Kirkland Woman Dies from Injuries

Companion of Man who Died from Dynamite Explosion Fails to Survive.

In Monday's issue of The Advance there was a reference made to the death of Robert Kennedy, of Kirkland Lake, and the serious injury of Mrs. Annie Jackson, when a fuse was attached to a stick of dynamite carried in the man's pocket. The police looked upon the case as one of suicide and attempted murder.

Word later from Kirkland Lake gave the information that the woman died in the Kirkland Lake hospital early Monday afternoon. She was unconscious most of the time in the hospital, but when picked up at the scene of the tragedy near Kirkland Lake she said that all she knew of the matter was that Kennedy had said for her to come close to him and then the shot went off.

The police theory of the case is that the tragedy on Sunday last was the completion of a plan in Kennedy's mind on August 6th when he and Mrs. Jackson were booked on drunk charges. The story is told by The Northern News on Tuesday of this week as follows:— "When Kennedy was searched after being arrested on the night of August 6 he had in his pocket a half stick of dynamite and a short fuse. He fought the charge of intoxication to which Mrs. Jackson pleaded guilty and after his fine of $10 and costs had been paid he told police he intended to "end it all" some time.

"Sunday afternoon at 1 o'clock was the time he picked; the bush in the section where the Noranda highway is first crossed by the Nipissing Central Railway tracks the place; in the bush there by means of some explosive he caused his own death from a terrible chest wound in a blast which inflicted such serious internal injuries on Mrs.

Jackson that she died early yesterday afternoon.

"The official police view is that the death resulted from a suicide pact. A check on the movements of the pair on the day of the tragedy and the day previous revealed that they spent the time at a friend's home, ate no supper on Saturday and no breakfast Sunday.

"The police were told Kennedy and Mrs. Jackson went directly into the bush off Third street about 8:30 o'clock Sunday morning.

"The explosion took place about 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Police were notified at 1:30 o'clock. Provincial Constable Les Treganza made the investigation, assisted by township officers, in the moving of Kennedy's body and in bringing Mrs. Jackson to the hospital here.

"According to the statement of Mrs. Jackson as she was being taken to the hospital by police after the strange killing case was discovered, she said: "Bob said come close to me. I did and after several minutes the shot went off."

"Tony Digovanni and Tony Gambi, living at the rear of 46 Government road, Mike Coloto, from the rear of the Dominion store, and Tony Fedel, 24 Kirkpatrick street, made the gruesome discovery in the rain-soaked bush in the direction of Gull Lake from the intersection of the Larder Lake road and the N.C.R. tracks.

"The piteous moaning of Mrs. Jackson is what attracted the four men who had been at Welch's camp from which a rock cut diversion on the N.C.R. is being made. They were returning to Kirkland Lake when they heard the cries.

"According to reports in Teek township police office the two who figured in the week-end suicide were together on the night of August 6 when they were arrested in an intoxicated condition in the bush at the rear of the high school on Second street.

"It was when half a stick of dynamite was taken from him on that occasion that Kennedy first announced his suicide intentions. That it was dynamite or powder of some kind he used on Sunday is borne out in the police report which notes that "powder burns were quite distinct on his left side and his chest where the shirt had been burnt to ribbons."

"On July 8 Kennedy left Lake Shore Mines, where he had been employed since February of 1934.

"Police were told his daughter, who, with his wife, returned to England some years ago, died this summer and that the man had been despondent ever since.

"Kennedy worked at Hollinger Mines in Timmins before moving here. He was a native of Glasgow, Scotland.

"Mrs. Jackson was well known in Halleybury before coming to Kirkland Lake. She had been separated from her husband for some years. She was a nurse in Halleybury before her marriage.

"Kennedy's funeral was held this afternoon from the Thorpe funeral chapel. Mrs. Jackson's body was sent to Mattawa for interment on Tuesday morning's train.

"Coroner Dr. R. H. Armstrong released the bodies for burial after the provincial police investigation. The official verdict after the investigation was that the pair died in a pre-arranged suicide pact."

Strange Names Given to Children at Christening

A clergyman in Australia was once asked to christen twin girls, Neuraigia and Sciatica, and a canon in Africa was told that the parents wished to name their child Beekbeeb. Native Christians supposed that any name in the Bible was suitable for a child, says the Canadian Churchman in commenting upon the strange and amusing names sometimes given by parents at the baptism of their offspring.

There is also the story of the clergyman, a little hard of hearing, and the mother with an impediment in her speech. He thought she gave the name "Lucifer" when she really said "Lucy sir." He burst forth: "Lucifer! That is no name for a child. It's name is 'John'."

"In my first curacy," says the editor of the Churchman, "I baptized a young woman and omitted asking the names until the time of the service. To my amazement she gave me five names. She moved to another town shortly, and I wrote to the rector regarding her confirmation. He was a sort of a wag and asked me in his reply if I had any assistance at the baptism."

United States Note Rejected by Soviet

Russia Makes Reply Denying Any Responsibility for the Work of the Third Internationale.

Elsewhere in this issue will be found reference to the note of protest sent to the Soviet in regard to activities of communist agents in the United States. In speeches at the "Third Internationale" (communist) convention held in Moscow recently there was open boasting of riots and unrest created in the United States and other countries (including Canada). The matter resulted in the United States note of protest. Now come despatches in the daily newspapers giving the Soviet's reply. One despatch from Moscow says:—

The Soviet Government Tuesday night bluntly rejected the contention of the United States, as expressed in the American note of last Sunday, that it has violated its pledge not to permit anti-American activities in Russia.

N. N. Krestinsky, assistant commissar for foreign affairs, made public the reply to the American note which was delivered to him by Ambassador William C. Bullitt.

The reply denied any interference in the internal affairs of the United States and completely disavowed any responsibility for the activities of the Communist Internationale, which the United States had asserted was the body responsible for anti-American activity in Russia.

Reply Unsatisfactory to U.S. (A United Press Washington despatch states that the Moscow reply is considered by the state department to be "unsatisfactory." Further comment was withheld pending a conference between Secretary of State Hull and President Roosevelt.)

"The Government of the Soviet Union cannot assume and never has assumed any obligations regarding the Comintern" (Communist Internationale), the Russian reply declared.

"Thus the statement regarding the violation by the Government of the Soviet Union of its obligations assumed in the note of Nov. 16, 1933, (which pledged Russia and the United States to non-interference in each other's internal affairs) is not consistent with the obligations assumed mutually by both parties. In view of this I am unable to accept your protest. I am compelled to reject it."

Break May Ensure

The core of the argument is the American contention that the Soviet Government must accept responsibility for activities of the Communist Internationale which admittedly is a Soviet dominated organization. Russia refuses to do this. The two viewpoints being so diametrically opposed a break in relations would appear to be the only solution.

The foreign office earlier had rejected oral protests filed by Britain, Italy and Latvia. They also had objected to speeches and resolutions of the recent seventh world congress of the Comintern, which planned crusade against Fascism.

Lord Chilton, British ambassador, charged violation of the Anglo-Soviet 1929 agreement regarding Comintern propaganda in the British Empire. He warned that Anglo-Soviet friendship would not be helped by speeches derogatory to Britain made at the congress.

Britain's oral protest was mild compared with the sharp American note. Its tone was attributed to Britain's desire to remain on friendly terms with Russia, especially with a view to adverse repercussions which any Anglo-Soviet tension would evoke in France.

Washington Considers Steps The State Dept. at Washington considers the note unsatisfactory but comment was withheld until further study and conference with the president.

Nobody at the State Department seemed to be surprised at the tone or temper of the note. It had been expected that Moscow would adhere to its historical position that the Soviet Government is not responsible for the actions of the world Communist organization.

One point that American diplomats cannot understand is why Moscow denies knowledge of the meeting of the

Parents of Quintuplets at Toronto Exhibition

Mr. and Mrs. Olivia Dionne, parents of the famous Dionne quintuplets, are at the Toronto exhibition where they have a booth. At this booth there are large coloured pictures of the quintuplets and also smaller pictures of the youngsters for sale. The parents autograph the pictures sold, Mr. and Mrs. Dionne, being rather retiring in disposition, have not attracted much attention at the Ex. Out of the thousands at the exhibition only a few stop at the Dionne booth. Few appear to know the couple, despite the number of pictures of them published in the newspapers. Unless approached for autographs, Mr. and Mrs. Dionne are said to remain seated behind a newspaper and to rather appear not to court any publicity. On the other hand thousands weekly are visiting the famous quintuplets at Callander and are waiting hours in many cases just for a glimpse of the babies.

Mr. Dionne is quoted as stating that although he had heard of Rudy Vallee he wasn't particularly anxious to see him, but his chief interest in the fair was in the agricultural exhibits. Mr. Dionne pointed out that he had a 300-acre farm with 14 pure-bred Durham cows. The farm was in charge of a hired man during his absence. Mr. Dionne explained that the 14 cows were not kept specially for the quintuplets. As a matter of fact, he said, the youngsters used a canned milk product.
