More Practical Education Favoured

several schools, and others specially concerned in educational matters. To these the address and the personality of Dr. Simpson made special appeal. Reeve C. V. Gallagher, of Tisdale, presided, and the proceedings opened with the singing of "O, Canada."
Mayor R. Richardson, of Timmins, extended hearty welcome to Hon. Dr. Simpson and Mrs. Simpson.
A bouquet of beautiful flowers grown in Timmins was presented to Mrs. Simpson.
Dr. Simpson after expressing his appreciation of the generous hospitality of the North, made humorous reference to his efforts to arrange the marriage of the bachelor inspector of this inspectorate. In more serious vein he congratulated the people of town and township for what had been accomplished in educational work. In 1910, he said there were 30 pupils enrolled in this district, while the last year's figures ran into the thousands. Grants to the extent of $17,500.00 had been given in 1933 to the schools of this district. He wanted to have the best co-operation between people and school boards and councils and the department. He thought this co-operation had helped to the success attained. The education department was not as spectacular, perhaps, as some other departments, and he felt that haste should be made slowly and with the most careful consideration. Yet the changing times demanded new principles in education as in other lines. Already, he said the new policy of economy had saved much to the province in the department. He did not feel, however, that economy should be the most vital factor. Education he believed to be all important. While the staff of the department was being reorganized, the key men were being retained so that the best work could be continued without interruption. A notable saving had been achieved in the department by the elimination of the advertising in magazines in reference to vocational classes. He did not think this advertising was profitable or necessary. Hon. Dr. Simpson said he was specially interested in vocational school work. He was glad Timmins had a vocational school. He urged that the equipment be simple rather than too elaborate, the pupils being the better if more depended on their own effort and initiative. Dr. Simpson was not in favour of Latin except for those intending to go on to university. Latin and some other subjects seemed to discourage and balk some students, and he did not see any sense in having these subjects compulsory. The whole system he said seemed to be designed for students going into the professions. That meant that the system was made to take care of ten per cent. of the students. There were too many now in the professions. He asked the help of parents to advise their children so that there would not be so many "round pegs in square holes." The Mcintosh Academy was one of the problems the Minister is studying. At one time the academy had a great field of usefulness, but with the excellent local schools its usefulness now is open to question. He was not so much concerned with saving money as with the matter of service and there was a danger that the school at Monteith was costing more than it is worth in service. Dr. Simpson thought the North needed better roads and he promised his support along this line. Reference was made by the speaker to the fact that it was intended to reduce the number of examinations and also to hold all departmental examinations before the end of June. Dr. Simpson referred to the rural schools and their great value to the country.

Reeve Gallagher was particularly happy in his expressions of appreciation to the speaker for the evenings. He paid well-deserved tribute to W. B. Nicholson, secretary of the Dugwal school. Reeve Gallagher thanked the ladies of the United Church for the excellent repast provided, the young men for the music furnished, and the councils for making the event possible. He closed his remarks with witty allusion to the pleasure of the occasion in having a Liberal Minister of Education.

Half a Dozen Stolen Cars Recovered During Week

During the past week there have been five or six cars reported as stolen and in each case the police have been able to recover the cars and see that they were duly returned to their owners.
In most cases the cars were found abandoned on a back street or on a road not very far from town. In a couple of cases the cars travelled as far as the Buffalo-Ankerite Mine. One car when found was turned upside down in the ditch.
In practically all cases of cars reported as stolen, the cars are taken for joy-ride purposes and abandoned when the car runs out of gas or gets into any other difficulty.
In recovering the cars the police have done good work, but the public could help materially—in two ways. If people would only lock their cars and take the keys with them it would greatly reduce if not entirely eliminate car thefts. The second way in which they can help is by assisting in the prosecution of those guilty of taking the cars. Too often car owners who have had their cars stolen are too anxious to drop all charges as soon as the cars are returned. It encourages the theft of cars to take this attitude and it certainly must discourage the police.
The North Bay Nugget this week says:—"Mrs. James Murray, Timmins, is the guest of Mrs. John Russell, 320 Main street west."

New Dugwal School Opened by Minister

been held through each term in temporary quarters and our children have attended and studied under very unsatisfactory conditions showing their true pioneering spirit. The children who are taking part in this ceremony today are the children of settlers heaving out for themselves a home in the bush, and the child helps. Many of the children walk two and a half miles to this school over trails and roads.
It is for this reason, Honorable Sir, that the Board of Trustees and the people of this school section again thank you very sincerely for your kind consideration and help in erecting a suitable building for their children's reception after their trek to school and for their studies.
On receiving your recommendation for an assisted grant the Board of Trustees let the contract for the school building on August 16th, and on September 4th the school was available to receive the 43 pupils who registered that day.
In conclusion, Sir, we wish you to accept this remembrance of your visit to this school section and again we wish to thank you from a grateful people.
Board of Trustees:—
Felix Flarent, chairman; Joseph Brasseur, Ernest Honga.
W. B. Nicholson, Sec.-Treas.
Hon. Dr. Simpson was then presented with a small portfolio of photos showing the site of the new school where it was covered with shrubs and brush; then showing it at the time the corner beams were being placed for the foundation; and finally showing the school as completed in 16 days after the commencement of work on it.
The address by Hon. Dr. Simpson was much appreciated. He expressed his very sincere thanks for the very interesting gift which he would certainly prize for the memories it would evoke.
He also referred to the appreciation he felt for the kind hospitality he had experienced during the day and all through his visit to the North. He congratulated the trustees and the people on the courage and enterprise shown in getting the new school erected in so prompt a way and in refusing to be discouraged by the misfortunes encountered in the loss of two schools by fire. Dr. Simpson spoke of the value of schools and particularly of the small rural school. He outlined briefly some of the changes contemplated to improve the educational system of the province and to increase efficiency, with economy.
After the address of the Minister of Education there was the official opening of the school and the raising of the new school flag by the children and the singing of "God Save the King" by the pupils.
More brief and interesting addresses followed, with interviews with various rural school sections, followed by a visit by the Minister of Education to the Relief Land Settlers in the immediate district, after which Dr. Simpson and party left for Iroquois Falls.
On the visit here Dr. Simpson was accompanied by Mrs. Simpson and their daughter, Miss Doris Simpson, the ladies sharing in the popularity won by Hon. Dr. Simpson on this, his first visit to the North Land in his official capacity as Minister of Education.

Women Figuring in Police Court Again

Some of Them Did Some Figuring to Pay Costs in Cases Withdrawn. Man Fined for Pushing Young Woman from Car.
The police have been busy stopping speeding, reckless driving, thefts and what-not, by arresting those guilty, but despite the fact that the police made no particular campaign on women this week, the women seemed to figure much more than usual in the court.
One woman was charged with using bad language to a gentleman friend on street, but the friend withdrew the charge against her, though it cost him $2.25 to do so. A woman withdrew a case that she had laid against her husband from whom she has been separated for some years. Recently he has been going around her home and annoying her, so she laid a charge against him, but relented on Tuesday and withdrew the case on the strict understanding that he play the game. The most interesting case in which a woman figured, however, was that in which a young man named L. Laughlin was fined $20.00 and costs, a total of $32.50 on the accusation that he pushed a young lady from his car while the auto was travelling at a good rate of speed. The lady said that the man was asked to drive her home, but instead wanted her to drive out to the cemetery with him. She opened the door of the car and asked him to let her out, but instead he pushed her. She fell on the road, sustaining a bad cut on one leg and a severe cut on the forehead as well as some minor injuries. It was necessary for her to have medical attention for the cuts and bruises sustained. Although this occurred on Sunday evening she still bore noticeable evidence of the injuries when she told her story in straightforward way in court on Tuesday. The court case has the moral for ladies that it is a dangerous risk to accept auto rides from some men, and for the men the moral is that it is bad enough to make a girl walk home but there is no excuse at all for pushing her from a car. The magistrate makes this sort of sport too expensive to be popular. A woman who had charged her husband with assault withdrew the case in court.
Still another woman case was that of a lady charged with reckless driving. The case was adjourned to Oct. 2nd.
A reckless driving case that was not adjourned cost a local man $10.00 and costs. Another reckless driving case was withdrawn. One speeder paid $10 and costs; another paid $25.00 and costs.
The liquor charge against Nicholas Ferri which has been on the court docket for several weeks, was withdrawn on Tuesday.
Ten ordinary undistinguished samples of the common drunk species each paid $10.00 and costs while another drunk took a three months term in place of a fine.
Three cases under the Master and Servants Act were adjourned to next week. Another similar case was adjourned to Oct. 9th.
Four drunk or disorderly gentlemen were charged under town by-law with being disorderly, and were each fined $5.00 and costs.
A taxi driver charged with assault was dismissed. Another case of assault arising from a fight between two gentlemen was withdrawn but it cost the complainant $14.50 to withdraw the charge, the costs totalling close to the fifteen dollar mark.

Archie Miner reported to the police that his car had been stolen and the police recovered the car as well as arresting the man who took the car and was apparently starting for Kirkland Lake with the auto. In court, Mr. Miner recalled that he had given the accused leave to use his car, so the charge of theft had to be dismissed.
John Cibar, the gentleman accused of biting Constable Olson's thumb, was remanded to next week for judgment to be given. There was not any denial that the thumb was bitten, but it was held that the biting was done because the constable used his baton on the head of the accused. Constable Olson said that Cibar was so obstreperous that it was necessary to sound his head with the billy. Dean Kester appeared for Cibar and made a lively defence.

A man charged by Provincial Constable Pretorius with disorderly conduct by shouting, etc., was dismissed.
For taking half a dozen beer barrels from the International Hotel, F. Jemmett was sentenced to thirty days at Halleybury.
Reuben S. McGee was charged with giving out what is commonly called a "rubber" cheque, because they bounce back. The case was adjourned to next Tuesday, accused being out on bail.

In Juvenile Court two boys, one fifteen years old and the other twelve, were charged with the theft of an automobile as well as being held responsible for recent petty thefts and other misdemeanors. Both the boys were sentenced to the Industrial school near Ottawa.
Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Price and daughter, and Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Briggs, returned from a holiday in the South. During their trip they attended the Renfrew Fair.
