IMPORTANCE of ALKALINITY

"ACIDITY"—"ACID BLOOD STREAM"—These terms have come to have a definite and important meaning to everyone interested in health. Reports of extensive scientific research is making the relationship between body-acidity and most human physical ailments a matter of common knowledge. Over acidity can be blamed for a wide variety of physical ills ranging from minor complaints to serious organic disabilities.

The use of ALKALINES in combating these disorders is meeting with general approval and acclaim.

A HIGHLY ALKALINE MINERALIZED WATER OF GREAT PURITY, SCIENTIFICALLY PREPARED IN A TORONTO LABORATORY, is making a remarkable record in counteracting ACIDITY, assisting Nature in COMBATING AND ELIMINATING TOXIC AND WASTE MATTERS FROM THE BODY by increasing the ALKALINITY of the BLOOD STREAM.—

IT IS CALLED

ELECTROVITA

If YOU or a member of your family is suffering from any disorder that ELECTROVITA might help, you owe it to yourself and your family to investigate.

A relationship between ACIDITY and many physical disorders has been definitely established. A partial list of these ailments follows:—

Acidosis	Catarrh	Many Infant and
Rheumatism	Asthma	Children's Disorders
Arthritis	Sinus Trouble	Pneumonia
Neuritis	Indigestion	Grippe
Infections (internal	Ulcers	Bronchitis
and external)	Eczema	Many Organic
Balls	Kidney Trouble	Diseases

Electrovita—100% pure—not laxative—prepared ALKALINE mineral health water. (Not a "patent medicine").

Ask That Investing Public be Protected

Suggestion for a Central Governing Body to Supervise the Creation and Administration of Joint Stock Companies in Ontario.

There is a growing tendency in Ontario, indeed, throughout Canada, to pass what may be termed paternalistic legislation. Under such a head may be lumped all social welfare work from prison reform to old age pensions. The idea also includes legislation designed to protect the public from different dangers and pitfalls. Whether such legislation may be considered as justified may, perhaps, be best decided by those of wide experience. In the meantime, however, the viewpoint of some is worth considering. For instance, there is the matter of the control of stock selling. On this issue, The Toronto Mail and Empire says:—

"Lieut.-Col. George Drew, Chairman of the Ontario Securities Board, was not exaggerating when he said that unscrupulous company promoters are largely responsible for much of the radical thought abroad in the land today. Sane men do not complain bitterly of capital or wealth. What they do resent is chicanery, stock watering, the juggling of company statements and the payment out to themselves of large and unearned salaries. This is strong language to come from a Government official, but Col. Drew has been engaged for some time in trying to prevent frauds on the public and he knows what has been going on behind the scenes. While he condemns unscrupulous promoters without stint, he must realize that the majority of men occupying high positions in the financial and industrial world of Canada have been honorable and fair in their dealings with investors and the general public.

"Much has been done in recent years in this province to stop fraudulent flotations and sales of stocks. High pressure brokers and salesmen have been prosecuted and convicted, and it is worth while noting that the Toronto Stock Exchange went through the crash of 1929 and has weathered the subsequent depression without a single member failure to mar its record. This fine showing was no doubt partly due to the improvement in the Ontario Securities Act which went into force in 1928. Something has been done in the other provinces to check securities frauds and to protect the public. In Ontario and other provinces forward steps have been taken to tighten up the existing protective legislation. In this province new regulations, borrowed from the English Companies Act of 1929, have lately been brought into force to safeguard the home against the invasion of unscrupulous salesmen and to compel all salesmen to furnish their prospective clients with adequate particulars regarding the securities which they peddle. But, as Col. Drew says, Governments must go further. Measures must be taken to stop the evil at the fount—that is to prevent the issue of unsound securities.

"Jealousies between the Dominion and the provinces over company control have heretofore prevented adequate action in this respect. Each of the provinces has the power to issue limited company charters, while the Federal Government has the same right. If a company promoter cannot obtain a charter at Ottawa, he tries one of the provinces, and if refused there, goes to other provinces, one after the other, until he gets what he wants. The different Governments, for revenue reasons and for other reasons, dislike giving up any of their powers, and partly as a result of this reluctance investors all over the country are loaded with worthless stocks and bonds. If there had been uniformity or centralization of control in regard to company promotions and flotations, much of the ruin thus wrought would have been avoided. What is required is either a uniform companies act passed by each Legislature or, preferably, a single Dominion company act approved by all provinces. The danger with the former proposal is that the uniform act would sooner be adopted than each province would start amending it. It is understood that at the last conference of the provinces with the Dominion authorities, the provinces consented to a considerable measure of centralization in regard to companies legislation. It certainly is to be hoped that no time may be lost in placing the desired legislation on the federal statute books.

"The Chairman of the Ontario Securities Commission feels that in addition to a Dominion act agreed to by the provinces, there should be a central governing body to supervise the creation and administration of joint stock companies throughout the Dominion. This central authority might be provided for in the proposed new act and it might be called 'The Dominion Corporation and Securities Commission.' By such means unscrupulous men could be prevented from floating companies to take over their own properties at exaggerated values, and other get-rich-quick schemes could be suppressed. 'Polite robbery in the form of excessive salaries,' says Col. Drew, could be made a thing of the past. The speaker would go so far as to forbid the banks from handling industrial issues.

"Nor is it thought that such centralization would harm anyone. While protecting the investing public, it would simplify the task of honest promoters and legitimate company organizers. Instead of having to deal with ten Governments they would have to deal with only one. The financial suffering caused by the depression, from which we now seem to be recovering, has directed the attention of thoughtful men to the need of some such preventive legislation as we have been discussing. There are in the public mind the names of a very few high-pressure financiers who are held responsible for the cost of the wrong done in the investment field during the years preceding the collapse of 1929. It is to clip the wings of such aggressive and unscrupulous individuals for the future that the suggestions here outlined, and mooted in other quarters, have been put forward. We believe that the need for drastic action is imperative."

Thinks Town By-laws Should be Available

Advices Consolidation of Town By-Laws and Printing of Same, so that Public May Keep Them in Proper Regard.

The following letter was received last week for publication, the name of the writer accompanying the letter as required by the rules of newspaperdom:—

Timmins, Ont., June 22nd, 1933
To the Editor of The Advance, Timmins.

Dear Sir:—Would you point out that the town's by-laws should be consolidated and printed. We are expected to observe them, but, as it is, we can not get a copy, as that job has never been done.

It would at the same time give someone employment for a while.

Yours truly,
Timmins Ratepayer.

The point in the above letter is well taken. On several occasions The Advance has suggested the revision and consolidation of the town by-laws and then having them printed in booklet form so that they may be available to the citizens. A number of the by-laws, such as the building by-law, the plumbing by-law, the electricians' by-law, early closing by-law and others are in constant demand. More than one council has taken up the matter and preparations have been commenced for the revision, consolidation and printing of the by-laws, but something has always come up to stop progress in this line. Some years ago there was so much interest in the building by-law that there was such a general request for the printing of the by-laws that council had the matter under consideration. However, about that time there were changes made in the building by-law, and the whole question was deferred. So it goes! However, there does not seem to be any doubt but that the revision, consolidation and printing of the town by-laws would be of public advantage, but whether the present is an opportune time for this is a question that the council must be left to decide. At the present time anyone can learn the provisions of town by-laws by enquiring at the town clerk's office, but with the by-laws revised and printed the citizens would have a much better opportunity to study and understand any of the by-laws that affect them. As the Timmins Ratepayer suggests in his letter, the procedure would likely result in better observance of the by-laws, as well as helping the general conveniences.

Plan of Marketing Gold Now Changed

Not Now Necessary to Sell Futures in London, England, Against Delivery There, Says Mining Paper.

The matter of the marketing of gold mined in Canada is taken up in the last issue of The Northern Miner, of Toronto. In this connection The Northern Miner says:—

Marketing of Canadian produced gold in London is working out well for the mines and shipments are being settled for pretty much on the basis of the daily quotations on gold in Canadian funds sent out from Ottawa daily. Some slight reduction is caused by insurance, transportation, brokerage and the cost of transferring money first from pounds to U.S. dollars and then into Canadian dollars. The total of these charges, however, amounts to only a few cents an ounce, probably ten cents. The Northern Miner understands. Arrangements have been made to improve the system of gold sale on behalf of Canadian mines whereby it will be possible to ship to London and have settlement made on the price on delivery day. Most of the shipments to date have followed sales on a futures basis, that is the price has been agreed upon before the gold left Ottawa. The new arrangement is expected to be more satisfactory.

There is considerable discussion in mining circles as to how long shipments of Canadian gold to London are likely to continue. The normal market for the metal is the U.S. because it takes only over night to reach that market from Ottawa, whereas over a week is required to reach London and there is no daily service. The question of interest lost on the extra time in marketing and in receipt of settlement also enters into the picture.

It seems to be generally believed that the position of gold in the United States is untenable, because of the fact that while gold is valued there at only $20.67 an ounce it is possible to get $23 or more an ounce U.S. funds by purchasing the money with gold in the international money markets. A declaration as to the value of gold in the U.S. or rather the extent of depression from gold of the U.S. dollar, is the only means of clarifying the situation and it is unlikely that the U.S. will make such a declaration until some basis of revaluation of currencies is decided at the forthcoming Economic Conference. It seems to be generally agreed that some form of revaluation of gold will be the outcome of the conference.

Mining interests here in Canada, at least those seen by The Northern Miner, seem to generally think that the net result will be a price level of $27-28 an ounce, or about that established by experience of the past six or seven weeks. On the other hand there are some mining executives here, not very many, who feel that no change will be made in the gold content of the U.S. dollar, and that finally things will work back to the old $20.67 basis. Still again, one of the largest operators, a man with excellent American connections and who has been very right so far, declares his political friends tell him that the gold content of the U.S. dollar is to be dropped an even 33 1-3 p.c., down to 14.15 grains, which would mean 27.56 U.S. dollars for an ounce of gold, and presuming the exchange differential holding, about $30-$31 Canadian. However, time alone will tell. Representatives of groups who are heavily interested in Canadian gold stocks left this week for London, to be on the conference spot.

Three Medals Awarded to Young Cobalt Athlete

The New Liskeard Speaker last week says:—"Three medals, all awarded to the same athlete, were brought to Cobalt last week-end as a result of the efforts of three pupils from the high school there, who took part in the athletic meet in Toronto under the auspices of the Ontario Athletic Commission. The various events, open to pupils of secondary schools in the province, were held at Varsity stadium. Tom Jackson who plays rugby in the fall, hockey in the winter, established a new Ontario and Dominion record in winning the senior pole vault, when he went 12 feet 11 inches to smash the former figure of 12 feet even. Jackson also came third in the javelin throw, in which an Ottawa youth smashed another record. As a result of his prowess, "the red" (nicknamed "the red" from "Cobalt" (vide The Globe), carried off two gold medals and a bronze one. Other members of the team which went down were Jim Armstrong and Allan Orr. Armstrong was in the shot put and discus events, coming fourth in the latter, while Orr ran in the mile race. He had intended also taking part in the half mile, but leg injuries forced him to confine his efforts to one event. Jackson, incidentally, took down the pole vault honour in the inter-mediate section a year ago."

MANY DEATHS IN TWO WEEKS IN THE TOWN OF ENGLEHART

Englehart has had no less than eight burials in the cemetery there within a space of two weeks. The deaths have not been from an epidemic, nor have they all taken place in Englehart, but they are all Englehart people. Probably, never before in the history of the town of Englehart were there so many burials in the space of two weeks, except, perhaps, at the time of an epidemic such as the influenza or one of the disastrous forest fires. For the eight deaths referred to there were various causes, some of them being the victims of drowning accidents, another dying from the effects of a fall, and others from ordinary illness.

Sudbury Ukrainians Ask Suppression of Agitators

A resolution asking the federal government to suppress all communistic newspapers and literature, close all halls owned by communistic societies, and deport all agitators was passed at a largely attended meeting of Ukrainian organizations in the parish hall of the Ukrainian Catholic Church, Beech St., Sudbury recently.

Speakers were Rev. Father John Kolson and Nicholas Stuss. J. Diduch was secretary.

The resolution is as follows: "Whereas we know that communism tends to destroy the morale of the people and the very basis of government.

"Whereas we know that communistic agitators are the most harmful element to this country by stirring the peaceful citizen against the laws of the country and inciting the people to acts of violence.

"Resolved that we Ukrainian-Canadians petition the federal government of Canada to put a stop to communistic propaganda. In our minds most expedient means would be to suppress the communistic papers and literature and close their halls or centres of assembly.

"Resolved that as we know that the communistic agitators and leaders do the most harm to this country, we petition the federal government to deport all the disseminators of communistic doctrine."
