News came to Mr. Fred Croteau this week, that his brother, known as "Zeb" Croteau, and well-known to many people in the camp, was found dead in his shack in the Peace River district where he was prospecting and trapping. No details have yet been heard, except that death must have been sudden and unexpected. Mr. Croteau worked as a carpenter while here and built the bungalow at the back of the station now occupied by Mr. George Rich.

We are glad to learn that Mrs. Don Eames, of Dome Extension, is around after a sharp spell of sickness.

The turkey supper which the Catholic Women's League put on in the Masonic hall last Wednesday, proved a complete success. Over three hundred partook of the excellent meal provided, and did full justice to the menu. Mrs. Lloyd, of the Dome, was in charge of the affair, assisted by the members of the League and to her is due in great measure the success of the supper.

The League are planning to put on a play, to be produced around March 17th, the title being, appropriately enough for such a date, "The Lucky Emerald." The play is being cast, and moulded into shape, by Mrs. Bessette and Miss Teresa Burns. With two such dramatic and musical directresses, we look forward with pleasure, to the production of the play.

Mrs. E. E. Davis, of Porcupine, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Sandy Hogg, at the Dome this week.

A large number availed themselves of the very reasonable rate on the special train to Noranda on Sunday, to accompany the local hockey team and watch it again achieve success. We understand that Asseline in goal covered himself with glory and was the

William Moore Dead at Moosonee Aged 79

Born South of Timmins. Lived all his life in North. Was a Brother of Jos. Moore, of Timmins.

Word came from Moosonee on Monday of the death at Moose Factory on Sunday, Feb. 4th, of William Moore, well known as the blacksmith at Moose Factory. He was a brother of Joseph Moore, of Timmins. The late Wm. Moore had spent all his life in the North, being for over 30 years at Moose Factory. His blacksmith shop at Moose Factory is famed for the fact that it is the oldest building in Ontario. In referring to the opening of the T. & N. O. extension to Moosonee on James Bay, and also to visits to Moose Factory on an island a few miles from Moosonee several references have been made in recent years to the old blacksmith shop and also to the genial blacksmith there. He made friends of all visiting the Hudson Bay post at Moose Factory and viewing the oldest building in Ontario: the blacksmith shop. Among his visitors in recent years were premiers and vice-royalty. His Excellency the Earl of Bessborough, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson and Hon. Geo. S. Henry and many other distinguished men, found Wm. Moore interesting and attractive for his philosophy of life and his geniality.

The late William Moore was born at the Mattagam Post of the Hudson Bay Co. this post being situated south of where now stands the town of Timmins. The late Wm. Moore was born in 1855 and joined the Hudson Bay Company staff in 1871. Thus he served that famous organization for 62 years being with them until the day of his death. His brother, Joseph, now living in Timmins, and well past seventy years of age, was also on the staff of the Hudson Bay Co. Their father was a Hudson Bay factor in the North for many years, so the connection of the Moore family with the Hudson Bay Co. is an intimate as well as a long one.

In 1878 the late Wm. Moore was married and later in the year he was transferred to Rupert's House. In 1902 he returned to Moose Factory to reside at the anvil in the blacksmith shop there. He saw the days when Moose Factory was a busy centre and there was a thriving business at the blacksmith shop. Then came days of less activity at Moose Factory. Through it all Wm. Moore maintained notable health and strength. He was ill only a short time. During his life the late Wm. Moore was an active worker in the St. Thomas Anglican church in the far North.

The flags on the Hudson Bay Company post at Moosonee were at half mast for some days this week in respect for the late Wm. Moore whose long service and life will be remembered by the "Hudson's Bay Company of Gentleman Adventurers."

H. S. Theatre Nights Delight Big Crowds

Plays Presented by Students of Timmins High and Vocational School Win Much Favour. Attractive Plays and Clever Acting.

The Theatre Nights presented last Thursday and Friday evenings in the H.S. auditorium by the students of the Timmins High and Vocational School proved to be outstanding successes in every way. The auditorium was crowded to capacity on each evening and the audiences thoroughly enjoyed the programme presented. The three one-act plays were clever and the acting, scenic effects, lighting, staging and other necessary features were carried through with unusual talent. The scenery was by Mr. Worthington, Mr. McDowell and the boys of the woodworking department and the stage equipment was certainly a credit to the department and all connected with it. Equal praise is deserved by the electrical department of the school for the lighting for the occasion and for the clever effects produced in this line. Many may be surprised to know that the beautiful costumes for the play "Columbine" were designed and made by the Domestic Science department, which department deserves compliment for its pleasing efficiency.

As for the acting, the students taking part displayed notable ability and the way each and all entered into the roles assigned was a pleasure to the audience and a credit to the actors and actresses and those directing them.

There was variety and interest on the programme throughout. It was certainly a case where the event fully lived up to the advance notices. There was something good for all tastes and each and every character was delineated with a care and understanding that would do credit to professionals.

"Columbine" a play of beauty, music, dancing, art and with touches of the mystic, made a very general popular appeal. The scenic effects, the costumes, the lighting, the music and the dances were very pleasing. This little play brought back the "immortal wanderers from fairyland," Columbine, Harlequin, Pierrot, and the fairies, while "Dan," "Nathan" and the "Old Man" were also there to complete the "study in contrasts." The characters in "Columbine," in the order of appearance, were as follows—prologue, by Jean MacDonald; "Nathan," Jim Clarke; "Dan," Wilko Strumen; "Columbine," Geraldine Beaudin; "Harlequin," Cecil Linder; "Pierrot," Jacques Saive; "Old Man," Jack Brovender; fairies, Clare O'Gorman, Jean Loehrie, Ethel Bateman, Mary Moxz. This play was directed by Miss Carthy, and the way it was presented reflects credit on each and all concerned.

Following the presentation of "Columbine" there was a delightful interlude during which three songs were given by Lower School girls, directed by Miss Smyth. These songs were—"Ma Curly-headed Baby," "Aura Lee," and "Alice in Wonderland." These songs were melodious and attractive and the sweet voices of the girls added to the treat of the songs themselves. To many these three numbers were alone worth the price of admission. "Alice in Wonderland" was cleverly illustrated by a parade of characters from the famous children's classic, and the rounds of applause showed the appreciation of the audience.

The second play of the evening was "A Night at an Inn" by Lord Dunsany. This play was effectively directed by Miss Garrow, and each character carried his part in very able way. Four seamen hide in a lonely inn with a ruby stolen from an Indian idol. Three avenging priests seek the return of the idol's eye, the ruby. In the end the idol itself appears to recapture its missing and valuable eye. It was all depicted with much skill and artistry. The characters of the play were—"A. F. Scott-Fortescue (The Toff), a dilapidated gentleman," George Darling; "Bill Jones, A'bert Thomas, Sniggers Smith, sailors," Denis Lawley, "A my Volchuk, Mike Zarriski," "Priests of the Idol," Em's Della Vedova, Roland Wilson and Roger Dupuis; "The Idol, Klesh," Jim Gregulski.

There was another very enjoyable interlude of fine music, furnished by Herman Walter on the piano, and David Gordon, on the violin.

Probably the most popular number of the evening and certainly the most amusing was "Station YYYX," by Booth Tarkington. This was a brilliant caricature of the radio in general, and the people who become hysterically enamoured with the radio. So cleverly was the play presented that it appealed to the audience as a humorous escape of some radio broadcasts and announcers. Time and again the play had to wait for the laughter to subside when a particularly good bit was made.
