Who may be Who in 1935

'Free Agent' Counted Mainstay of Mack Staff for this Year.

Every year the rosters of major league ball teams contain in the names of a number of "free agents", young men who manage to obtain a spring training trip without benefit of minor league experience. Most of them drop into the discard with the first pruning of the squad.

William J. (Bill) Dietrich is one free agent who has stuck it out. There is every evidence that Manager Connie Mack will lean heavily on the young slabster from the Philadelphia sandlots.

Lacked Control

A bespectacled high school graduate, Dietrich took his first trip south with the A's in 1931. He had starred in football and basketball at his school. Six feet tall, weighing 182, he showed a good fast ball and a fair curve, but sadly lacked control.

Mack sent him to Harrisburg with instructions to improve his aim. Later he was shifted to Wilkes-Barre. Steadily improving, he was placed at Portland in 1932, where his earned run average dropped to 3.47.

Dietrich put in 1933 at Montreal, where he won 11 and lost 14, for the Royals, allowing 157 hits in 156 innings. Mack believed in him still last year, and though Bill still lacked control, he was used regularly. He got better as the season progressed.

Pitches Four Shutouts

His record for 1934 shows 11 victories and 12 defeats for appearances in 39 games, 14 of which were complete. When he was good he was very, very good, attested by the fact he pitched four shut-outs, a two-hit and a four-hit game.

Control is still all he seems to lack, and Mack believes this will be the year when Bill shows he has found the plate. The manager points out that Dietrich will not be 25 years old until March 29, and ascribes his wildness to his youth and previous lack of experience.

BILL DIETRICH

When the Athletics go into camp at Fort Myers, Fla., soon, Bill Dietrich will be given a target at which to throw steadily.

One Year Stanley Cup Not Concluded

Major Hockey Teams have Held the Trophy Since 1924. Some Data on the Famous Cup

According to word from Montreal President Frank Calder of the National Hockey League has delved deeply into the storied travels of the Stanley Cup to discover what teams have possessed it since Lord Stanley of Preston, then governor-general of Canada, handed it to the Montreal Amateur Athletic Association team in 1893 as a challenge cup.

The records show that M.A.A.A. held it through 1894, but they don't tell how Mr. Calder does. He says Osgoode Hall then champions of the Ontario Hockey Association, put in a challenge, but the match was blocked because the ice disappeared. There was no artificial ice in those days.

No Decision in 1919

Only once in the 42-year history of the Stanley Cup was "no winner" declared. That was in 1919, the year following the war. Montreal Canadiens journeyed to Seattle that year to contest the cup finals with the Pacific coast champions. There was "no decision." The series was stopped by an epidemic of influenza.

The amateurs battled for the cup for many years before the professional game adopted the trophy and made it emblematic of the world's championship. Sometimes it changed hands twice during the season. It has travelled as far west as Victoria and Seattle and as far east as Quebec and Boston. Halifax Crescents came up to Montreal in 1900 and played Montreal Shamrocks for the trophy, but lost in two straight games, 10-2 and 11-0.

Is Held By N.H.L.

Since 1914 the Stanley Cup has remained among major league teams. Only the Pacific Coast League, Western Canada and N.H.L. have provided winners since then and now it stands as the brightest prize on the N.H.L.'s shelf.

Catcher James Foxx Improves Athletics

Connie Mack Says Team Now Pennant Contender with Jimmy as Receiver.

Why has Connie Mack made a catcher out of James Emory Foxx, greatest long-distance right-hand hitter of all time and one of the three foremost first basemen in baseball? So asks a despatch from Fort Myers, Florida.

Why did Foxx consent to the switch? There is little question that it will shorten Foxx's brilliant major league career. The wear and tear is vastly greater behind the plate than at first base. There is much more danger of the Maryland farmer being injured.

Mack, 72 and launching his 52nd season, realizes all this.

The tall tactician's explanation stresses the importance of catching and the scarcity of receivers.

Lacked Good Catcher

"With Foxx catching, the Athletics have a chance to win the American League pennant," says Mack, shading his pale blue eyes from the Florida sun. "We could do no better than run fifth in 1934 largely because we did not have a catcher of real worth and one who could hit much more than his weight."

"I couldn't buy, borrow, or beg a catcher who figured to hit more than 200, but in Alex Hooks, purchased from Tulsa, I have a first baseman who should hit at least 275. Hooks, with an average of 340, lost the batting championship of the Texas League last season by only two points."

"The boss made the decision for me," smiles Foxx, the 360 hitter. "After all, my being put out of the game for any length of time means more to him than it does to me."

"I simply had a chance to do some business. Mr. Mack made it worth while for me to catch, so here I am."

Foxx reveals that he is to be given a bonus each season if the Philadelphia club winds up in the first division.

The Sudlersville slugger is so positive that he and his teammates will attain this end that he already is counting the extra cash.

"I should collect between $65,000 and $75,000 on the new three-year contract I signed at the conclusion of last season," he beams.

From that you easily can reckon the approximate amount of Foxx's flat salary annually.

Babe Ruth, whose major league home run record of 60 Foxx hopes to break, was paid $80,000 for the season of 1933 by the New York Yankees.

Ruth had vastly more colour and box office appeal than Foxx, who swatted 58 home runs in 1932, but the difference in their pay well illustrates how fortunate a start is to be in New York and working for an owner like Colonel Ruppert.

Enthusiastic

Foxx, who is only 27, has been made captain of the Athletics, and is working with a new spirit at Terry Field here. "You will recall that years ago I predicted the Athletics would be on top again in four years," asserts Foxx, "and I wouldn't be at all surprised if we won this season. We have the stuff. It only has to be brought out. It is to be a wide-open race."

Mack considers Foxx the most versatile top-ranking player in the history of the game, as well as the foremost long-distance right-hand hitter. He is capable of playing any position, and can pitch, too.

Ruth and other remarkable pitchers switched to the outfield, where their hitting could be brought into play every day, but you have to go back to Roger Bresnahan to find a case anywhere near parallel to that of Foxx. John McGraw transformed Bresnahan from a fly chaser to a catcher quite early in the Duke of Tralee's career.

Bresnahan pitched, caught, and performed in both infield and outfield, but if Jimmy Foxx fulfils the wily Mack's

PEDESTRIAN EXTRAORDINARY

Had Henry "Hank" Cleman decided to adopt the career of a postman, it would be a safe bet that any post office could drastically reduce its personnel, for this long, lean landloper could just about cover an average sized city twice each day, and still have time over for a constitutional before breakfast and an evening promenade after dinner.

Henry "Hank" Cleman, Canada's premier heel-and-toe artist, started his "picking them up and laying them down" career when in his early teens. Still on the sunny side of 30, Hank is a veteran of over a decade of walk tournaments.

Toronto and Canada owed considerable to Dr. Finley, noted coach and athletic scout, because it was he who back in 1923 sold the young Cleman the idea that his forte was walking.

The keen eyes of Dr. Finley saw in Cleman a human figure, perfectly proportioned for endurance tramping. Hank's first important race took place in 1924, when he won the Ontario junior mile walk. In 1930 Hank went to New York and there captured first place in the seven-mile walk, beating Carlson, the U.S. favourite by a good 20 yards. Again in 1931, Hank made the headlines by breaking the Canadian 3,000-metre record and at the same time established a new world's record.

Later, the same year, this young Canadian showed the courage he needed to meet and outclass the world's best in walking marathons. Due to missed train connections while en route to compete in the 50,000 metre walk at Atlantic City, young Cleman arrived at the starting line after the race was actually under way, the entire field was out of sight, and this is why we call him the pedestrian extraordinary, for digging in his toes he started out to overtake the field. By the time the race was run Cleman had left them all fully half a mile behind in the rear.

Cleman stands six feet tall, and, judging by his build, it must be he who inspired motor car manufacturers to adopt the streamline design. Last year in Cincinnati, he covered 31 miles and 125 yards in four hours, 58 minutes and 55 1-2 seconds, finishing 2 1-2 miles ahead of the field. In February of this year, the Toronto man again made a world record walk when, at New York, he outclassed the world's best by 30 yards in the 1,500 metre competition.

expectations, he will supplant Roger as the greatest all-round ball player who ever lived, in the opinions of many, whose memory extends over three decades.

Cub Wolves Simplify Junior Mix-up by Win

Verdun-Sudbury Series Scheduled to Begin Tomorrow in Toronto.

Sudbury Cub Wolves simplified the Ontario junior hockey situation by defeating Oshawa Majors 5-2 in the second of the O.H.A. playdowns Saturday. Thirty minutes overtime was played. They are apparently undisputed champions now and have the right to go on in Memorial Cup playdowns against Verdun in Toronto to-morrow night. But Barney Morris, the New Liskeard lad, isn't playing with them any more. He was ruled out by the O.H.A. big shots on Saturday, under the decision that Sudbury could use only two imports.

Here's the "bust-up" in a nut shell. Toronto Young Rangers protested Oshawa on the grounds that they had played an over-age pukechaser. The O.H.A. ordered new playoffs between Young Rangers, Toronto Lions and Kitchener-Waterloo. The winner of that was to meet Oshawa again, if Oshawa defeated Sudbury. Oshawa, after dropping the first game to Sudbury, protested Morris of the Sudbury team. The O.H.A. ruled out the protested players on both teams and ordered a sudden death game on Saturday night. If Sudbury had lost, there would surely have been an honest-to-goodness break in O.H.A.-N.O.H.A. relations as the N.O.H.A. had O.K'd the Sudbury team. But the Cub Wolves pulled the fat out of the fire very nicely.

Ottawa Rideaus defeated Moncton Red Indians in the other eastern section of Memorial cup playdowns and now wait to meet the winner of the Verdun-Sudbury games.

Ontario Slow to Get Allan Cup Contender

Toronto-Ottawa Series Opens To-night. Western Finals Begin This Week.

Ontario is the only section that's holding up the Allan Cup playdowns right now. The Maritimes have a champion in the Halifax Wolverines who beat out a smart Edmonton, N.B., intermediate team for the Atlantic seaboard title. But they have to wait till the semi-finals before they get another game.

Montreal Royals are Quebec's representatives for the C.A.H.A. title. They took St. Jerome in a series of two games in Montreal last week. The last game on Friday night was 3-1 for the Royals. Thursday night's game was 10-1.

Ontario will get busy getting a champion team to-night when Toronto Stars meet Ottawa Canadians in the first of the all-Ontario finals.

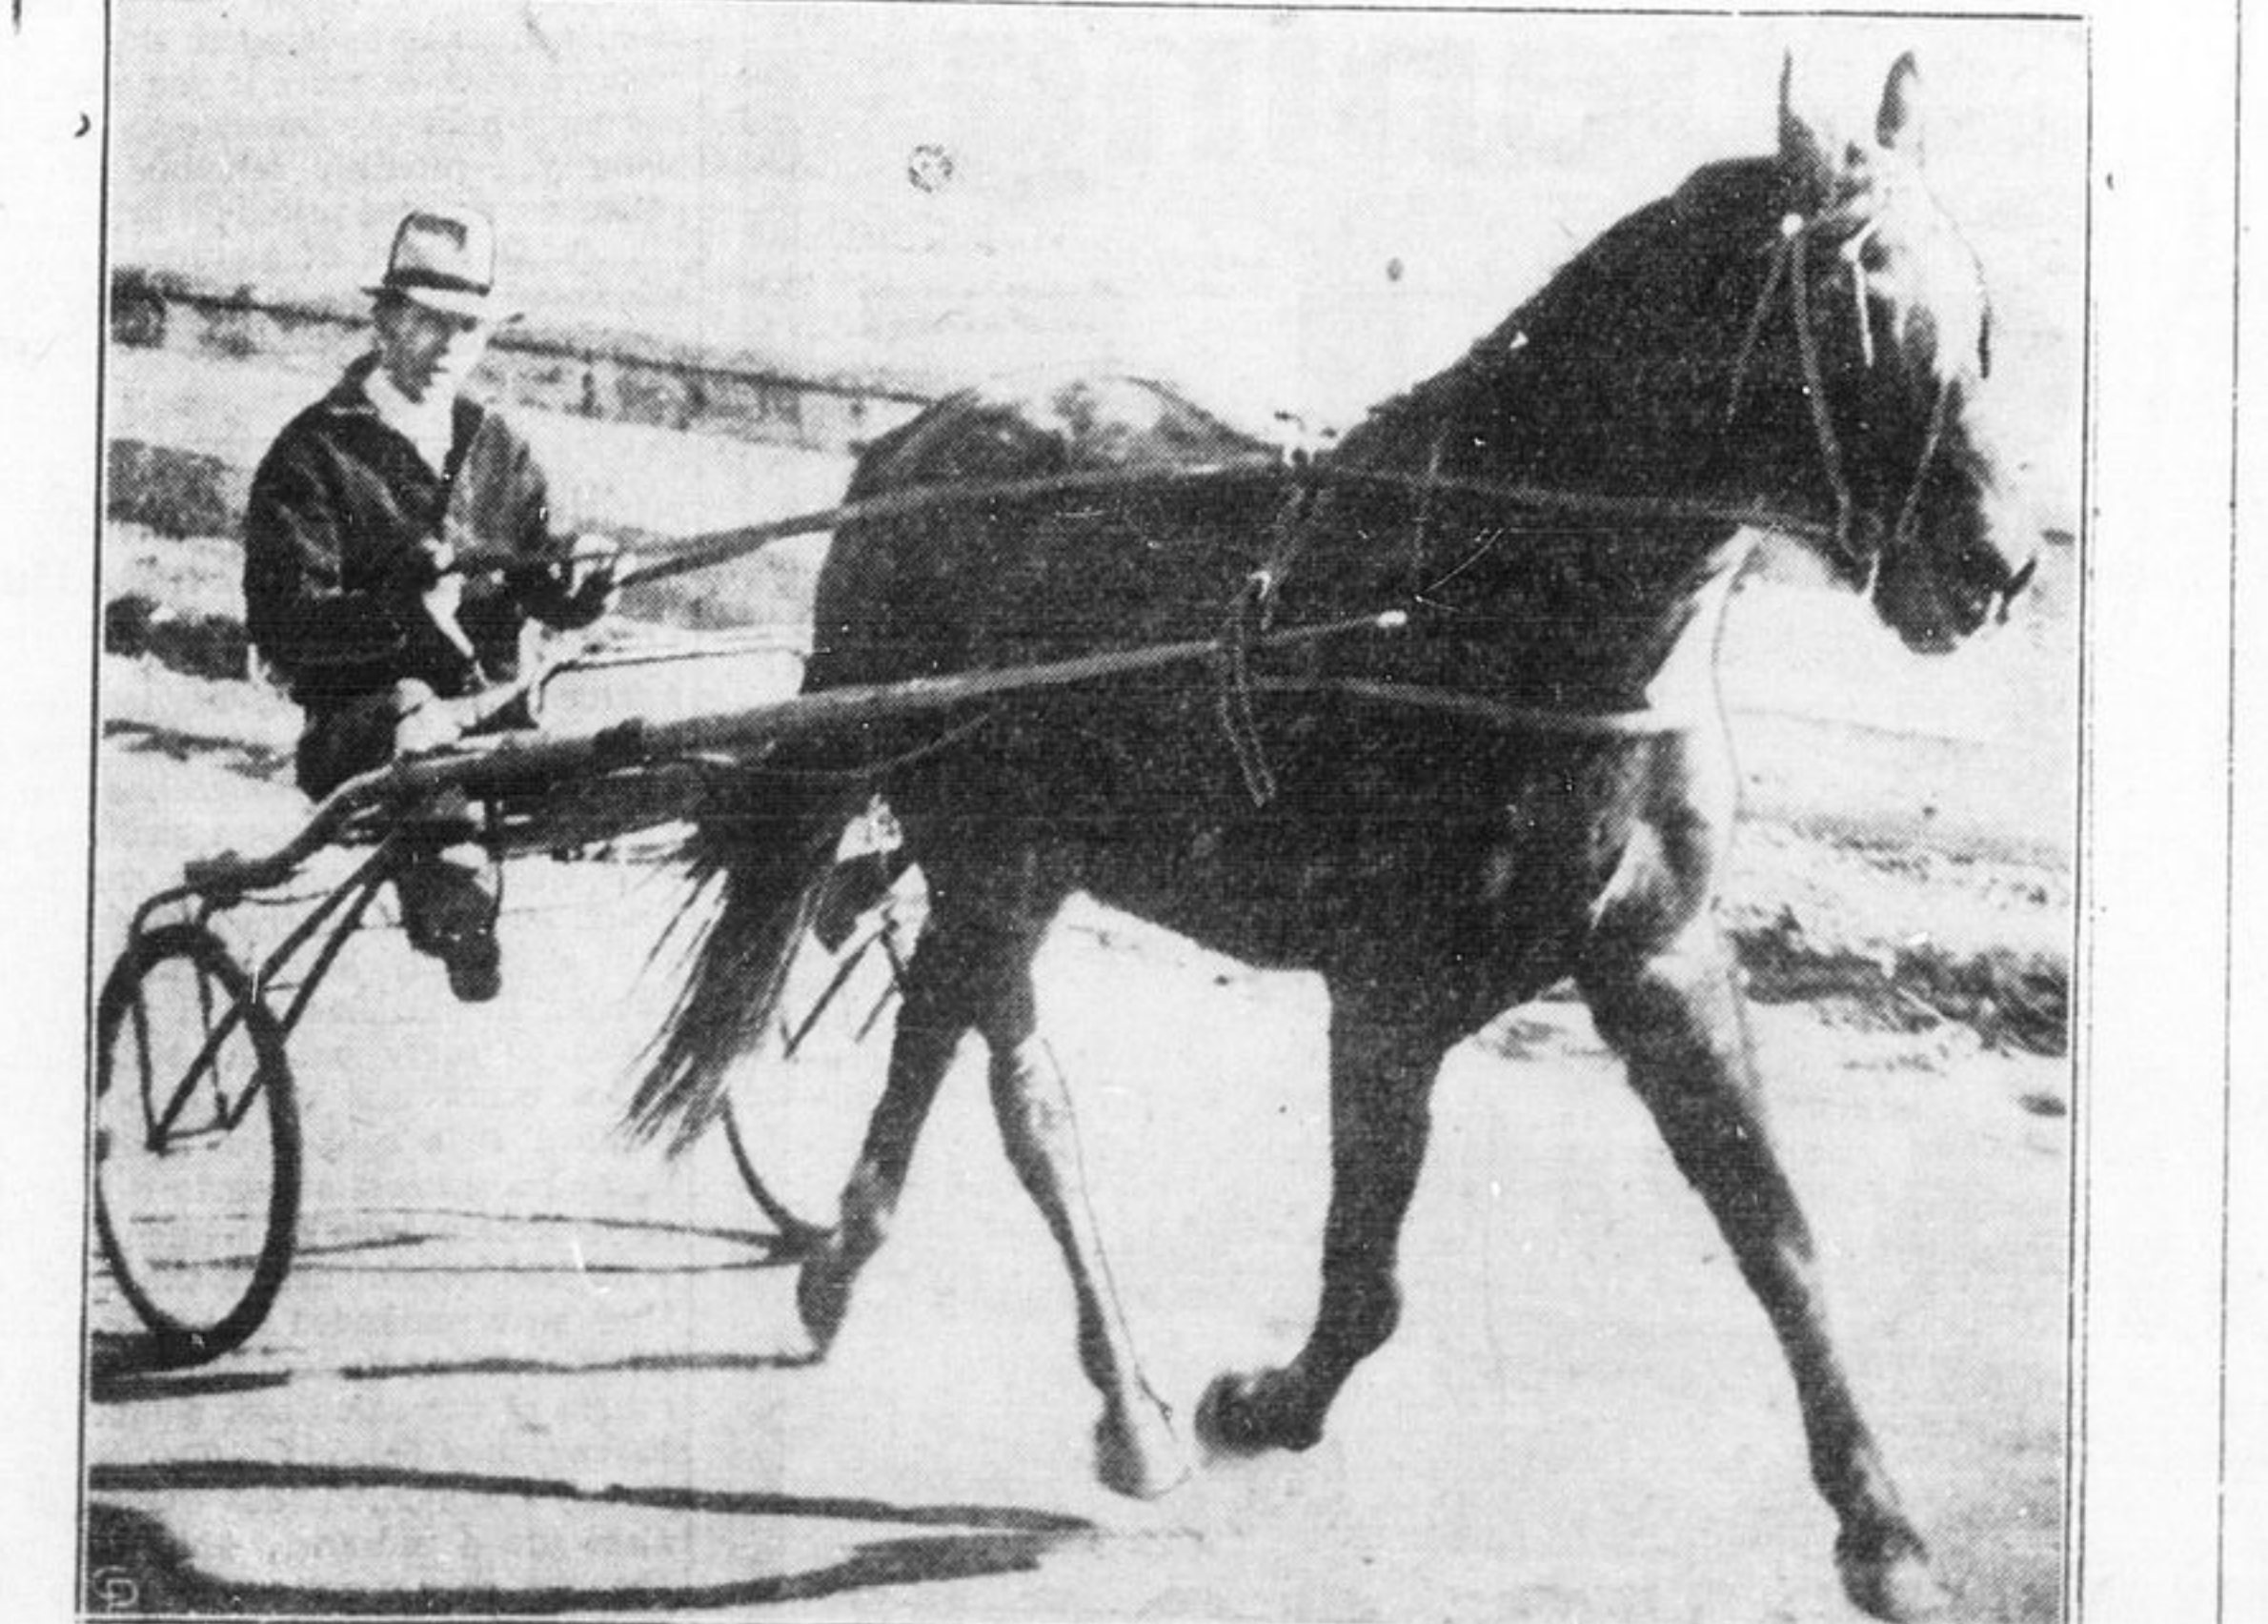

Out West, the Edmonton Superiors, who took British Columbia's Kimberley team in the first of the Allan Cup series, fell before the North Battleford, Sask. Beavers. Edmonton won the first game, but the Beavers came back strong in Saskatoon on Friday night and won their second game and the series.

The only other team left in the West is Fort Arthur and they will meet North Battleford in the western finals this week. After that series is over, the western team will have to go a lot of sitting around before they go east to Halifax for the finals.

Great Trotter Steps Along for Just Another Work-Out

Equivalent in age to a man 75 years, Peter Manning, 1.56% fastest trotter the world has ever seen steps out like a youngster, although he has just rounded his nineteenth birthday. At a full trot the greatest harness horse of all time, covers a speedy mile over the frost encrusted ring at Hanover Farms, Hanover, Pa., where he is pensioned forever from tracks over which he won his world's title. While many attacks have been made against Peter's great mark, no horse has ever cracked it.

Juniors win 6-4 from Marshalls; Ice Soft

Renaud Injured in First Period on St. John Ambulance Benefit Game.

Though sticky ice slowed up the game to a certain extent, the Marshall-Ecclestone tangle with the Juniors on Sunday night was well worth seeing. Juniors came out on top of a 6-4 score.

Stobasky for Marshalls opened the scoring about half way through the first. Grant followed a minute later before the Juniors got organized. Walsh made it 2-1 before the period ended.

Gillan evened things up early in the second and his teammate Mullen put the kids in the lead near the close. Kennedy gave the Juniors a two-goal edge.

In the third Delmonte and Richer got one each for the opening and Charlebois and Marshall closed it off for Marshalls.

Renaud, who started the game with Marshalls, got a nasty slash over the right eye and had to retire from competition. He returned after the end of the first. Marshalls were without Jerry

Tucker on defence and didn't look quite as good as on their last appearance. They had only two alternates which didn't give the rest of the team enough rest, particularly on the heavy ice.

The Teams

Juniors—Goal, Barbarie; defence, Mullen, Tony Delmonte; wings, Russ Kennedy, L. Renaud; centre Richer; alternates, Villeneuve, Joe Delmonte, Guinard, Gillan Walsh.

Marshalls—Ecclestone—Goal Everard; defence, Chulest, C. Renaud; wings, Stobasky, Charlebois; centre, Grant; alternates, Marshall, Mobray.

Officials — Jennings, Shea, "Red" Auger.
