Little Kirkland Girl Drowned in Shallow Pond

Following an all-night search by police, neighbours and the distracted parents, in and around the outskirts of Kirkland Lake last week the body of the little seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vasile Baitan, Mary Baitan, was found face downward in a pool of water within a few yards of her home, shortly before noon on Sunday. The little girl had been missing from her home since before seven o'clock on Saturday night, and the body of the child had lain all through the night while search parties roamed far afield in a vain effort to locate her. Believing at first the child had only strayed from her usual haunts and became lost, the father hastily organized a party, when the child failed to respond to repeated callings, and set out to scour the neighbourhood.

As darkness fell and no trace of the child could be found, the father sent in a call for assistance to the local police department, two officers joining the search and remaining throughout the night. Setting out early in the morning, Mr. Baitan made the rounds of friends and relatives in the hope that the little girl had set out on a visiting trip and had stayed overnight at some friend's home. Shortly before noon, however, the body of the youthful victim was found partly submerged in the small pond beside her home.

Foul play was at first suspected by some of the Kirkland Lake authorities due to the absence of much water in the lungs and a slight bruise on the child's forehead. It was learned later, however, that the child had possibly lost her footing on the thin ice near the edge of the pond, struck her head on an outcropping of rock, and fallen into the water in a dazed condition.

An autopsy was held on the body on Sunday. It is not likely that a jury inquest will be held as the cause of death now seems clear, the youngster apparently having fallen and hurt her head and in that condition had lain in the water until dead.

The child was the oldest of five children, being survived by three sisters and one brother, as well as by the bereaved parents.

Damage by Floods at South Porcupine

Hearing at Court of Schumacher Wounding Case. Other News from Correspondent for South Porcupine and Dome Mines.

South Porcupine, Ont., April 19th, 1933. Special to The Advance.

The lower sections of South Porcupine are again in deep water. It was feared that owing to the heavy snows in the bush this year that anything like a quick thaw would bring about the flood that has in the past inundated Railway street. While not yet reaching the proportions of the floods of 1928 and 1913, it was menacing enough this evening. One woman we met was departing to reside elsewhere for a few days, taking with her, her goldfish, the icy water not being conducive to their health. A man was removing his bovine to higher land in order to get contented milk from a contented cow. Ed. Ahl was going home to his cottage by the canoe he has been using to reach his aeroplane dock. Some of the ice-floes of the river were hitting the bridge with considerable force.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the United Church are giving an afternoon tea on Wednesday, April 26th, at the home of Mrs. W. W. Wilson, (Wilson's Barber Shop), South Porcupine.

The Anglican Young People's Society held their first meeting in the vestry of St. Paul's church on April 13th. There was a good attendance and more young people are expected to join at the next meeting which will be held on May 4th. The Ven. Archdeacon Woodall was present and opened and closed the meeting with prayer. Officers were filled as follows:—honorary president, Archdeacon Woodall; president, Ivan Lang; vice-president, Kathleen Reynolds; secretary, Ruby Nash; treasurer, Elva Wilkes. On May 4th Mr. Fowler will be present at the meeting for installation of officers, and will explain any difficulties that may arise.

On Sunday evening the choir of the United Church presented the cantata, "Easter Day," by John S. Witty, in a manner which delighted everyone of the large congregation which filled the edifice to capacity. Messrs Radcliffe and Uren took the bass solo, Mrs. Webb and Mrs. Stanlake the duet, with Mrs. Stanlake singing the soprano solo part, Mr. Ron Jones, tenor, and Mrs. Webb the contralto solo in the solo and chorus of the last part. Mr. Ron Jones was organist, accompanied by Miss Mary McIntosh at the piano. The church was beautifully decorated with spring flowers for the occasion.

Misses Edyth Rapsy and Lillian Huot are spending the Easter vacation under the parental roofs here while home from Haileybury convent.

Miss Florence Murphy, of Iroquois Falls, spent Easter at her home at the Dome.

At the police court on Tuesday three drunks paid the usual fine, also one speeder was fined. For being illegally in possession of an otter skin a man paid $20.00 and costs ($38.50), and also had four fine fox skins confiscated for not having the proper holding permit. The charge was laid by Game Warden Eddlestone who discovered the skins in the man's cabin while he was out on his trap lines. A claim of having liquor in a public place was dismissed and another similar charge adjourned. The main time was taken up with a stabbing case against Anna Bertoli, of Schumacher, who it is alleged cut Mrs. Erminia Pizzali across the face with a razor on the evening of March 30th in Schumacher. It took seventeen stitches to close the wound which reached from the ear to the upper lip, and the case had been adjourned on former occasions to wait until the injured woman was recovered enough to give testimony. Mr. Dean Kester appeared on behalf of Mrs. Bertoli while Mr. Cummings, solicitor, of Haileybury, was present in the interests of the Pizzalis. The woman was committed for trial at the assizes being held at Cochrane in June. Mrs. Pizzali, during the preliminary hearing, stated that while she was in conversation with two Italian friends on the street across from Dr. Byers on the stated evening, the accused came from across the street and reaching from behind drew the razor across her face. The other two Italians would not swear that it was Mrs. Bertoli that did it as all they had seen was the arm and hand reach out with something in it. The trouble seemed to have started some years ago. While Mrs. Bertoli was in Italy with her children, witness (Mrs. Pizzali) stated that the husband had come to her with a book in which he asked her to write a declaration that she had seen the accused kissing another Italian who was boarding there. Magistrate Atkinson objected to the introduction of this evidence without producing the book. Lawyer Kester insisted that he was right as it was a case of cross-questioning a witness of the crown. The magistrate over-ruled him as it had happened so long ago (three years) that it was not fair to the witness. The case was held over until a messenger was sent to get the book. In the meantime Dr. Byers told of the woman being brought to his place for attention. Constable Fulton also told of a phone call from the Gold Range hotel and on his arrival there of the woman, Mrs. Bertoli, then in a very hysterical condition, giving herself up fearing the wounded woman might be killed. On a resumption of the trial the book was produced and the witness Mrs. E. Pizzali, admitted the writing. There was a clash between the court interpreter D. Cattarello and Mr. Kester over the interpreting of the fact that witness had written she had called and was told the woman was out and she had been there. The text was interpreted the "boss" was out but Mr. Cattarello showed that the word "padrona" as written, meant lady-boss, whereas "padrone" would have meant the man of the house. A sister-in-law of the wounded woman was also on the stand for some time. She also admitted having made a declaration in writing in the book to the effect that she had seen the Bertoli children looking for their mother and crying. The witnesses stated that the husband wanted these signed declarations as a favour so that if his wife died, because she was then sick in Italy, he could claim his children and bring them back to this country. It was stated he and his wife had not been living amicably. Officer Fulton stated that sometime ago Mrs. Bertoli had complained about the trouble the Pizzalis were making for her. The question of more bail was raised by Mr. Caldwell, crown attorney, but this matter was to be left to the judge. Mr. Cummings asked the magistrate that all the parties be warned to keep the peace as there were threats and counter-threats of revenge being circulated. Magistrate Atkinson asked interpreter Cattarello to make it very clear to all—none of whom spoke English—that the matter was now in the hands of the law and all must abide by it.

Vincent Rados, an underground worker at the Ankerite Mines, died at the Porcupine Presbyterian hospital on Tuesday, April 18th, about noon as the result of a delicate operation performed after an accident while at work on Monday, April 17th. He was standing on the side of a car, it is said, and his foot slipped. As he fell his side hit the car. He was rushed to the hospital and the doctors in charge had high hopes that the operation would be successful. A ruptured bladder is supposed to have caused death. The inquest will be held at five o'clock Wednesday. The funeral is being held on Wednesday afternoon. The late Mr. Rados was born in Czecho-Slovakia thirty-seven years ago, and is survived by a wife and two children in that country.

Mr. Cyril Newell, machinist at the Ankerite, is at present on his honeymoon in the south, having taken as a bride a Sudbury young lady. They are expected back soon and will take up residence at the Ankerite.

BUT NOT WITH A MAN...
 WITH AN AUTOMOBILE!"

Try a Rockne... and You'll Buy a Rockne Six-cylinder, 70 h. p. engine floated in rubber... free wheeling, synchronized shift, silent second... automatic switch-key starting... double-drop "X" frame... one piece all steel bodies... contoured upholstery with special coil springs... lower over-all height... and numerous other fine car features.

YOU won't blame me. You'll fall in love with my new car yourself when you see it. It's simply gorgeous. It's a Rockne. You ought to hear Dad tell his friends about it. He says Rockne is positively the best buy he's ever seen in an automobile. He thinks I'm just about the brainiest girl in town.

You see, Dad gave me my choice of any low-priced car... so naturally I decided to try them all. And there just wasn't anything you would mention in the same breath with Rockne.

But, you know, I was actually worried for a while. I thought the Rockne they showed me was something special and extra priced, it was upholstered so beautifully and fitted out so completely. The salesman just laughed. He said everybody makes the same mistake.

The Studebaker people are behind Rockne, you see. And Dad says that's why Rockne looks like a costly car even though it's surprisingly low in price.
