"GLAND TER MEET CHERS"

It used to be tonsils! Then it was the appendix! Now it is glands!

Nature may be wonderful, but science has nature looking like a piker most of the time.

Nowadays when a man is sick, it isn't his liver or his stomach or his heart that is causing the trouble, according to science. "Glands," says the modern medico.

When a man robs a bank, or murders his mother, it isn't natural cussedness that is blamed. No! Glands!

See that runt of a fellow there? Maybe, you think that's due to smoking cigarettes when he was a boy! Well, modern science says you're wrong. Glands, again!

And that overgrown elephant of a man! His crippled condition is not due to porridge and exercise, fresh air and stale beer. No! That's simply another example of what glands do when they really try!

If this thing keep on it will soon be that the smart little girl will refuse to pray to be made a good little girl. Instead her petition will be:—"Oh, Lord, keep a special eye on my glands!"

There are some people who are carrying the gland theory so far that they think Premier Bennett is wrong in interfering with the red paraders from British Columbia. They suggest that it isn't a touch of jail they need but a regulation of the glands. Possibly, too much marching on freight cars makes overdue development of the lymphatic gland.

To judge from the remarks of a lawyer who had been studying the gland theory, the police are at fault to charge a man with driving a car while intoxicated. The charge should be against the family doctor who should be called to answer to the count for allowing a patient to be in charge of a motor car while his glands are on the rampage.

However, no one has stepped forward as yet to suggest that it is not wickedness and greed, but gland trouble that has caused all the evils that have been exposed by the mass buying enquiry. It is surely as reasonable to credit glands with overcharging and underpaying as it is to accuse them of all the crimes in the calendar in regard to the ordinary thug and highwayman. But for some reason or another it is not as popular. Every age appears to have its distinctive chivalry. In the days of Robin Hood the rich were robbed for the benefit of the poor. To-day the poor can do no wrong. The whole trouble is with their glands. On the other hand the rich evidently are not supposed to have any glands.

There is no doubt but that there is some foundation for the modern gland gospel. Undoubtedly glands do cause trouble to the system, especially the do-hickey glands. It is certainly comforting to feel that there is no personal blame for anything; the glands are responsible. Such a doctrine lifts a weary load from suffering humanity. It is "a gland and glorious feeling," as the cartoonist says. But back in the inner resources of the mind—if the glands allow any mind to remain—there will lurk the suspicion that even the glands would be handicapped in their everyday work were it not for the bad habits, the greed, the laziness, the meanness and the innate cussedness of some specimens of humanity.

VIEWES FAR AND NEAR

It is interesting to contrast the different views taken by responsible newspapers in regard to the mob organized by the communists to trek from British Columbia to Ottawa by means of stolen rides on the railway, living off the country passed through, and promising a serious problem for the people at their planned destination. The organizers of the mob have cleverly arranged to get the men to Ottawa. They left to Ottawa the job of returning the mob to the West or caring for them in the East.

The Ottawa Journal was very decided in its opinion that the mob should not be allowed to reach Ottawa. There was nothing that could be done for the poor fellows at Ottawa, and Ottawa had enough unemployed of its own. The whole scheme was futile and unreasonable and no possible good could result from allowing the mob to reach Ottawa. The Ottawa Journal could understand that very clearly and no doubt was amazed that everybody else could not see it. But so long as these blackmailing "marchers" stayed away from Ottawa they were nice fellows. "There is nothing of lawlessness or force," says The Journal. "They are not mere hoodlums." "No community touched by them has had occasion to complain of any breach of the peace, nor of anything bordering upon lawlessness." "They have persistence and stamina that many of us can not help but admire." That is the long view, but it is one that will not easily be accepted by places like Timmins where the communists have been seen in action at close view. Here, it will be impossible to believe that they did not live on the country by a species of blackmail and force, and that the real reason no community made objection to their presence was because it was feared to have them stopped at that particular place.

Turn, however, from the far view of The Ottawa Journal to the close view of The Calgary Herald. Here is part of what The Calgary Herald says about the mob of marchers stealing rides from place to place:—"The strikers came into this province and have proceeded east by illegal trespass on Canadian Pacific property. They are riding on trains of a private corporation. They came into Calgary and tagged citizens in defiance of civic authority. In face of such a large and well-organized influx local police were powerless, which was the intention of the organizers. They are demanding food and money as a right as they go along, as is the way of an invading army. If they can get away with this defiance of law, other groups similarly organized can adopt their example at any time. But why stop them in Saskatchewan instead of in British Columbia? That is a mystery known only to Ottawa."

The Ottawa view is reminiscent of the remark credited to a settler in the Halleybury district during the great war. This settler gave a recruiting officer a ride in his vehicle from one town to another, and the recruiting officer mentioned something about the war. The settler had not heard anything about the conflict that was shaking the world, and when it was carefully explained to him that Germany and Austria were engaged in a fierce war with the Allies, the old gentleman looked up to the sky and made the one comment, "Well, they're having a fine day for it!" Unless the mob reaches Ottawa, the opinion of many in the capital will apparently be that the weather has been the proper sort for those who march by stealing rides on freight trains.

MOB DEMANDS REFUSED

On Saturday Premier Bennett and his cabinet met the delegates of the so-called "hunger marchers" stopped at Regina on their way from British Columbia. It is well to note that these men are not "hunger marchers" in any meaning of the words. They are not hungry. Their leaders admit that. One of them explained the use of the word "hunger" by saying it was used in metaphorical way, to mean that they were "hungry" for better economic conditions. On their so-called march they have lived well, securing food by means of a species of blackmail and threat of violence. And they have done their "marching" by means of stealing rides on the railway. These facts should be sufficient to alienate public opinion, but public opinion these days is too often manufactured by agitators and hysterical newspapers ready to expire for a sensation.

It was to be expected that the "demands" of the delegates would be refused. The delegates themselves would have been bitterly disappointed if there had been any disposition to accept the demands. As Premier Bennett pointed out the last thing these fellows wanted was work. What they would like would be a fat living without working. As the people who do work have to pay for what these alien-led dupes receive, the impossibility of a responsible government acceding to their demands should be apparent.

Premier Bennett brought out the record of each man on the delegation, and the type of these fellows was the same as that of the agitators at Timmins, Rouyn and other places cursed by communist activities. One man shown by the premier to have served a term in the penitentiary for converting funds to his own use after they had been collected for "strikers" and their families, called the premier a "liar," "a damned liar," and other choice terms. He claimed that he had simply turned the funds from international headquarters of the union to local uses. Those acquainted with this type of men in union offices can easily figure what was done. The same sort of use of the money collected in the Stratford strike and in other communist activities in Ontario emphasizes the procedure. The strikers in Stratford were supported by the city and by other relief agencies, yet all over the country money was collected for the strikers. If more care were taken in checking-up on the uses made of the money collected in these cases, the communists would find greater difficulty in supporting their cause and its glib agents.

Hon. Mr. Bennett kept his temper despite the greatest provocation from the agitators. He took up the several demands made, showed how unreasonable they were and how impossible to fulfill with any regard for the rights of the people in general.

"You may take back to Regina word that the men will be able to go back to the camps and that as work develops in the country on buildings, highways and other undertakings, as opportunity offers, they will have an opportunity to work, but the trespassing on railways, involving delay to the mails, risk to life and limb will not be tolerated," said Hon. Mr. Bennett.

In response to a veiled threat by one of the delegates, Hon. Mr. Bennett gave warning that any violation of the laws of Canada would bring serious consequences. He also warned the delegates that they must accept responsibility for the situation they were creating.

If thinking people would only study the demands of the delegates and the records of the Service Taken by Ladies at United Church Sunday

Services at the United Churches in the Porcupine were taken yesterday by Miss I. Griffiths, travelling secretary for young peoples' work, and by Miss Elliott, missionary on furlough from Formosa. Miss Griffiths was at the Timmins church in the morning and at South Porcupine church in the evening. Miss Elliott took the service at Schumacher in the morning and at Timmins in the evening.

All the services were well attended and the congregations found the addresses by Miss Elliott and Miss Griffiths most instructive and helpful.

Delightful Treat for C.A.S. Children

Guests at Dinner of the District Hotelkeepers' Association on Friday Last.

The children at the District of Cochrane Children's Aid Society Shelter were the guests of the Hotelkeepers' Association of the District of Cochrane on Friday evening of last week, being treated to a ride to Schumacher and around town and then to a wonderful dinner at the Lady Laurier hotel. J. A. Tremblay, of the Algoma hotel, won the hearts of the youngsters as guide for the bus outing, and later shared the honours with Mr. and Mrs. P. Lacroix in entertaining the youngsters at the Lady Laurier.

The dining room at the Lady Laurier looked very attractive, with a long table beautifully set for the 24 children enjoying the full course dinner provided. For the youngsters it was a real full-course dinner, and every item on the menu was enjoyed thoroughly from the choice soup, the elegantly cooked turkey and trimmings, to the special ice-cream course and the candies given at the close. During the dinner the youngsters were delighted with the cheery music played by Gene Colombo, violin, and J. Ormston, piano.

In addition to the children, the matron of the shelter, Mrs. Condie; the local C.A.S. superintendent, A. G. Carson; the president of the District Children's Aid, G. A. Macdonald; Miss Brooks, town nurse; and Miss Barton, V.O.N. nurse, were guests at the Lady Laurier for the occasion.

At the conclusion of the very happy time, the children gave three cheers and a rousing tiger for the District of Cochrane Hotelkeepers' Association, Mr. and Mrs. P. Lacroix, Jos. A. Tremblay, Gene Colombo, J. Ormston, and the others who had been so kind to them.

The officers of the Hotelkeepers' Association of the District of Cochrane are as follows:—Honorary president, P. Lacroix, Timmins; president, J. Tremblay, Timmins; vice-president, Alec Stuart, South Porcupine; secretary, M. McGuire, Schumacher; executive board, Dave Martin, P. Jokic.

delegates themselves, remembering that these are the usual communistic type, there would soon be sufficient popular disapproval of these fellows to make their racket unprofitable.

GRAVEL AND SAND—AND PLACER

There will be very sincere and general sympathy with the relatives of the young man who was fatally injured when caught in a criminal action last week. At the same time there should also be sympathy for a good citizen of the country who has to face worry and expense in defending himself against charges arising from his efforts to protect his property in an isolated section where police protection was not available. It was not a few gallons of gasoline that was being protected, but the ability to travel to distant assis-

Family Re-union of the Caldicks at Halleybury

The Halleyburian last week says:—"Mr. and Mrs. George Caldick were host and hostess to their seven children at their Browning street home at the week-end for the first time in nine years. The family has been widely separated since the last time they met together under the parental roof, with the second son, Joseph, living in Seattle, Wash., and three others having their homes in Timmins. Crown Attorney S. A. Caldick was down from Timmins together with Mrs. C. E. Taylor and Mrs. Albert Cain, both of whom live in that town; Joe is spending a couple of weeks' holidays here while Miss Helen and George and Ward are all at home. With wives and husbands of the various married members of the family, there was quite a large gathering and all greatly enjoyed the re-union."

The Rouyn-Noranda Press last week says:—"Mrs. Earl Anderson, who is leaving Noranda to join her husband at the Pamour Porcupine Mines, was presented on Thursday evening with a very handsome Morocco leather purse. During the past week P. Lacroix, of the Lady Laurier hotel, Timmins, received official notice that he had been elected a director of the board of directors of the Hotel Association of the Province of Ontario at a meeting held some days ago. There is another member of the directorate at New Liskeard, making two for this large North. As the director living in this section of the North, Mr. Lacroix will have a particularly large district under his care.

Opening of Woolworth's New Stores on Friday

Opening of Woolworth's big new stores attracted many Timmins shoppers on Friday, despite the rainy weather. Everything was attractively displayed, and the new wide aisles between heavily laden counters make a great improvement over former quarters.

The new lunch counter was a particularly attractive spot.
