Suggests Mill Built to Push Stock Sales

Thompson-Cadillac Stock All Sold Before Mill Erected, Replies Hon. Chas. McCrea.

The enquiry by Securities Commissioner Godfrey into the case of the Thompson-Cadillac which made an assignment just after glowing pictures had been painted of its prospects is still in progress. The belief that a 150-ton mill was erected at the Thompson-Cadillac Gold Mine as a "front" to aid the sale of stock was expressed by J. M. Godfrey, K.C., Ontario Securities Commissioner, as he continued his inquiry into the mining company's affairs.

When a mining engineer testified that no ore was "blocked" to justify a 150-ton mill and that a 50-ton plant would have served, Mr. Godfrey declared that he was "driven to the irresistible conclusion that the mill was built to aid the sale of stock."

And when Charles McCrea, K.C., former Ontario mines minister and counsel for the Thompson-Cadillac directors pointed out that all the stock was disposed of before the mill was built, Mr. Godfrey commented that Canadian Enterprises, Ltd., the company which managed the mine, and recommended the mill, still owned a large block of stock.

No ore had been "blocked out" in the Thompson-Cadillac Mine to justify erection of a 150-ton mill last autumn. Douglas A. Mutch, mining engineer with 28 years' experience in Northern Ontario, told J. M. Godfrey, K.C. as the Ontario Securities Commissioner resumed his inquiry into charges that unjustified expenditures if shareholders' money had been made at the mine.

There was proven ore on two levels, but nothing to justify a 150-ton mill. Mr. Mutch repeated. He thought a 40 to 50-ton mill would have been justified, based on the character of the ore shown and the results obtained on adjoining property.

Such a mill would have produced gold which would have gone a long way toward meeting the cost of additional development, which was necessary, he said.

Electrification of the plant for underground development, he held, was justified and should have been followed by erection of a 50-ton mill. The cost he estimated at $35,000 as compared with $126,000 for the 150-ton mill actually erected.

"Can you see any possible justification for the expenditure of $126,000?" Commissioner Godfrey asked.

"None," Mr. Mutch said. The present mill could be put in operation economically as a 50-ton mill, by the expenditure of $5,000, Mr. Mutch believed, and he declared he was satisfied that with capital of $10,000 work at the mine could be resumed at once.

When the Thompson-Cadillac Co. went into voluntary bankruptcy and closed down the property last month, Mr. Mutch said he visited the mine and at that time he wrote that the property and district had been given an "unwarranted black eye."

The decision to close down the mine and liquidate the company, he held in his report to have been "hasty" and made after "only a cursory" examination of the property.

To mine profitably at Thompson-Cadillac, Mr. Mutch said that the ore to be milled should be carefully selected and assorted. Such sorting would increase the average grade to from $15 to $20 per ton, he said.

Careful mining and sorting would certainly justify a 50-ton mill, he reported.

He concluded his report with the comment that the drastic action taken by the directors in closing the property was totally unfair to the shareholders.

"Do you think that with $10,000 or $15,000 and if an arrangement could be made with the creditors, this mine might be saved?" Commissioner Godfrey asked.

"I think there is a good chance," witness replied.

During examination of Mr. Mutch, Commissioner Godfrey declared he was driven to the "irresistible conclusion that this big mill was commenced to aid in the sale of stock. There seems to be no doubt about that at all."

Charles McCrea, K.C., former Minister of Mines, counsel for the Thompson-Cadillac directors, pointed out that the company had disposed of its stock long before the mill was started.

"Yes, but Canadian Enterprises, Ltd., which managed the mine, still had a large block of stock," Mr. Godfrey pointed out.

Mr. Mutch thought that the realization that there was not sufficient ore to feed a 150-ton mill might discourage stock sales.

"It might discourage you because you knew all about it. But the public did not know the ore wasn't blocked and it's natural they should be impressed by a big mill," Mr. Godfrey said.

Daniel Lang, K.C., counsel for Canadian Enterprises, Ltd., sought to show that when the company recommended a 150-ton mill there were assurances from the property that there was two-year's ore in sight to feed the mill.

Kapuskasing Opinion on Recent Meeting of N.O.A.B.

Under the heading, "Northern Boards of Trade Meet Has 11 Delegates," The Northern Tribune of Kapuskasing last week made the following comment:—

"The annual meeting of the Northern Ontario Associated Boards of Trade at Timmins on Tuesday was very meagrely attended. One paper reports a total of 11 delegates in attendance, including four from Timmins, four from Matheson, two from Cochrane and one from North Bay. The lone gentleman from North Bay, a radio station owner, was interested in having the gathering pass a resolution urging provision of a special wire as far as Timmins so that his broadcasting station there could pick up C. R. programmes for re-broadcast. The two delegates from Cochrane were provincial civil servants.

"The delegate chosen by the Kapuskasing and District Board to attend the convention found out on Sunday that he could not take three days off to go to this Timmins meeting, so he sent an explanatory letter to the president. The acting president of the local Board of Trade also sent a night telegram on Monday setting forth the board's position on the routing of the trans-Canada highway, and averring that the governments involved should present to the public all the engineering and other data in their possession respecting the proposed alternative routes, so that the public could better judge the merits of each. These communications did not find favour at the convention. Mr. J. A. Clermont, of Cochrane, who has attended other N.O.A.B.T. conventions and more or less consistently campaigned for compromise" routings is reported as saying that there are 21 rivers to be bridged in carrying the highway straight west from Hearst and that "Northern Ontario is having a hard enough time getting bridges in areas already settled." In taking this stand Mr. Clermont is forgetting the 80 bridges to be built between Sault Ste. Marie and the lakehead, if the southern route is followed! So once more the Cochrane Board of Trade has jazzed things for us. It finds it convenient to give delegates' credentials to persons who can perhaps spare the time and expense to attend such gatherings as these, so they naturally must be left comparatively free to advocate, or to oppose, pretty much what they wish.

Let it be admitted that other towns in the T. & N. O. territory are in much better position to keep their boards of trade alive, and to send delegates to conventions, than is Kapuskasing, which for a time lapsed in activities. Yet it is noteworthy that such places as Kirkland Lake, Haliburton, New Liskeard, Englehart, Cobalt and many other were not represented at all; one place smaller than any of these contributed four of the total of 11 delegates, and Timmins another four. These figures speak for themselves as to the unrepresentative character of this convention, and its consequent lack of authority to speak for the North on any subject. President W. O. Langdon of Timmins has been a hardworking president, and has deserved better support than this in the things he has undertaken. Can it be that most of the T. & N. O. and adjacent territory is becoming convinced that the N.O.A.B.T. is not an effective body, and does not justify the cost of its conventions?"

ENTERS APPEAL AGAINST JUDGMENT AT HAILEYBURY

According to a despatch from Haileybury, on behalf of J. A. Bryson, Toronto commercial traveller, who formerly resided in Cobalt, an appeal has been entered at Osgoode Hall against the judgment of Judge Hartman, who dismissed an action for damages brought by Bryson against the Nipissing Central Railway. The suit was the sequel to a level crossing accident at Swastika, more than two years ago, in which Bryson's car was wrecked after having been struck by a train backing up. E. E. Pearman, who acted for the railway, has been served with notice of appeal.
