give satisfactory results. But, there came the Hollinger and others in quick succession, and then some of the most successful silver mine operators turned their attention to working the gold mines with a success which has been, or it is hoped will be "the making of Canada."

"Of course, it was largely because of the drop in the price of silver that some of the Cobalt mines were closed, and it is confidently believed that the day will come when some of these mines will again be operated."

"As gold is what is so badly needed in the British world today we have been wondering why the Canadian Government does not hire competent prospectors to prospect all over the north, and thus find out all about Canada's hidden wealth. The government might not think it desirable to develop all the prospects found immediately on discovery, but owing to the great need of gold wealth some of the most promising mines might be sold to reliable companies by public tender, the government to be protected not only with a fair percentage of the profits or a royalty, but also in other respects."

"We do not wish to leave the impression that we favour governments going into business, but the present situation is unlike any other situation the country has ever experienced. In Canada there are thousands of men who are out of work who must be kept by the State. Why not make a suitable selection of these men and put them at work for the State under the supervision of reliable government overseers, since they cannot find employment as formerly. Of course as the work they would be required to do would be doubtful of bringing returns in many cases, they must not expect to be highly paid, but it should be understood that they would be at liberty to leave this work just so soon as they could find work which would suit them better. It would be better for them and the country that they should work for small pay rather than be idle.

"We may not have put our ideas clearly, but if our country is rich in mineral wealth, now is the time we ought to know about it. We leave our ministers of mines in the Dominion and provinces to do the rest, and we could not leave this immensely important matter in better hands."

"Back-to-Land" Movement Benefits the Unemployed

Not since the war has Canada experienced such a landward movement from the urban communities as that which has taken place during the past year, according to Dr. W. J. Black, Director of Colonization for the Canadian National Railways. Commenting on this movement, Dr. Black says that the demand for farm lands has not been equalled for many years, and is due to the movement of unemployed families from urban centres who, through force of economic circumstances have found it necessary to revert to their former occupation of farming. These families and single men, who left the farms for the cities in more prosperous times, now find themselves in the ranks of the unemployed, and with what capital they have left are anxious to get re-established where they will be self-sustaining and sure of at least a living. Those who are going back, many of them to their old home communities, are securing land for less money and on better terms than they could have secured the same properties at any time during the last twenty years.

The vast majority of the "back-to-the-landers" are returning to rural districts with a determination to stick. In spite of the difficulties facing them. They realize that in spite of low prices they will be able to provide food and shelter.

All Sunday Selling to be Stopped in North Bay

Most of the people in this part of the North have had the opinion that North Bay was closed up mightily tight on Sundays. Efforts of travellers to buy a package of cigarettes, tobacco, matches, or newspapers in North Bay have met with sad refusal in so many cases that North Bay is shunned as much as possible on Sundays. But apparently the worst is yet to come! The North Bay board of police commissioners at their last monthly meeting issued a strict order that any merchant whose doors are open on Sunday, found selling tobacco, cigars, cigarettes, magazines, papers or other prohibited articles on that day will be prosecuted. The police department was instructed to notify all drug stores, restaurants, and other businesses open on Sunday, that if persons were found violating the local by-laws prohibiting Sunday sales, the Lord's Day Act, prosecutions would follow immediately. Numerous complaints of the practice of making sales on Sunday have been received both from residents of the city, and from the Lord's Day Alliance authorities in Toronto, Chief Clark stated.

Kirkland Lake dentists have agreed to observe Saturday afternoons and evenings hereafter as holidays, not making appointments after noon on Saturdays, except emergency cases. By the way there are nine dentists in Kirkland Lake.

Seeking Change in Toronto Train Time

New Liskeard Board of Trade Urging that No. 47 Leave Toronto at 11 p.m. Instead of at 9:30 p.m.

Once again there is effort being made to have a change made in the Toronto train leaving for the North. The arguments used in past times in the matter are again being urged. There are also some new arguments being used to the effect that the T. & N. O. time will not be affected and so there is no reason why the T. & N. O. should not advocate the proposed change. This New Liskeard Board of Trade is at present urging the change in time. In referring to the matter The Halleyburian last week had the following:—

"With the New Liskeard Board of Trade taking the initiative in the matter, another effort is to be made to induce the C.N.R. management to set back the departure of the regular evening train from Toronto for the Temiskaming district an hour and a half to 11 p.m., instead of 9:30, as at present. The Associated Boards of Trade, together with the various local boards, is to be asked to endorse a resolution being prepared for circulation on this subject. It is claimed that the 90 minutes could be made up between Toronto and North Bay, and that running times on the T. & N. O. would not be changed. Attempts have been made in the past to secure this change, and now it is to be urged again that, if the later hour of departure can be found practical, residents of the North would be able to attend theatre performances or evening sporting events in the city and return home the same night, instead of having to cool their heels about Toronto until train time. The New Liskeard board is also sending out to members and non-members alike, in both town and country, a questionnaire inviting recipients to submit subjects for discussion at board of trade meetings there. Room is provided for four suggestions, and the covering note stresses the statement that the officers desire to make the organization a more active factor in the life of the community."

Special Service to Moosonee Planned

T. & N. O. Railway Will Put on Week-end Trains to Popularize the Northern Terminus of the Railway, it is Said.

Several months ago The Advance suggested the running of special trains to Moosonee, with reduced fares, as a means of popularizing the new terminus of the T. & N. O. as a resort for tourists. Judging from a reference in The North Bay Nugget last week this plan is to be put in force, practically at once. The Nugget says:—

Intended as a means of enabling Northerners to visit Moosonee and view the natural beauty of the surrounding country and enjoy the exceptional facilities afforded for the conducting of popular winter sports the T. & N. O. Railway Commission has decided to operate special week-end train service to the James' Bay port and offer an attractive fare, George W. Lee announced on Friday.

Commencing with the week-end of March 4, special train accommodation will be provided from Cochrane to Moosonee. The train will run north from Cochrane on Saturday, remain at Moosonee over Sunday and return on Monday to reach Cochrane at night time. The fare from all points on the railway will be one cent per mile. A dining car will be attached to the train. Persons residing at points south of Cochrane will have to travel the regular trains on the Friday preceding to make connections with the Moosonee special.

In making this announcement Friday morning, Mr. Lee stated that the Commission is aiming to acquaint Northerners with the exceptional facilities for a winter vacation which exist in the James' Bay region. "It offers the most beautiful winter scenery in Canada and the visit is worth a hundred times the money that is necessary to make the trip," he stated. "The country is ideally equipped for winter sports, particularly snowshoeing and skiing," he added. "As a special inducement to people who follow these sports we will carry their equipment to and from the resort without charge."

Mr. Lee explained that this special is more or less of an experiment. If it proves successful it is planned to make more extensive plans for next winter. The special service will be in operation for eight week-ends starting March 4, and it is hoped that a large number will avail themselves of the opportunity to visit the new seaport terminus during this period. Unexcelled hotel accommodation will be provided for the visitors. This will include use of the spacious and modern appointed dance hall.

Enthusiasm over the possibilities for making the James' Bay region the most attractive winter playground in the Dominion, as well as an unexcelled paradise for sportsmen in the summer months, Mr. Lee stated that the precipitation on which Moosonee townsite is located affords an excellent ski hill to the Moose River. Furthermore, great enjoyment can be taken out of a snow shoe tramp or ski hike down the Moose River to tidewater at the James' Bay. These are only two opportunities which the James Bay, in the natural state, has to offer.
