KEEP BOYS AT HOME

It would be a good thing for the boys, their parents and friends, and for the community and the country at large, if the duty of parents to make a real home for their children and then to see that the home was fully used, especially at night, were more fully recognized.

In recent months the town police have had considerable trouble with petty robberies and burglaries. The police have been able to trace the authors of these crimes and in practically every case the robbers and burglars have been shown to be lads under eighteen. One point has also been made very clear to the police in their investigations—and that is that if the boys had been sufficiently watched at night they would not have drifted into the wrong paths they did. Some of the boys came from good homes, or, at least, had good parents. Mistaken leniency, however, had tempted the parents to overlook the fact that the only place for a boy at nights is at home. There is no possible good that a lad may learn on street at nights. Certainly, there is much of evil that he is almost sure to pick up if allowed to roam the streets at night. Parents who allow their boys or girls to be on street at night have no way of watching or guarding them. The boy, or girl, allowed to run around outside at night is practically sure to drift into evil company and evil ways. The downfall of seventy-five per cent. of the young people who fall into evil ways may be traced to street roaming at night.

There are people shortsighted enough to suggest that the present day is a time of freedom and self-expression for all, and that to hold otherwise is to be old-fashioned and out-of-date. People who pretend to think in that fashion should fairly face this question:—"Are the old-fashioned virtues of honesty and decency and honour to go by the boards?" Surely there are few, indeed, who are ready to discard all the virtues on the plea that they are out of date. It may be that the old-fashioned virtues—honesty, decency, order, respect for the property and rights of others—cannot be maintained without some old-fashioned methods. Surely, most people would prefer a touch of old-fashions rather than the destruction of the characters of their boys and girls. One of the old-fashioned methods of building good citizenship was the maintaining of good homes for the young. It did the work. Further, it may be said that it gave happiness to youth in the process, as the memories of most of the people of to-day can testify.

As a matter of fact, however, there is nothing new about waywardness or evil. There have been cycles of this sort of thing all through the centuries. In few things are there new fashions created. Instead, new fashions appear to be little more than old fashions revived. Why not then be ultra modern and create a new fashion—having homes for the boys and seeing that the boys and girls are happily in the homes, especially at night. Such a fashion will be of life-long value to the boys and girls; it will be of joy to the parents; and to the community it will be of service and advantage beyond compute.

The boys and girls of to-day are surely the greatest assets of the country. They should be the greatest treasure of their parents. The time, the attention, the interest given to them will be well repaid in the years to come. Keep the boys and girls off the streets at night. The lives of youth are worth more than even the fashion of the moment.

MINERALS IN RENFREW

It was the late Aaron Wright who said, "Renfrew is no ordinary town!" People in Renfrew County would be quite ready to extend the late Mr. Wright's saying to include the whole county—"Renfrew is no ordinary county." Porcupine district has always taken pride in the number of Renfrew county people within its borders, many of them being among the original pioneers of this part of the North. These pioneers will be pleased to note another evidence that "Renfrew is no ordinary county" in the fact that there is now suggestion that gold and silver mining may be added to the industries of Renfrew County. In times past these pioneers were often asked about the mineral wealth of Renfrew County. It seemed to be generally admitted that there were many mineral deposits in Renfrew County. A quarter of a century ago there was a passing furor over the probability of rubies being obtainable in one section of Renfrew County in commercial quality and quantity. A Toronto stockbroker spent considerable money to develop ruby mining, but the project was not successful. Experts were not inclined to favour the ruby deposits but some of them suggested that the conditions favoured the chances of other mineral wealth. There were a number of mining ventures in Renfrew County but various causes (chiefly lack of adequate financing) seemed to militate against successful development. Years ago, it was a common thing to hear a Renfrew County enthusiast say that the mineral resources of Renfrew County would soon be acknowledged if someone would only find gold or silver in the county. Now comes word that both gold and silver have been found in Radcliffe township not far from Barry's Bay. It is not the first time that gold and silver showings have been unearthed in Renfrew County, but this time the assays are very impressive, and there has been considerable exploratory work done. The mineral find is on the farm of Paul Smaglenskie, at the head of Long Lake. One old-time prospector of the Porcupine will look on the location as favourable, believing that gold is partial to lakes and that the best mineral finds are almost invariably in the immediate neighbourhood of a series of lakes. E. J. Cowain, a mining engineer, has been working the Renfrew County property all winter. According to The Renfrew Mercury last week, he has secured assays running $120.75 to the ton in gold and silver. He has traced three veins across the 400 acres he has been working, and claims that the whole section of country is rich in gold and silver. The location of the mine being worked by Mr. Cowain and his associates is said to be ideal, being close to a highway and so comparatively easy of access and not too costly for transportation. There is no element of competition in the matter of gold mining. The demand for the precious metal to-day is keener than ever before, while the price is also better than ever. Consequently, there is no matter of rivalry to touch the good wishes that will go from the Porcupine to Renfrew County. All will wish that Renfrew County will show that it is no ordinary county by developing a paying gold mine or a group of profitable gold mines with silver mines to help along when silver prices are established at paying figure.

LOYAL NEWCOMERS

Some of the newspapers of Old Ontario have seen fit to comment on the "Council of Friendship" recently organized in the Rouyn camp to bring more closely together the citizens of different national origins. It is a pity that some of these papers did not confine their comments to topics about which they knew something, but, again, that attitude might unduly cramp their style. One suggestion made by one Southern Ontario newspaper is along the line that The Rouyn-Noranda Press is better occupied in giving publicity to the Council of Friendship than in exposing the misdeeds of the foreign reds. As a matter of fact the Rouyn-Noranda newspaper has given distinct public service in both these cases. The menace of the communist element is one that is apparent to anyone who has opportunity to see below the surface in any of the mining communities of the North. The reds have injured all the foreign-born peoples of the North, caused serious loss to the communities where they have carried on their nefarious activities, and they have been a serious menace to the country at large. From the beginning one of the chief grudges held by The Advance against these sneaking agitators is the injury they have done to all decent people of foreign origin. Councils of Friendship would be much less necessary were it not for the dirty work of the foreign agitators who have created enmity against all the groups they were able in any way to ally with their pernicious propaganda. The avowed purpose of the red agitators was to set class against class. In actuality they have been able to set race against race. In Rouyn and Noranda, for instance, they succeeded in creating such a prejudice against certain races of foreign origin that it will be years before employment or friendship will be open again to these peoples. Also, it may be noted that if Southern newspapers are foolish enough to believe that red activity is confined to the North, they are badly mistaken and will eventually find this out to their cost. In the Welland district, in the Windsor district, and in the neighbourhood of Toronto to-day simple misguided folk of British birth are carrying on the evil work commenced by the red agitators. In some cases, of course, the leaders in the cheap little riots are men of criminal tendencies who are simply taking advantage of the opportunity that appears to be available for lawlessness without complete popular condemnation, but it should be remembered that the illegal and subversive actions were commenced and arranged and financed by the alien agitators who are receiving better living than they could earn by honest effort. One of the chief virtues of a "Council of Friendship" is that it will prove to the community that the majority of those of foreign origin have the makings of good citizens. The condemnation of the contemptible few who act as communist agitators is one of the most practical ways of helping the success of the "Council of Friendship."

GRAVEL AND SAND—AND PLACER

Not only from the reports in The Advance, but also from references in practically every exchange received at this office, it would appear that the Easter services at all the churches throughout Ontario drew unusually large attendances. The common comment was that "the church was filled to capacity, and some had to be turned away." Of what is this a sign? Increased church attendance at any rate may be taken as a good sign.

It should be admitted by all that the Timmins police force is making the greatest effort to pro-

Keeping Workers at Swastika for Month

Bad Condition of Transport Results in Present Gang Getting Month's Work Instead of Two Weeks.

Seventy-five Timmins men now employed on the Swastika-Matachewan road may be left there for a month instead of the originally planned two weeks, it has been learned. The bad condition of the road, making transport of men to and from Swastika a difficult matter is understood to be the cause of the lengthened period of work. Medical examinations, paid for by the men themselves, are still necessary before the Dept. of Northern Development under orders from Toronto, are permitted to put the single men in road camps. Although the cost is only one dollar, it has been reported that many of the unemployed who expected to better themselves by a chance to work, were not able to raise the dollar and so were left here to shift for themselves as best they could.

If the Department decides to keep the 75 men now there for a month, the next gang will not leave Timmins until the middle of May.

Last Thursday, 75 single unemployed were placed on the back road to South Porcupine for a five-day period, making a total of 150 men on the job for that time. On May 1st, the 75 married men now employed on the project will be taken off and a new group chosen to take their places. A few jobs have been offered during the past week or so for qualified men to work at some of the smaller mines of the district, but as yet the summer work on development has hardly got under way.

Sudbury Star:—"How can a man deceive a woman to whom he has been married for years?" cries a Georgia prosecutor. It's a problem, brother.

light is left burning the constable on patrol can see inside the building and assure himself that all is well. If the light is turned out the officer at once has cause for suspicion and if there are burglars at work their chances of being caught or interrupted are much increased. A number of business places in Timmins have used the light plan to help protect their premises. It would be well for all business places to adopt this plan. Its cost would be well repaid by the assistance to the police and the protection to the building and business.
