Appeal to North to Save Green Timber

Suggests Stricter Adherence to the Affidavit Taken in the Matter of Timber Sold from Crown Lands.

In these days with large immediate problems on hand there may be a tendency to overlook the questions that have vital value for the future. This should not be. The New Liskeard Speaker is to be commended for calling special attention to one of these problems that may be termed long distance ones. The Speaker last week made an appeal for the saving of green timber in the North. This is vital in its importance for the future. The difficulty is that it has no immediate value and there is consequently grave danger that it may be overlooked until it is too late.

In connection with this question of green timber The Speaker last week had the following editorial:—"In all parts of the North Land where a few years ago fires completely destroyed the timber thereon, the ground is thickly covered with small poplar, a tree which is amongst the most rapid to grow. Judging by what we have seen in a few short tours, if care be taken, the land on which these trees are growing, would be more valuable if left to grow the timber than if it were cleared with a view to growing grain. Indeed, this is true of many parts of the North which is now covered with spruce. However, the poplar seems to flourish on the lighter or poorer soil better than the other timbers, and hence the stronger reason for allowing the poplar to grow to a size large enough to be utilized for making pulp and paper.

"Up to the present we have not heard that paper is being made to any great extent from poplar, but it seems to be the kind of timber from which pulp is being made, and if ladies' silk skirts, and men's silk ties can be made from spruce, surely paper can be made from poplar.

"Our remarks were suggested because of the large quantities of small poplar one sees cut and piled along the roadsides ready for use as fuel during the coming winter. Indeed, it looks as though in the course of a short time poplar will be a leading fuel timber, whereas it should not be cut for several years, and until it is at least eight inches in diameter. The farmer who can hold his growing timber, no matter of what variety, for a few years to come, will be well rewarded.

"Of course, the owner of timbered land should carefully weed out crooked saplings and thus give the well-formed trees a chance to grow without having to divide the ground's nourishment with trees which will not become valuable.

"Our Department of Agriculture is devoting much attention to the study of the best systems to adopt to produce wealth from the growing of grain and vegetable crops, and with splendid results. And on the whole, perhaps, the Department of Crown Lands has been judiciously managed, although in the earlier days it would appear that the affidavit made by the applicant for Crown Lands has not always been adhered to, the land thus located not being "chiefly valuable" for agricultural purposes. We recommend a stricter adherence to the affidavit which has to be taken. Indeed, it might be well for the department to have an expert inspector's report on every lot applied for ere selling such land. If this course were to be followed it is probable that the spruce and poplar saplings now growing on Crown Lands would be spared until sufficiently large as to become merchantable when it would be of inestimable wealth to Ontario."

SKELTON AT ENGLEHART HAS NOT BEEN IDENTIFIED

Provincial Constable Houldcroft, of Englehart, has been making very extended enquiries with the hope of finding identification made of the skeleton found in the woods near Englehart, several weeks ago, but so far he has not been successful. It was thought that the body might be that of Michael Devine who left Englehart in 1923, with a railway ticket for Windsor. Since then Devine has disappeared from view. He was traced as far as London, Ont., but apparently his ticket was not used after that station was passed. He was going to Windsor to take treatment for his eyes, at the time being threatened with blindness. It was thought by some that he may have returned to Englehart unknown to his friends and met death in the woods. There were some grounds for this belief but in general friends of Devine were inclined to doubt the probability of the return of Devine. However, Constable Houldcroft made every effort to check up on this theory and now it seems to be disproved. With the skeleton was found a home-made pipe, a pair of spectacles of peculiar shape and other rather unusual articles that seemed to promise aid in identification. When these articles were shown to relatives of Devine they were certain that he had not been the owner. The identification of the body recently found near Englehart consequently still remains unsolved. However, Constable Houldcroft is still working on the matter and if the puzzle can be solved at all he likely will accomplish it.

JUDGE HAYWARD'S CANE BACK AFTER JOURNEY OF 1400 MILES

Robt. Swan, special investigator for the T. & N. O., recently returned a walking stick owned by Judge Hayward after the cane had travelled some 1400 miles and been traced by the investigation department and finally located in the unclaimed baggage department at Toronto. While travelling from Hallyburton to Englehart, Judge Hayward left his cane on the train. The matter was reported to the T. & N. O. and Inspector Swan started about getting their man, but the T. & N. O. makes a business not only of getting their man but also his cane if he loses it on their line. The cane was traced to Cochrane, 112 miles away. Before word could be sent to have it returned to Hallyburton it had started south again. Next it was traced to Montreal, 600 miles away, and from there it seem to proceed to Toronto, another 334 miles of travel. Word was sent to Toronto to forward it to North Bay and there it was taken in charge by Inspector Swan and duly returned to its owner. In the meantime the walking cane had apparently become a travelling stick, having enjoyed a trip or series of trips of over 1400 miles.

Claims Record Crop of Potatoes for the North

Wm. Crawford, of the Goldale town-site, claims a record for potatoes in the North this season and it looks as if he would have no competitors in the line in which he excelled this year. He planted about three pounds of potatoes this year, he says, and from this he secured a crop of three full bags and an 11-quart basket heaped to the top. Can anyone beat that? Mr. Crawford suggests it is a record for this part of the North, but it would appear to be a record for anywhere. According to this yield a man could plant three or four of the potatoes recently mentioned as growing at Wilson's Farm, Porcupine, this year, and he would reap three or four bags as a return. Of course, while a small area may give an enormous crop it does not necessarily follow that big areas will provide a proportional yield. There are factors such as care, attention, etc., that do not apply to large plots to the same extent as smaller ones. The potatoes harvested by Mr. Crawford were good ones. Of course they were not of the size that Frank Rodger grew at his summer home at Wilson's Farm, Golden City, or that were grown this year elsewhere on the Wilson Farm. One of the potatoes from Frank Rodger's garden noted in The Advance weighed nearly two pounds while another was four ounces over the two pounds. Those weighing over a pound were quite common.

SUMMER IN THE NORTH AND WINTER REIGNS IN SOUTH

The Sudbury Star last week had the following editorial note:—"A few days after a snow flurry was reported in Toronto, a South Porcupine housewife was picking ripe, luscious strawberries in her garden. Degrees of latitude mean nothing in temperatures. It is still summer in the North Land when Southern Ontario is dropping its ear-laps."

FINED FOR PAINTING OVER 1931 MARKER TO USE IN 1933

The Hallyburian last week says:—"A fine of $10 and costs, $24.75 in all, was assessed against F. Grenier of Belle Valley, in Cobalt police court on Friday last, when he was convicted on a charge of using a 1931 marker on his car when driving to the market in the silver town the previous week. The old plate had been painted over to resemble the current issue and the defendant stated that he had lost the rear one, but understood it had been picked up by a man on a grader. He had made no effort to recover it, and Provincial Constable H. Alsopp, the traffic officer, had been unable to locate the fender. Grenier had bought new plates after being summoned to court, it was stated but this did not persuade Magistrate Atkinson to let him go free and the fine was imposed."

ANOTHER ILLUSTRATION OF WHAT MAY OR MAY NOT BE NEWS

There is the old-time wise-crack that if a dog bites a man that isn't news, but if a man bites a dog that's news. Maybe by the same token it might be said that if a bear chokes a man to death that wouldn't be news but if a man chokes a bear successfully that is news. Of course the latter news came from Sault Ste. Marie where the wolves play with the children in the homes, and only the advocates of a route by way of the rocky north shore of Lake Superior are wild. In the story there was a young man who slept each night in the haymow. He was feeling around with his hands the other night to locate the ladder when he encountered some animal. At once he grasped it by the throat and yelled for help. A brother went after a light and when this was turned on the scene it was found that the animal was a bear cub and that it had been choked to death in the meantime. The strange things that happened under the Northern Lights in the Yukon are commonplace episodes in comparison to the remarkable incidents that occur daily in the despatches from Sault Ste. Marie.

The North Land Knows Its Onions—and Cauliflowers

There are two items in The New Liskeard Speaker last week in regard to big onions and cauliflowers. Apparently they "know their onions" in the Scotty Springs district. Anyway, The Speaker says:—"On Tuesday we received four onions from the North which are very fine specimens, and for a few days they will be on exhibit in our window. Mr. George Latimer, of Scotty Springs, sent us the onions, and Mr. Latimer says: "These were grown from Dutch Sets, in my garden, 75 miles north of New Liskeard on the main line of the T. & N. O." There have been some fine specimens of onions in this district this year, but the samples sent down by Mr. Latimer compare favourably with any we have seen."

But if, to repeat the modern slang phrase, "they know their onions," it is also apparent that the cauliflowers are not far behind. This is what The Speaker says about it:—"We have heard about big potatoes and real pumpkins, but the ten pound (less one ounce) solid head of cauliflower by the grower, Mr. H. R. Treadaway, of Thornloe, is in a class by itself, so far as cauliflowers are concerned. The specimen was on exhibit at the Kiwanis luncheon on Monday and proved quite an attraction. We can't remember ever having seen a larger head of this variety of vegetable, where the growth was just about perfect."

Brantford Expositor:—Fred W. A. Conrad, of Annapolis, Md., suggests that $100,000,000 of the new U.S. navy grant be spent on the construction of a passenger carrying rocket for a trip to the moon. To which is may be added that the scramble which is now going on for larger navies contains just about the same amount of sense.

Acquit Dome Man on Manslaughter Count

Alexander Shumlack Tried Last Week at Cochrane in Connection with the Death of Frank Rainville at Barber's Bay on July 29.

At the Supreme Court at Cochrane last week the jury brought in a verdict after about a half an hour's deliberation, acquitting Alexander Shumlack on the charge of manslaughter in the matter of the death of Frank Rainville, of Iroquois Falls, who was fatally injured at Barber's Bay on July 29th. Shumlack, who is an employee of the Dome Mines, was driving from Porquis Junction when he struck the Rainville car which was standing on the road near a turn at Barber's Bay. Rainville was standing behind the open door of his car when the collision occurred. According to the medical testimony given by Dr. McLaren at the trial, Rainville sustained a badly fractured left leg, a broken jaw, and various bruises and cuts of less serious sort. Death was due to shock, the medical testimony said. A young man named Lafontaine, who was with Rainville in the car just before the accident, said that they had been at a dance at Bay-side Beach and leaving there had stopped at Deschene's house on the Timmins-Porquis Junction highway. Rainville told the court that he got out of the car, passed in front and noticed that the headlights were on full. When he was several feet past the road he looked back and saw the Shumlack car coming from the direction of Porquis Junction. The approaching car struck the Rainville car and after going a short distance stopped. The three men in the Shumlack car returned and assisted him in carrying the injured man to the Deschene house. Later Rainville was taken to the hospital at South Porcupine, the Shumlack car being used for this purpose. Provincial Officer Craik told of investigating the accident. He found a spot of blood on the road. He also had made measurements with regard to the length of clear vision a car would have in approaching the scene of the accident as the Shumlack car had done. He said that he had found there was clear vision for about three hundred feet around the curve, but this was for the daytime. The accident had occurred at night and experiments had not been made as to the situation then. C. V. Gallagher, land surveyor of South Porcupine, gave evidence as to measurements made and the plan made of the scene of the accident, this plan being exhibited to the court as part of the evidence. The witnesses for the defence all were agreed that they did not see Rainville standing beside his car before the accident happened. They claimed that the headlights of the Rainville car were blinding and that they did not see the parked car until they were almost upon it. This was due to the curve in the road. Dean Kester, of Timmins, conducted the defence in very able way, and his address to the jury was a very effective one. The crown was represented by Mr. Sheard, of Toronto, who also was effective in his presentation of his side of the case. In accepting the jury's verdict of not guilty, His Lordship Judge Barrow, said that he considered the finding a proper one in view of the evidence and the circumstances.

Uncle Jack Shows Them How to Use Crosscut Saw

Half a dozen young men were cutting wood in front of the town hall at Cobalt last week when a gentleman stopped to watch them. He wasn't so young in years for his hair was gray, but it was easy to see he had never lost the youth of his heart. He watched the laboured sawing for a minute or two, then he said to one of the young men, "Let me get on one end of that cross-cut saw for a minute or two and I may show you something." The saw was given to the gentleman in the blue suit and the hard hat. He did show them a thing or two about sawing wood with a crosscut saw. "You should lift up the saw a little at the end of the pulling stroke," he said. "Like this," he explained, showing them how the trick was done. He gave them other tricks that made the use of the crosscut saw easier and more effective. And it wasn't all talk with this gentleman; he showed just how it was actually done. He more than held his own at that cross-cut for half a dozen cuts. "That's a lot easier and better," said one of the young men after the gentleman had passed along. "Wonder who the gink it. He knows his wood and cross-cut for half a dozen cuts. The "gink" was Uncle Jack Miner, the noted nature lover, last week touring the North on a lecture tour. From the time he was a lad with freckles as close as a Scotsman and hair as red as the C.C.F., Jack Miner has been used to sawing wood and getting along. The young men who saw him saw wood at Cobalt would be surprised to hear that it was a young lad around seventy that taught them new tricks in sawing wood. Many who heard Jack Miner singing in the middle of his lecture last week at Timmins will know for a fact that the voice was not that of a man of seventy, but it was just the same.

LOCAL RETAILERS You Have Rights!

You know that a manufacturer includes in the selling price of his product a percentage for press advertising—a percentage ranging from 3 to 5 per cent—sometimes, even more—when consumer-resistance is great or when the gross profit margin is very large. So, when a manufacturer spends $50,000 a year on press advertising, it can be assumed that the total annual sales of his product amount to from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000.

Now, if you are stocking a nationally-advertised product—advertised in big-city dailies and in nationally-circulated magazines, you have a right to see this product also being locally advertised—in this newspaper. Your total annual sales of the maker's product joined to those of its other local distributors (if there are others), entitle you to demand that the product be locally advertised in this newspaper.

Clearly, it is not right that you should be required to promote the sale of a product in the territory served by this newspaper, without receiving from the manufacturer the same kind and degree of sales assistance which he is giving retailers resident in cities where he is spending a lot of money on local advertising.

N.B.—Cut out this advertisement, and show it to the representative of firms whose products you are asked to stock and push)

Quite too often manufacturers don't want to advertise in local weekly newspapers, saying that it costs too much. They forget, however, that their sales in towns served by weekly newspapers provide an advertising fund which should be spent locally. Why should the contributions from local sales to the maker's advertising fund be spent outside the local sales territory?

You have your business to build up, and to the extent that you help manufacturers to obtain and retain sales in this territory, to that extent you should receive local advertising assistance.

You've got a first-class case to put before the manufacturers who want you to stock and push the sales of their product, then why not present it, either direct, or through the maker's representative when he calls?
