The Lucky Emerald at South Porcupine

Unusually Good Play Presented Last Week at South Porcupine Under Auspices of the Catholic Women's League

South Porcupine, Ont., March 21st, 1934. Special to The Advance.

Last Friday night saw the Continuation School hall packed to capacity to see the production, "The Lucky Emerald," which was put on under the auspices of the Catholic Women's League. Being an Irish play, produced on St. Patrick's Eve, it is permissible to surmise that a great percentage of the audience was of Irish extraction, but no matter of what nationality, each and every person present thoroughly enjoyed the evening, judging by the careful following of the story, the excellent behavior of the smaller element, and the pleased comments of members of the audience.

Personally, we consider this play one of the best ever produced by amateur performers, on a South Porcupine platform. We heard a comment with which we heartily concurred: "The best play since 'Aunt's Susan's Visit.'"

We heard no prompters' voice throughout the two and one half hours' performance—the whole story had to be put across by the actors, that is, without the aid of elaborate background, etc. And each character was perfectly at ease and natural in his or her individual role.

The characters were well-chosen, the story was interesting, and the introduction of music and dancing between the acts proved a pleasing feature.

Mr. C. V. Gallagher, recve, acted as master of ceremonies and made an introductory speech before the curtain rose.

The story of the play centres round the fortunes of an old Irish nobleman, who is soured of life by the disappointing marriage of his younger son who had been disinherited and had emigrated to America, where he had died leaving only one daughter; and also by the death of his eldest son and heir. This, added to the irritation caused by a peasant neighbour who had amassed wealth in America, and come back to purchase the adjoining estate, and finally the loss by theft of a wonderful emerald regarded for generations as the luck of Derryveragh, have made the old man a nervous and superstitious wreck.

But the coming of Kathleen, his American granddaughter and heiress, gradually makes over the old man and the old house is transformed, including Aunt Maurya.

Kathleen, incidentally marries the son of the neighbouring enemy, and the emerald is returned, and the third scene sees reconciliation and peace to the Lord of Derryveragh.

The Lord of Derryveragh was well taken by W. Jennings, who was consistent all the way through, and acted a difficult role with skill.

Fergus, taken by Harry McLean, was a long-time suitor of Maurya, the old lord's sister, and Harry although quite young for the part, made up and acted quite naturally.

Major D. B. Harrison Dies at New Rochelle

Connected for Many Years with Mining in the Porcupine Camp. Was a Native of Toronto. Resided at New Rochelle, N.Y.

Many in Timmins and district, where he was well known, will regret to learn of the death of Major Duncan Harrison on Tuesday of last week at New Rochelle, N.Y. Major Harrison was prominent in the Porcupine for many years being interested in mining ventures here, the Triplex being one of the properties in which he was especially interested for some years. He was widely known in the district and had many friends in Timmins.

The despatch appearing in the daily newspapers telling of his death read as follows:—

(New Rochelle, N.Y., March 19—(CP)—Major D. B. Harrison, a native of Toronto, whose varied professional career included ventures as a soldier, prospector, mining engineer, composer, playwright, and promoter, died in hospital here to-day after a brief illness. Major Harrison, who would have been 72 next Wednesday, lived in New Rochelle.

A veteran of the Spanish-American war and a former pistol instructor of the New York City police department, Major Harrison was credited with authorship of "The Paymaster," the play in which Made Adams made her first appearance on a New York stage. Major Harrison was born in Toronto on March 21, 1861.

Gold Shows a Little Decline, but Nickel and Copper Make Notable Contributions During the Year that has Passed.

Progress and prosperity stands out in the 1933 report of the mining industry of Ontario, released by the Ontario Department of Mines Saturday.

Metallic minerals produced during the year had a total value of $78,644,060, an increase of approximately $15,000,000, the statement showed.

The aggregate value of all mineral production, including metallic, non-metallic, structural materials and clay products, was $108,548,133, compared with $86,510,925 in 1932.

Gold Down

Although gold production dropped 131,877 ounces under the previous year's total, and its value was $2,725,910 less at a total of $44,558,711, large increases in nickel and copper production brought the 1933 grand total well above the 1932 mark. The value quoted for the gold produced is based on the statutory price. However, the exchange adjustment increases the total value in Canadian funds by $15,841,294.

In 1932 only 30,327,968 pounds of nickel, with a value of $7,179,862 was produced but last year that total jumped to $2,264,658 pounds valued at $20,129,480. And it is indicated that practically all of the nickel produced was exported.

Similarly, copper production was more than doubled in 1933. From the 1932 total of 77,055,413 pounds, production leaped last year to 145,594,726, and the total value jumped from $5,025,684 in 1932 to $10,118,811 in 1933.

Metal Wealth

The grand total of wealth contributed by Ontario's metal resources since the department began to assemble statistics is brought to $1,398,586,583 by the 1933 production. Metal mines paid total dividends of $20,849,918 during the year.

The report comments: "The mining industry of Ontario, more particularly the metal group, is today probably the most prosperous section of industry in the province. While in general the economic condition of the province has greatly improved and advancement made in gold mining have been outstanding, and recovery in the nickel-copper group was in excess of any other industry."

Gold production in Ontario during February, 1934, jumped nearly a million ounces over the value of production in the same month last year, according to the February gold bulletin issued today.

Total gold production in February was 160,540 ounces with a total value of $5,569,210.

Schumacher School Fair—Hobby Show

Interesting Event at Schumacher Public School on Thursday of Next Week, March 29th. Open to the Public.

All through the district there should be very special interest in the Easter exhibition of school work to be given in the Schumacher public school on Thursday of next week, March 29th, from 2.30 to 10 p.m. For some years past the Schumacher School has held these exhibitions and in each case they have roused very noticeable public interest and attention. This year instead of the displays being restricted to the work of pupils, ex-pupils and parents are invited to make entries in the exhibits. The event is planned to be a hobby show as well as a school fair and the interest accordingly should be redoubled this year.

As noted last week the exhibition is open to the public and visitors from outside Schumacher are cordially invited to attend. There is no admission charge, and it would very evidently be well worth anyone's time to visit the school fair and hobby show at Schumacher school, March 29th, from 2.30 to 10 p.m.

Auction at I. K. Pierce's Drawing Large Crowds

An unusual type of auction sale has been in progress at the I. K. Pierce Furniture Co. store for the past week, the best in furniture and kindred lines being offered at auction and sold for the prices offered. The plan is certainly drawing big crowds and many are chuckling over big bargains made. You simply pick out the article you wish put up for auction and it goes to the highest bidder. The store has been crowded each day at 3 p.m. and 8 p.m. Seating accommodation has been provided for those patronizing the sale. The auction sale is under the direction of S. H. Lyen, who is noted throughout the country for his efficiency and for his long years of successful experience at the work. He is well known throughout Canada and has had other successful sales in Timmins in years past.

The auction sales will continue daily at 3 p.m. and 8 p.m., and anyone will be repaid by a visit to the I. K. Pierce Furniture Co. store these days.
