NO CHANCE FOR SOLOMON

Newspaper despatches last week told the strange story of a dog. Two men claimed ownership of this dog. Neither one of the men would admit that the other man had the slightest claim upon the dog. The dispute was eventually taken to the courts for decision. "It is my dog!" one man told the court. "It is my dog!" responded the other. The magistrate one minute believed the one man. The next minute he believed the other. The third minute he believed neither of them. Finally, the magistrate decided it would take a Solomon to decide the rightful ownership of that dog. Accordingly, he resorted to the ancient plan of Solomon. "The dog shall decide," the magistrate said. "I will have the one man call him first, and then the other. The dog will know his master's voice and I will know which man really owns the dog by the response the dog will make when he is called by his rightful owner."

Bill called the dog first. The dog wagged his tail and joyously scampered across the courtroom to Bill. Then Tom called the dog. Again the dog wagged his tail, and swiftly ran across to Tom. The magistrate decided that Solomon, with all his wisdom, wouldn't have a chance in this age and especially in Sault Ste. Marie.

Of course, all this happened in Sault Ste. Marie! Where else in Canada could such a thing happen? If it did happen elsewhere in Canada where else would it get into the newspapers and the press despatches.

Who owns that dog? Nobody knows as yet. The two men can't agree on it. The magistrate fails to decide. The dog cannot tell. Solomon has no chance—not in Sault Ste. Marie.

Sault Ste. Marie is an odd place, with odd people, and odd dogs. Indeed, so odd is Sault Ste. Marie that it may be discovered that neither of those two men owned the dog, but that the whole dispute was simply a scheme to becloud the issue so that neither of them could be called upon to pay the dog license for that dog. The magistrate would have shown the real touch of Solomon, if he had suggested that he would award the dog to whichever claimant was ready to pay the license for the dog.

Odd old Sault Ste. Marie. Even Solomon could not iron out the problems about Sault Ste. Marie. The correct name of the place is given in the gazetteers as "Sault Ste. Marie." But it is usually written as "Soo." And Jim Curran of The Sault Ste. Marie Star swears it is pronounced "So." Even the Sault's best friends will admit that the Soo, or So, is only So-so.

Everybody in Sault Ste. Marie is named Jim. If they are not, then they are nobody. There is Jim Lyons, who is mayor, and Jim Curran who is mayor. There are a lot of Jim-jams.

Sault Ste. Marie made the Algoma wolf famous. Recently that wolf has been allowed to go hungry for publicity. The Sault wolf will not bite no matter how hungry it may be. In this it differs from Sault contractors who are always hungry no matter how many bites they are allowed.

Just at present the wolves are hungry for juicy contracts. It is hoped to have the Trans-Canada highway routed by way of the rocky shore of Lake Superior. This would prevent the wolves from getting so hungry that they would start biting each other.

WHITE ELEPHANTS

Premier Hepburn is quoted as referring to the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway as a white elephant. Apparently the premier does not know his white elephants. Perhaps he is better on pink elephants. In any case he does not seem to have any idea of what constitutes a white elephant. Instead of being a white elephant the T. & N. O. Railway has been a money-making attraction. It has kept the show going in Ontario. Had it not been for the T. & N. O. during the past few years, the Ontario show would have had a much more difficult time to keep running. Ontario has depended in large measure on the mining industry in the North in recent years, and the mining development has depended in large measure on the good services of the T. & N. O. The T. & N. O. is the only railway in Canada that has been able each year in recent years to boast a surplus after paying operating expenses. In calling the railway of the North a white elephant, Hon. Mr. Hepburn does not talk like a ringmaster. His words sound more like those of a clown.

For some time past the country served by the T. & N. O. has in large measure been "keeping Ontario going." Machinery, supplies, food, clothing, furniture, and other materials have been used in this country in generous way. Most of the goods here noted have been made or produced in Old Ontario. The progress of the North has meant much to the South. It seems like a poor return to have the railway of the North referred to as a white elephant. Hon. Mr. Hepburn may feel, however, that he has exercised wonderful restraint in this matter. He might have threatened to hand the whole T. & N. O. "back to the Indians."

The immediate prospects for the North are better than ever. No other single factor will do more to fulfil the promises of to-day than the same old T. & N. O. Even the political manipulations of the Hepburn government do not seem to be able to put the T. & N. O. out of business. Directly or indirectly the T. & N. O. is a benefit and an advantage not only to the North, but to all Ontario. It has paid its way, and proven one of the best investments the province ever made. In the days to come it will be found that even the section from Cochrane north to the Bay—so often thoughtlessly and foolishly condemned these days—will fully justify itself, and add stability, resource and notable profit to the province.

ALL IN FAVOUR

The Liberal party in Canada seems to take the attitude that Premier Bennett is going too far in his proposals for economic and social welfare amendments.

The C. C. F. party says he is not going far enough. The Conservative party appears to be a unit in upholding the premier.

Leading members of all three parties have committed themselves to endorsing the principles enunciated by Premier Bennett.

It is not too much to say that practically everybody is in favour of arrangements and adjustments that will provide for a more equitable distribution of wealth and a more even share of labour for all.

Liberals and Conservatives alike are agreed that while the present economic and political systems are the best suited for a democratic country like Canada, still there have been some abuses and steps should be taken in the general interests to provide safeguards and assistance for one section of the public and prevent other sections of the people from carrying on exploitation of the many for the benefit of a few. The C. C. F. party is alone with the communists in thinking that an entirely new system is required. As a matter of fact no one has yet suggested any new system. All the communists propose is a form of capitalism with the power of tyranny centred in a small group. The communists would simply change the name of the czars of the state, and turn out one set of oppressors to make room for another group. The C. C. F. plan is much the same as the communist scheme except that the communist requires the use of force to establish the changes he desires, while the C. C. F. would wish all changes made by ballots rather than by bullets.

The agreement of the three parties in the matter of advocating advanced social legislation is proof of the fact so often stated recently by The Advance—that the world gets better and more and more ready to consider the unfortunate and the unsuccessful and to give them all reasonable assistance.

With all parties apparently anxious to do something for the general advantage there should be much for progress and betterment achieved at the present session of the House of Commons.

GRAVEL AND SAND—AND PLACER

This is the way one disgruntled Ontario Liberal phrases it:—"I'd like to kick the everlasting Sights out of the Ontario Government."

On his visit to Timmins last year D. B. Lawley, field secretary for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, spoke of the work of the Institute in seeking pensions for the blind, and especially for those who were afflicted with blindness at an age when it was more difficult for them to adjust themselves to new callings and new methods of making a livelihood. Mr. Lawley has made many friends in Timmins, and these friends will find particular satisfaction (double satisfaction indeed) in the fact that Mr. Lawley's hope in regard to pensions is likely to be fulfilled. In the House of Commons at Ottawa last week, Dr. Cotnam, member for North Renfrew, introduced a resolution to amend the Old Age Pension Act so that all blind persons forty years of age or older might be eligible for the pension. In other words Dr. Cotnam would make the age limit forty years in the case of blind persons instead of the present seventy-year limit for all. Not a single member of the House opposed the resolution. Many of the members spoke in favour of the proposal. On the suggestion of Hon. W. A. Gordon, Minister from the North, the resolution was referred to the House committee on industrial and international relations. Hon. Mr. Gordon, however thought the resolution should embody a new bill and not form part of the Old Age Pension Act, as this act was not in force in all provinces. However, it would appear likely that some form of pension will be inaugurated that will provide for those suffering from blindness after the age of 40 or 45. Mr. Lawley Capt. Baker and others in the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, have been working on this question of pensions for the blind for some years past and there will be general pleasure to many interested in the knowledge that the effort of these good men has borne fruit.

Sometimes The Advance has been tempted to offer a prize for the naming of anyone in this province who is not benefited directly or indirectly by the development of mining. Word from Fort Arthur this week however, suggests that indirectly mining is proving other than beneficial to one class in that district. The one class is the Indian. The claim is made that the mining operations in the Port Arthur area have driven away the game from the areas where the Indians formerly hunted and as a consequence some of the Indians are on the verge of starvation. Special report on the matter is made by Rev. W. Bradbury, Anglican missionary at Little Long Lac. If the governments will see that the Indians have a better living than they ever had before it will not only be a proper and humane proceeding but the public will still have the small amount necessary to keep the Indians and the immense amount of new wealth created by mining operations.

A number of bars of bullion dropped from an aeroplane en route from Paris to London. It is thought that the weight of the bullion ripped open a door in the baggage room of the plane and the gold dropped to the ground. Fortunately there was no one exactly under the gold as it fell, the bars coming from a great height and so hitting with terrific force. In places where the bars were found they were buried deep in the earth. There were thousands of people out hunting for the missing gold bars, Kent and Sussex being the two counties in which it was believed the bars had fallen. At New Romney, Kent county, eight bars worth $110,000 were found by farmers in the search. The despatches suggest that the people went out to search for the gold that came from the skies! They found the gold bars! They turned the bullion over to the authorities at once! All just like that! There are parts of this continent where people would wait at least until there was a reward offered for the return of the gold.

Did you ever eat peas with your spork? No, it is not a typographical error. Old country newspapers are advertising a new piece of tableware that is a combination of spoon and fork and has been accordingly given the name of "spork." Science advances, slowly but surely. Soon it may be possible to eat peas, grapefruit or spaghetti with satisfaction to the parties concerned and no danger to the folks across the table. If the spork had been brought to this country Premier Hepburn might have been able to attend the state dinner to be given by the Lieutenant-Governor on Feb. 20th.

One of the latest proposals is the discharge of all sheriffs in the province, these officers being declared unnecessary. Accompanying this suggestion is the proposal to hold a complete survey of municipal government in the province so economies may be effected. The sensible plan would be to hold the survey first and then decide whether there are to be dismissals or not. That is not the way things have been done recently. Dismissals have been made and the surveys follow in the hopes of justifying the dismissals. The people in general would like at present to follow that plan with the government—dismiss the government right away and then hold the election later.

Announcement has been made by the Dept of Education that all examination fees for the departmental examinations are to be eliminated this year. This is good news for pupils and parents. There is one fly in the ointment, however. From references in the daily press some days ago it appears as if the department intended to make the teachers pay part of the former fees. In past years teachers pre-

Gives Credit to the New Chairman of the T. & N. O.

The following letter in The New Liskard Speaker this week is worth passing along and is given herewith accordingly:—

Dear Sir:—About three weeks ago his attention was called by just one lone tiller of the soil. It didn't need a large deputation or fuss, just a reasonable request for an investigation into the conditions of the Kirkland Lake market train, with the result that instead of a cold, unsanitary, uncomfortable train, we had a comfortable, up-to-the-minute train in service last Saturday. This looks to me as though at least one man appreciates the idea of some people trying to keep off relief and he is going to do what he can to help them along.

RAILROAD WORKER MEETS UNUSUAL FORM OF DEATH

John A. Capone, 25-year-old unmarried railroad worker, met an agonizing death in the firebox of a locomotive at Boston last week.

Capone, whose job it was to kindle fires in locomotives at the Readville repair shops of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, had started such a fire, then opened the door to see how it was progressing.

His head and shoulders stuck in the opening, and when fellow-workers found him he was dead.

siding at departmental examinations were allowed about $6.50 a day for this difficult and tedious work coming at a time when they were probably tired enough from the term's work to enjoy a holiday. Just why the department should expect the teachers to forego these fees and preside at the examinations without remuneration is another Hepburn puzzle. The public should know about this feature, however, because if the fees are abolished as suggested, it will be the teachers who will really be foregoing the greater part of the fees previously collected.

In the Old Country they have the "spork"—a combination of spoon and fork. If this continent wishes to maintain its reputation for ingenuity someone will invent a bowl for taking the noise out of soup.

Premier Hepburn has declined the invitation from the Lieutenant-Governor to attend the state dinner on Feb. 20th. This is rare luck for Hon. Dr. Bruce and his party.

Social Evening Only for Legion Members

Event to be held in the Fine Clubroom of the Legion Building To-night. Good Programme Planned.

There seems to be some misunderstanding regarding the social evening, of the Canadian Legion for to-night being planned by the Timmins branch (Monday) The advertisement appearing in Thursday's issue of The Advance states quite plainly: "Legion members, their wives and sweethearts," "Auxiliary members, husbands and boy friends" as being eligible to be present. It appears that the ad, which was published in another local paper of the same date leaves the impression that the general public are welcomed. A few personally invited artists will be on the programme arranged for the evening, but outside of these the event will be strictly for members of the Canadian Legion.

There will be a good line of talent, including some of the branch favourites, Comrades Bellamy, Curtis, Johnson and Cowan being among those mentioned. A fine programme of dancing, old and new and refreshments served by the Ladies' Auxiliary will be features.

This being the first social evening in the new clubhouse and a chance to try your stuff on the splendid hardwood floor it is hoped the members will take the opportunity of making an earnest effort to be present. In closing, the following quotation should be sufficient:—"To develop a social influence and thereby foster the spirit of comradeship."

Toronto Telegram:—Perhaps it is called ready cash because it is so ready to fly away.

After watching Hon. Mr. Hepburn since his accession to power in Ontario it is easy to see why he is opposed to all social functions.

These are the days of the curling widows. Another example of the present day tendency to make important changes and then seek information in regard to the matter later is given in the case of proposed changes in the educational department of the province. Some of these changes have already been announced. At the same time it may be noted that the Ontario Educational Association will hold its annual session at Toronto during Easter Week. This association could give invaluable information in regard to the feasibility of the proposed changes. It would have been well worth while to have waited the assistance and co-operation of the Ontario Educational Association, which represents all branches and departments in educational work in Ontario.

Railway Officials to Remain at Posts

Seven Officials Slated by Racine for Dismissal are Necessary for Key Positions to Hold Efficiency. A despatch from Toronto says that the seven officials of the T. & N. O. recommended for dismissal in the Racine report will be retained in the service. It was definitely learned at Toronto last week, Premier Hepburn has been satisfied that they are needed if the efficiency of the railway is to be unimpaired. A. H. Cavanagh, general manager, is reported to have advised the premier that he was reluctant to surround himself with green hands in the most important positions. This fact has satisfied the government that the men in question should be continued in their present posts. Col. Malcolm Lang is said to have formally advised Premier Hepburn that he will contest the riding of Temiskaming in the Federal election, and that his resignation as chairman of the T. & N. O. Commission will be in the hands of the government as soon as the House of Commons is dissolved.
