About the King's Horses But Not the King's Men

A friend of The Advance sends in the following clipping about the King's Horses. It should be of special interest to all who have enjoyed hearing Joe Ormston sing about the King's Horses and the King's Men. This clipping deals with the King's Horses, and perhaps some other friend some time will send in another all about the King's Men. Here is the clipping:—
(F. B. Prior, in Our Dumb Animals)
One of the most interesting places in London is the Royal Mews. They are situated in Buckingham Palace road, at the back of the Palace itself.
No other horses in the world have such a splendid home. A long line of roomy stalls goes down each side of the main building, which is in the form of a quadrangle. The Mews has now a "population" of eighty-five; but before the Great War it housed one hundred and sixty-six horses.
The fittings are of polished steel and brass, and every animal is worthy of its surroundings. Over each stall is a plate, bearing the name of its occupant. There are the special horses for the State coaches, the carriage pairs, His Majesty's chargers, the Queen's horses and those of the Royal Princes.
For the last few years the whole of the King's stud has consisted of bays, and the most of the horses are prize winners from shows all over the world. Among the famous creatures are "Swinton," which His Majesty rides in the Row, and "Paris" which, in spite of his twenty-six years can still trot from the Palace to Paddington in fifteen minutes. "Anzac," a war veteran, belonging to the Prince of Wales and "Tom," the leader of the Royal escort, are to be found in the neighbouring stalls. Tom has been trained to trot at so many paces to the second, and all Royal processions are timed by him.

Quite different from all other creatures in the Mews is "Basuto," a pony given to the King by an African chief. He is so sure-footed the grooms believe that he could walk a tight-rope.
There are several horses in the Mews which take part in special processions, such as the Lord Mayor's show, and other big occasions when the King and Queen and their retinue are in attendance.
These horses have all been specially trained to get used to the different street noises. Various articles are beaten to resemble the noises made in a crowded street, so that when the horses do take part in these Royal processions they are not scared, but can easily be driven and controlled by the coachmen.
And what a sight they make with their sleek and shiny coats, their nickel-plated harness, their polished hoofs and the elegant and proud way they carry their heads; as if they realize their importance on such an occasion—and I'm sure if they could speak they would say how proud they felt to be able to be so honoured!

Frood Mines After Football Honours

Importing Soccer Stars from Many Places, Including Timmins, Montreal, Toronto, London, Etc. Out to Outshine Falconbridge.
According to word this week from Sudbury, Frood Mines is out to shine this year in football. In any event the special idea is to at least outshine the now-famous Falconbridge soccer team. Frood mines has lined up no less than seventeen football stars it is said. These include players of note from Timmins, Toronto, Montreal, London and other places. In discussing the team the other day, Jack Cullen, of the Frood Mines football club, the manager of the team, is quoted as saying:—"We haven't seen any of the boys playing yet this season, so we can't say how good they may be." There is general report, however, that the Frood Mines team is a galaxy of stars. The Frood Mines club is stated to have as its chief ambition for the approaching season the idea of knocking Falconbridge for a row of shaky pins. They have the idea also of winning the Ontario honours in football and then going after the Dominion championship. Whether they can do it or not is another matter. In any event the hope and purpose of putting the Falconbridge team in the shade is the one big ambition in the minds of the football enthusiasts. If they can trim up Falconbridge that will be great, and they will likely go on to attempt further honours. A glance at some of the names on the Frood Mines list suggests that Falconbridge has every reason to be watching out for the final. A despatch from Sudbury this week gives an outline of the names and probable positions of several of the new men at the Frood Mines.
Jimmy LaFrance, with London last year, is in the nets and the back positions are taken by Andy Rayne, Ulster, Toronto, left back and Cyril Meadows of London, right back.

of New Zealand, who has announced that a royal commission will be appointed to investigate the New Zealand dairy industry and that a probe will be launched in the United Kingdom into causes of a discrepancy between prices for New Zealand dairy produce and those of competing countries.
Arnott, who played with the Sons of Scotland two years ago, is trying out for the centre forward job as well. Billy Young, of London, is a candidate for the inside left post, and Tommy Morrison, of Toronto Transportation Commission last year, is bidding for the left wing post along with Alex Gray, of McIntyre, and Jack Kelly, of Toronto. Ingles and Bill Callahan, of McIntyre are two more aspirants for the forward line and round out the team that looks as though it would give the goalkeepers in the league many a sleepless night.
It is a rather imposing list of expert football players but the announcement of the list of players for Frood Mines, has not at all convinced the Falconbridge lads that they are in any way overshadowed or likely to be so by the Frood Mines team. Manager Charlie Taylor discussed the question the other day and was able to state that the Falconbridge mine team would have to be recognized as a serious contender for football honours.
"We'll carry on with our old crocks," Taylor told an interviewer in a rather sarcastic tone. "We have all our men of last year except one, Dougal Inglis, who played outside right, who has gone to the Frood. But we'll be in there, don't worry."

Believes Gold Tax Will be Materially Modified

An editorial article in The Toronto Mail and Empire on Friday last had the following to say in regard to the proposed tax on the gross production of gold in Canada:
"Out of yesterday's welter of contrary opinions concerning the new 10 per cent. tax on Canadian gold production, one fact stood forth clearly: The low-grade producers will be hit relatively more hard by the tax than those which are working high-grade ores.
"Apart from that point, there was considerable modification of earlier criticism during the day. It was agreed, even by some mining interests, that the principle of a tax on gold production is legitimate; and non-mining interests, of course, welcomed the transfer of taxes from other commodities.
"The day's market reaction was reasonable. The heavy selling lasted less than half an hour, just after the opening of the Toronto Stock Exchange. Thereafter prices fluctuated, moving gradually higher until more than half the initial losses were recovered. Had anyone sold the gold share list short in the morning his position would have been uncomfortable. The total volume of mining shares traded in amounted to only 2,400,000 against a recent high turnover on the mining section of more than 5,000,000 shares.
"During the day two events, which may result in material modification of the tax, transpired at Ottawa. One was the Conservative caucus and the other the reception of a delegation of leaders in the gold mining industry by Hon. Wesley A. Gordon, Federal Minister of Mines. At both of these gatherings the plight of the low-grade producers was set forth in terms that are understood to have been forceful, with the result that semi-official assurances are reported to have been made to the effect that amendments will be introduced to ease the burden on low-grade producers.
"It is unquestionably true that continuation of the ten per cent. levy on many low-grade producers would put them out of the profit class, thereby shutting off a certain important proportion of Canadian gold output. Forecasts that these producers will receive consideration not only ensure continuation of maximum effort by those engaged in this development, but also assure hundreds of thousands of shareholders that their equities in these mines will be preserved.
"The developments of yesterday, and those now in prospect for the immediate future, concerning the gold tax, amply support, therefore, the advice in these columns that "panic selling" of gold shares should be avoided. It now appears that the market crisis, if yesterday's sell-off could be so described has been passed. There is even less cause for apprehension to-day than formerly, in spite of the fact that calculations made in the meantime show to what extent the tax will impair the earnings per share on many of our high-grade and low-grade mining projects.

"As a matter of fact, the high-grade producers are in a position immediately to make up the amount of their tax payments by dipping into their reservoirs of high-grade ore, which have been conserved almost ever since the world price of gold went to a substantial premium. It was for that reason that total gold recovery in Canada for 1933 fell below the total for 1932. It is probable, as a result of the tax, that a larger proportion of high-grade ores will be passed through the mills of leading mines from now on."
North Bay Board of Trade Urges Change in Gold Tax
Urging that every consideration be given to many small and low-grade gold producers in Northern Ontario, when the Dominion Government is reconsidering the proposed tax on gold production, the North Bay board of trade unanimously passed a resolution at a special meeting Friday night.
Copies of the motion were forwarded to Premier R. B. Bennett, Hon. W. A. Gordon, Minister of Mines and Dr. J. R. Hurlbush, Dominion representative of the riding.
The resolution stressed that industrial and mercantile interests, as well as the great body of men engaged in the mining industry, should be given consideration in such a manner as will tend to keep the wheels of progress in motion in the northern mineral area.

Three-Team Tie for Commercial Bowling

All the Dope for Commercial Bowling Cup Now Upset by Results Last Friday. T. & N. O. Needs Sand on the Tracks.

The dope for the silver mug of the Commercial bowling league was very much upset last Friday. Gambles with an apparently hopeless chance to get in on the play-offs came to the alleys to show the boys they could bowl and win, due to the fact that "smoke didn't get in their eyes."
Yes, Art, you will have to have a better bowling average next year, if you want to get in on the games; it means a lot to your captain.
Henry has found a way to sneak up on the pins which brought the fruiterers right back to make it a three-team tie by taking three points.
The Power was in a safe position in the play-offs by taking the first game from the The Advance.
The printers came back strong in the second game and rolled over the thousand mark to win out, only to do everything but peg in the third and so lost the valuable point.
Those making the honour roll were: R. Bellevue, T. & N. O., 683; H. Horester, Gambles, 683; H. Webb and F. Hornby, Advance, 665 and 601; E. Salomaa and B. McQuarrie, Power, 630 and 602.
