Timmins Driver on Wrong Side of Road

Case at Kirkland Lake Results in Jail Term, Fine and Suspension of Driving Permit for a Month. Other Driver Came to Stop.

Last week there was a detailed account of a reckless driving case, in which Timmins men were concerned, published in The Northern News. As a result of this police court case at Kirkland Lake one man was sentenced to jail for ten days, was fined $50.00 and costs or another thirty days, and had his driving license suspended for a month. The story as given in The Northern News is as follows:—

Wrong-Side Driver Draws Fine, Prison.
"A Timmins motorist who failed to keep on his right side of the road after attending a christening here, and who crashed in to another car, cutting a man's knee cap in two, was sent to jail, fined $50 and costs, and had his permit lifted for 30 days.
"John Teipel, the Timmins man, drew this triple penalty in police court last Thursday after he was convicted of a reckless driving charge by the court. He had pleaded not guilty, but it was shown by witnesses that he was on the wrong side of the Kirkland-Swastika highway when his automobile collided head on with a machine driven by J. W. Ross, Kirkland Lake citizen, on the evening of July 1, after Ross had pulled to a dead stop in an effort to escape harm at the hands of the Timmins driver. Teigel, in his defence, pleaded that he was blinded by headlights on Ross' car—an explanation that was spiced by E. E. Pearlman, acting Crown attorney, pointing out that Teigel could not have been bothered by the other machine's headlights because of the presence of a curve at the scene of the accident near the Lake Shore mine.

"Teigel was defended by Archie Brown, Timmins barrister.
"Ross, who limped as he walked to the witness stand, recalled that on the evening of July 1 he was motoring back to Kirkland Lake from Timmins. En route to his home, on the Swastika-Kirkland road, he said that he noticed another car coming towards him about 100 yards away. It was on his side of the highway. To give the driver plenty of room to pass, he said he came to a full stop and gave the approaching car three-quarters of the highway.
"I expected him to swing across to his own side of the road," related Ross, "but he didn't swing a mite. The next minute the cars hit, and as a result of the accident my knee cap was broken. Two men from the Lake Shore mine came to my help and I was given medical assistance and taken to the hospital."

"Mr. Brown, the defence lawyer, suggested that Ross could have avoided the accident by driving ahead instead of stopping—a suggestion that drew a caustic observation from the bench. "Do you want him to climb over on the sidewalk?" he remarked.
Breath Smelled of Liquor
"Crown witnesses included Joe Meath, Al Pitcher and Alex Kincaid. They were coming off duty at the Lake Shore mine and heard and saw the crash and at once went to the help of the motorist. Several in Teigel's car were slightly hurt and Teigel suffered a broken nose in the crash. Questioned by the acting Crown attorney none of the three would say that the Timmins motorist had been drinking, but Chief of Police William Shane and Constable Allen Morrison, who investigated the accident, asserted that Teigel's condition was one apparently brought about by drink. Chief Shane quoted Teigel as saying after the accident that he had had a few bottles of beer at a christening at 58 Main street some time prior to the accident.
"Teigel, on taking the stand, asserted that the headlights of Ross' car bothered him and he wasn't able to stop his car in time to avoid a crash.
Christening or Picnic?
"You heard what the police said. That you had been to a picnic and had been drinking?" Mr. Brown asked Teigel.
"It was a christening, wasn't it?" put in Magistrate Atkinson.

"A christening and a picnic are one and the same thing," remarked Mr. Brown, amid a general laugh.
"Teigel admitted he had been to a party, but he asserted he hadn't had a drink in six years. His testimony was supported by Louis Zagar and Tony Krsvic, of Timmins, who both declared that Teigel was blinded by the headlights of Ross' car. Ross previously had said that he dimmed his lights prior to the crash.
"To a query from the magistrate Teigel was at a loss to account for his position on the wrong side of the road. Pressed for an answer he finally said: "Well, I don't know where I am."
"There should be a heavy penalty against people driving with glaring lights," complained Mr. Brown who informed the court that it was a common practice on the part of Kirkland drivers.

Magistrate a Non-Motorist
"Magistrate Atkinson felt there was no reason for an accident like the one in question to happen if Teigel had been driving on his right side of the road and he ruled against the Timmins man. The sentence was 10 days in jail, $50 and costs or 30 days in jail and the suspension of his driving license for a month.
"Mr. Brown pleaded for the abolition of the jail term but His Worship was adamant.
"But glaring lights are a crime," put in Mr. Brown.
"The magistrate sagely observed that headlights and motor traffic never gave him any worry.
"I stick on my feet or ride on railroad," he remarked, amid a laugh.

London, England, Opinion on Gold Mine Prospects

A London opinion, in the influential "Stock Exchange Gazette" on gold shares is interesting. "Holders of the good-class gold shares are as reluctant as ever to sell. Many are adding to their portfolios and new buyers are coming on the scene. I am told not to be surprised if we see an autumn boom in gold shares even bigger than the one last February."
In the following London comment on gold shares it should be noted that gold has since risen to 129s 4½d per oz. "Gold shares continue almost to monopolize interest in the mining market and remain, indeed, among the most favoured speculative investments anywhere in the Stock Exchange. Gold itself has reached the new high level since last December of 129s 3d per fine oz., and few would be surprised to see it this autumn cross last November's record of 130s 8d. The old par was a shade under 85s per oz., so that most of the Empire's mines are making unprecedentedly handsome profits. There has been as yet no serious rise in working costs, although taxation has, as a rule, been increased, especially in South Africa and New Zealand."

Apple Tree Bearing at South Porcupine

Capt. Maxwell Smith Still Suffering from Injury Received in Fire Months Ago. Other News from South Porcupine and District.

South Porcupine, Ont., Sept. 13th, 1935. Special to The Advance.
Many of his friends here regret that Mr. Maxwell Smith is under medical specialist's treatment in Toronto for an injury caused to his head by a burning brand that struck him on the night of the fire at the T. and N. O. station here. It never healed properly, having caused him much trouble since and is now requiring treatment over an extended period. Mr. Smith is captain of the fire brigade here and it is sincerely hoped that he may soon be completely recovered.
Reports from Kirkland Lake say that Miss Shaw is improving nicely after her recent accident and is now removed from the hospital to the home of her friend, Mrs. Heath. She will be able to come back to South Porcupine about October 1st, it is said. Meanwhile her work as principal of the school here is being efficiently conducted by Miss McNabb.

Another successful bridge and euchre was sponsored by the Roman Catholic church in the High School hall on Tuesday evening, September 12th. Those winning prizes in bridge were:—ladies' first, Mrs. S. Sky; second, Miss M. Winkle; third, Mrs. Allan Pearce; men's first, Mr. J. Pecore; second, Mr. F. Purdy; third, Mr. Allan Pearce, all of South Porcupine. In euchre the lucky ones were—ladies' first, Mrs. J. Spitz; second, Mrs. S. Lloyd (Dome); third, Mrs. Beaudry; men's first, Mr. W. Miller (town); Mr. J. McGinn (Dome Extension); Mr. S. Lloyd (Dome). The door prize was won by Mr. John Sharp, of Timmins; the electric iron by Miss Lynch, and the ham and pickles by Mr. Frank Rich.
Mr. Alex Grenz, of Bruce avenue, South Porcupine, has an apple tree that this year has reached the bearing stage. Had it not been for the hail which knocked off many of the blossoms he feels he would have had a still better crop.

Supremacy for the second half of the softball league schedule was to have been definitely decided on Tuesday evening when the two teams—Mine and Shops met in weather that would have been more appropriate for pitching snowballs than softball, but again darkness intervened before the final issue could be settled. This time the game was ordered replayed. Ostrowsky and Thomas for the Mine, Mansfield and Cattarello for the Shops were the respective batteries. The Mine led throughout, the first innings closing with a 4-2 advantage for them. The game was snappy and a thoroughly enjoyable one to watch despite the chilling wind. At the closed of the second the score was 7-3 for the Mine. Proulx's home run scored Thomas and Pollard also made a non-stop journey round the bases. McLean scored for the Shops. Taylor batted a two-bagger but faded at third. At the close of the third the score read 8-5 for the Mine. Ostrowsky made the only tally for the Mine, Cattarello and Parsons for the Shops. The thrill of this innings when with Pollard on first, Taylor clouted a low one well out to centre field that gave him three bases but Pollard went down ahead of him within a stride of the home plate. Hughes for the Shops and Mason for the Mine were the only tally-makers of the fourth. In the fifth the Shops went down one, two, three while the game for the Mine was put on ice by four more runs. Pollard hit a three-bagger. Next Taylor did likewise, scoring Pollard and sliding home on a single. Mason reached port, then Huggins got a running start to third base and made home on McKinnon's single to right. The sixth innings was started but could not be finished in the gathering darkness so the game will be played when a still earlier start can be made.

Talking of Unemployment Look at Case of Germany

The following from the current issue of The Literary Digest makes rather interesting reading from many viewpoints:—
Herr Walter Funk, chief of the German Official Press Bureau, talked with an English editor about Germany's New Deal to combat unemployment, and told of public works plans which are "the main preoccupation not only of Chancellor Hitler, but of every member of the Cabinet."
According to Herr Funk, "no country in the world suffers so heavily from unemployment as Germany." When Adolf Hitler formed his government, the number of registered unemployed totalled 6,250,000, and "there were, in addition, approximately 3,250,000 who were not eligible for any dole and whose names, therefore, are not on the registers." He explains:
"Think of it! Including dependents, from one-quarter to one-third of the entire German people were in receipt of relief."
Reproduced in Answers (London), Herr Funk's statement continues: "We have altered that already. Since the first day of last February 2,000,000 men have been provided with work. How have we done it? By large-scale schemes of public works—the construction of motor roads, the creation of new settlements in thinly populated districts of East Prussia, the cultivation of waste land, the encouragement of new branches of production." In consequence, "new hope has dawned for the masses," and "new impulses have been given to the German people as a whole."
