Owen Sound Man Held in Death of Brother-in-Law

John Taylor, 35, Owen Sound, was arrested Monday and charged with murder following the death early that morning of Arthur Gough, Taylor's brother-in-law, from a knife wound in the abdomen.

Gough died in the Owen Sound General and Marine hospital after making a statement which city police would not divulge.

According to police, Gough went to the home of his brother-in-law about 10 o'clock Sunday evening and entered by the back door. Taylor was in the kitchen, making sandwiches and cutting bread with a butcher knife. He turned as Gough came into the room, police said, and threw his arm about Taylor's neck. The knife, held in Taylor's left hand, penetrated Gough's body and he fell to the floor. Taylor, his father, Archie Taylor and sister, Marian Taylor, who were in the house at the time, were all questioned but could throw little light on what actually had happened other than what Taylor told police.

At the hospital, police took a statement from all three members of the Taylor family and from Gough. Continuing their investigation after Dr. Charles Galliver performed a post-mortem on the body of Gough, police arrested John Taylor. He was remanded to jail by Justice of the Peace John McQuaker.

Youth Killed at North Bay in Auto Accident

Tony Zimblatte, 16-year-old son of Thos. Zimblatte, of North Bay, was killed instantly in an automobile accident last week. According to information secured by the police in the matter, the lad was in a car driven by his cousin. The car was going north and turned out to meet a car on the Thibault hill, a mile north of the city. The right hand door flew open and the young man was thrown out on the rocks at the side of the road. He suffered injuries to his head and side from which he died almost instantly. The car in which the young men were driving was owned by Thos. Zimblatte. By an odd coincidence, this is the second fatality in which this car has been concerned. On August 4th it was being driven by James Nichols, of North Bay, when it struck and killed Mrs. Amelia Gauthier on the Ferguson highway at Cook's Mills. Nichols was charged with negligent driving in this case and was given one year suspended sentence in connection with the accident. After the accident last week the auto swerved into a rock before it could be stopped, jarring the front wheel loose, and while the injured lad was being rushed to the hospital, the wheel came off. As it happened, however, there was a truck passing at the time and the trip to the hospital at North Bay was completed in this truck with very little delay. At the hospital, however, the doctors found that the lad had died instantly. Medical attention was necessary for the cousin in the car who broke down completely at the hospital when they found that Tony was dead. The injuries sustained by Tony included a fractured skull, a broken right arm and a fractured leg.

Rouyn Barber Found Dead Beside Discharged Gun

The body of Charles Massicotte, 29, well-known Rouyn barber, was found behind a school at Rouyn, a bullet hole from a 22 rifle just over his eyes and the rifle lying beside him. Mr. Massicotte had been missing since Friday evening.

For several months he conducted his own barber shop on Main street, Rouyn, but lately had been employed in another shop. His acquaintances said he had been in financial difficulties and had shown signs of despondency.

Mr. Massicotte was married a few months ago. He came to Rouyn about two years ago from St. Prosper, Dorchester County, Que., where members of his family still live.

Toronto Mail and Empire:—It is curious that newspapers should speak of five miles as a short swim, when we do not suppose that one citizen out of a hundred could swim half that distance in an afternoon.

Distinguished Visitors at Haileybury from U.S.

The Haileyburian last week says:—"Haileybury this week is entertaining, all unaware, a distinguished visitor from the United States, in the person of Mrs. John Paul Jones, of Long Beach, California, National Commander of Disabled War Veterans of America. Mrs. Jones is here for a visit with her son, Traffic Officer A. R. Clark of provincial police headquarters, and Mrs. Clark, Russell street. She is the holder of the "Purple Heart," presented by the government of the United States for war service, and has had a distinguished career in her work for the ex-service men of the republic who fought in the Great War. It is unfortunate that Mrs. Jones has been indisposed since her arrival in Haileybury. Earlier in the summer she suffered a heart attack while on a visit to Washington and a recurrence of this trouble has kept her confined to the house. Haileybury citizens will join in wishing for her a speedy recovery and a pleasant visit in town."

Former Haileybury Man Dies from Heart Trouble

Rev. Fr. Renaud officiated at the funeral of J. Henri Larocque at Holy Cross Cathedral, Haileybury, on Thursday last week. The late Mr. Larocque died suddenly at Rouyn last week. He was a former resident of Haileybury and had apparently been in usual health until he consulted a doctor at Rouyn and was advised to take a rest for a time. Later in the day, a friend, G. Sequin, also a former Haileybury man, went to his home and failing to gain admittance, broke in the door. He found Mr. Larocque lying on the bed and apparently seriously ill. Medical aid and other aid was summoned but death resulted shortly afterwards. The late Mr. Larocque was 56 years of age and had lived in Haileybury for many years previous to going to Rouyn where he conducted a poolroom. His family remained in Haileybury, but had spent the month of July with him at Rouyn. In addition to the bereaved widow, he is survived by three daughters living at Haileybury, and two brothers, Onesime Larocque, North Bay, and Joseph Larocque, Haileybury.

Settler in Cochrane Area has Trouble Over Cows

A Drinson, settler in the Cochrane area, has had rather an unusual trouble with the cows that were his, and then ceased to be his, and then came back to him. He had failed to square up with the tax collector and as a result four head of cattle were seized at his place. The cattle were taken away from his farm but were stored, as it were, at a neighbouring farm. That would appear to be enough trouble for four head of cattle to visit on a man, but there is more to follow. The cattle did not like it on the neighbour's farm and they came back to their original owner who apparently did not want the poor cattle on the road and took them in and fed them. Then came further trouble, the police being called to make the former owner release the seized cattle. He was in court at Cochrane recently in the matter and then there was trouble for the magistrate. Certainly Magistrate Tucker would not like to send a settler to jail for taking in cattle that he no doubt felt were his own, but at the same time the law must be upheld, and under the law the cattle no longer belonged to the settler, having been duly seized for debt. Magistrate Tucker upheld the law all right, and made it clear that there must be no interference in such cases. At the same time he did not deal harshly with the settler. In this case the settler was placed under suspension sentence for the offence, which seems to meet all the needs of the case without undue severity upon a more or less innocent offender.

Value of Accurate Gold Sampling in Mine Industry

The gold mills of the North Country have developed, little by little, refinements that make them the equal of any in the world; and in some respects they have won a position of leadership. This has come about by the ceaseless efforts of the metallurgists, whose ingenuity and persistency have achieved some remarkable results. Measuring the amount of gold at the various stages in the mill is a case in point.

Malcolm Black, who is in charge of the mill of Wright-Hargreaves at Kirkland Lake, describes in the September Bulletin of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy the methods, each of them with novel points calculated to improve its accuracy, that are used in sampling. As it enters the mill the ore is in comparatively large pieces and the gold is scattered through these pieces in a most erratic way. It is obviously impossible, therefore, to take a sample of these pieces that will truly represent the average of the ore. Soon, however, this ore is ground to the fineness of flour and at the same time is thoroughly mixed. In consequence the gold is distributed fairly evenly throughout this fine material, and it is now feasible to cut out a sample that will represent the average of the ore.

By proper attention to this and similar points, Mr. Black and his staff have now achieved at Wright-Hargreaves a system of sampling that approaches the ideal, namely an accurate measure of the gold at all important places in the mill and a balanced statement of these values. This enables him to detect and check any waste of gold or the inefficiency of any particular process, and thus helps him to keep up the marvelous over-all efficiency of the plant, which extracts 97 p.c. or more of the gold from the ore.

"Among My Souvenirs" "Scrounging" is a word recently added to the King's English, adopted by every British Tommy during the Great War and interpreted as meaning "borrow, find or take—not necessarily with intent to steal." Have you ever been scrounging? If not, a little enlightenment upon this highly entertaining pastime is in order. Some time near Christmas 1916, a company of the Signal Corps was billeted in the vicinity of Rancholau, a pretty little spot with a grand chateau, and just a couple of estaminets. The village church was one of picturesque beauty and the whole village had been untouched by war's ruthlessness although it was but a few miles to the front. Life among the boys was dull; there was no music; only one of the estaminets boasted an old hurdy-gurdy which for the sum of one centime churned out airs of ancient vintage, but to which the villagers delighted to show their ability to hop, step and jump. Christmas Day was fast approaching and with three piano players in the company and no piano, things looked black indeed for a dismal festive season. The officer viewed the situation in alarm and the day before Christmas at the morning parade, said: "I know how you boys feel about tomorrow; if we could only get a piano, the day would be a great success. The officers mess in the Nissen huts about 5 miles away have one but they are sure to be making good use of it." It was a nod to a blind horse. As dusk approached six stalwart Canadians took their place on a lorry, which was taking in supplies. It had to pass said Nissen huts. A matter of a sham accident got the mess orderly about 200 yards down the road. The truck backed up to the hut, four of the six trundled the instrument into the lorry and away. Daylight came and with it the piano, which was of a light oak stain. Now we had "scrounged" the piano, what if the officers came in search? A can of black paint did the trick and a pedal knocked off, temporarily. They did come, but that was not the piano they had lost. All was "jakealoo" (travelled Army word), and that piano travelled with this particular company until abandoned on the Amiens push. That, my friends, was "scrounging" as known to the troops. There were other forms such as searching "Dead Fritzes" for Iron Crosses, badges, buttons or anything which could be classed as a souvenir. The habitual "scrounger" could enrich himself materially after a trip among likely material for his souvenir craze. Bids ran high even for the bit of ribbon which went with an Iron Cross, and the latter would go sky high before being knocked down. German gun pits and captured machine gun posts were favourite hunting ground, and the owner of a spiked Prussian guard helmet was the envy of all ranks. The Advance in its last three issues has been asking for curios and souvenirs to decorate the walls of the Legion hall. There may be several in Timmings who have some of the above mentioned souvenirs, but they are treasured possessions, having a link to the past. In any event a list of articles that would make an interesting collection for the Legion hall is given herewith.—German helmets or caps, belts, hand grenades, shell caps, machine gun belts, cartridge cases, rifles, bayonets, swords, badges, maps, aeroplane parts, in fact anything that had a war flavour. So come on boys, bring in your souvenirs, the downstairs will look all the better for a few of them and make an interesting exhibit for the visitors.

Virginia Jubilee Singers to be Here at United Church, Timmings, on Monday Evening, Sept. 16th, Under Auspices of the Choir.

In recent years the Timmings United Church Choir has been responsible for a number of musical treats provided here for music-lovers, the events including both local and outside talent. An extra special musical event is being sponsored by the Choir for Monday evening, Sept. 16th, commencing at 8.15 p.m. This is a visit here of the famous Virginia Jubilee Singers, whose notable programmes have delighted literally hundreds of audiences on this continent. Last year the Virginia Jubilee Singers made no less than 48 appearances in leading Toronto churches and every event was a decided success. Sons of the comments made on the Virginia Jubilee Singers may be of interest:—

Here for instance is an expression of opinion by Rev. J. D. Parks, M.A., B.D., of the Carleton Street United Church, Toronto. Rev. Mr. Parks was for several years minister in charge of the Timmings United Church and his opinion will carry very strong influence here. Rev. Mr. Parks says:—"Their singing at the church services was a real inspiration, and their programme on Monday evening was all that could be desired."

Rev. W. J. Johnston, B.A., B.D., of Eglington United Church, Toronto, gives the following unsolicited testimonial:—"One of the finest concerts I have ever heard in my church. I was delighted beyond measure."

Rev. G. O. Falls, B.D., C.B.E., Trinity United Church, Toronto:—"The Virginia Jubilee Singers pleased everyone both Sunday and at their concert on Monday. They were simply superb. Nothing we have had for a long time in Trinity Church has created so much enthusiasm."

"A programme satisfactory from every point of view," is the comment of Rev. S. Ernest Lewis, M.A., Sherbourne United Church, Toronto.

Rev. L. I. Hunter, B.A., B.D., Westmoreland United Church, Toronto, says:—"My people are unanimous in their praise. It was a concert thoroughly in keeping with the best traditions of the church. The singing was thrilling. A full house will greet them when they return."

In reference to the last words in the above testimonial, "when they return," it may be said that return engagements are the rule with the Virginia Jubilee Singers. Those who have heard them once are anxious to hear them again.

In addition to the above letters from ministers and churches, there are equally complimentary newspaper notices from scores of towns and cities for the Virginia Jubilee Singers. It would appear that in the concert under the auspices of the Timmings United Church Choir in the church on Monday, Sept. 16th, there is another musical treat for the people of town and district.

NEARLY EIGHT THOUSAND SAW DIONNES AT WEEK-END

The past week-end set a record for visitors to see the Dionne quadruplets at Callander. Nearly 8,000 people saw the five little sisters when the latter made their regular appearance on the verandah of the Dr. Darce hospital. The estimate said that about 3,500 people were at each of the two daily "shows."

GENERAL EVANGELINE BOOTH AT CONGRESS IN OCTOBER

One Christmas night, in London, England, in 1865, a family of children were playing at reasonable games, when, suddenly, the door of the room swung open. There stood a tall, black-bearded figure, carrying a basket. Scarcely Santa Claus, but he was welcomed eagerly. Their father, he came forward, and disclosed the contents of the basket—a baby, their tiny sister, just born, the family's most wonderful Christmas gift. Thus was Evangeline Booth introduced to her brothers and sisters. She is now General of the Salvation Army, in third succession to that father, General Evangeline Booth will be visiting Canada to conduct, in Toronto, from October 4th to 10th, the Army's fifty-third annual Congress in the Dominion. The largest halls, engaged for the public meetings, include the Maple Leaf Gardens, and the Varsity arena. Excursions will be running from all parts of the Dominion.

United States will Need Wheat Supply from Canada

Supplies of Canadian hard wheat will be needed by the United States this season, it was disclosed this week at Washington, D.C., by Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

The Secretary spiked fears in the mid-West that Canadian wheat would be "dumped" in this country, but revealed the Department of Agriculture "anticipates a considerable need for Canadian hard wheat during the coming winter and spring."

In a letter to Senator Burke, of Nebraska, who inquired about the situation after Nels B. Updike, Omaha grain man, expressed fear Canadian wheat would move into the United States in large volume, Mr. Hull said there was no way to measure the need for Canadian wheat at present.

Not Enough Hard Wheat
 It was impossible, he said, to know how much American spring hard wheat crop would be suitable for milling. But because of rust, it was expected there would not be sufficient American hard wheat available for requirements of millers.

Mr. Hull pointed to the suggestion from Updike that imports be halted, and said his information was that Canada wanted to sell its wheat for the best possible price, but laws of the United States furnished a means to protect American farmers if the case proved otherwise.

"With reference to your constituents' concern over the possibility of dumping (that is, selling below the going market price) of Canadian wheat by the Canadian Government under the new wheat control plan adopted in July of this year, I understand the Canadian Prime Minister, Mr. Bennett, made a public announcement at the time of the enactment of the plan to the effect that the Canadian Government would not dump wheat in any market," the letter added.

Wants Best Price
 "I understand, also, that Mr. McFarland, chairman of the new Wheat Control Board, is anxious to secure the highest market price for Canadian wheat. Moreover, the anti-dumping act of 1921 would afford protection in the event dumping of Canadian wheat should be attempted."

Hull said further potential protection is afforded the United States wheat growers by tariff laws permitting the President to increase the duty to equalize differences in cost of production and by recent Agricultural Adjustment Administration amendments empowering the President to impose limitations on imports to prevent their interfering with crop adjustment programmes.

In connection with the present tariff, Hull said that in recent weeks the spread between comparable Canadian and American prices has been greater than 42 cents.
