CONSIDER A CREAMERY

An article elsewhere in this issue gives the interesting fact that Timmins uses 5,000 quarts of milk per day. Despite this large consumption of milk, however, the farmers and settlers in the area are not able to sell all their milk to the pasteurization plants. This leaves the farmers and settlers handicapped, and The Advance feels that something should be done about it. Despite all the handicaps under which the settlers of the district have had to labour they have made noteworthy progress. It is a fact that every legitimate assistance given the settlers has proved profitable to the country at large. It is only reasonable to expect that any help extended the settlers in finding profitable market for their surplus milk would prove of general advantage. It would be well to remember that the progress and prosperity of the settlers and farmers will have a decided reaction in beneficial way to the town of Timmins. Even from the selfish point of view, it will prove worth while for Timmins to consider any measure that will tend to assist settlers and farmers near here. It may be that the solution of the surplus milk may lie in the way of establishment of a creamery in this district. This has been suggested by several. In any case it might be worth while for the Timmins board of trade or some other local organization to offer the necessary services to the farmers in the way of investigation and organization, as the settlers have no ready means for the preliminary organization so necessary in such cases. The establishment of a creamery in the district may well be studied and considered from all angles as possibly a desirable and valuable addition.

PIE FOR THE JOURNAL

Last week two kindhearted ladies each presented The Ottawa Journal with a pumpkin pie of the honest-to-goodness old-fashioned type, than which there is none better. As a result, The Ottawa Journal is not only full of pie, but also full of gratitude and hope and contentment and philosophy—all the legitimate first fruits of genuine home-made pumpkin pie. The Ottawa Journal knows now that what this country really needs is more old-fashioned pumpkin pie, and less of the modern tripe and bologna.

The Journal writes an editorial article on the two pumpkin pies. It is a good editorial, even better than the usual good Journal editorial—and that's some pumpkins. In fact for days past, in what may be termed "the pumpkin pie age"—the editorials in The Journal have had a charm, a wholesomeness, a body and a strength, that speak in no uncertain terms of the virtue of true pumpkin pie on mind, body and estate.

Once upon a time pumpkin pie reigned supreme, and there was no depression, no physical or economic indigestion. Then simple folks (and most people are simple enough if they would only admit it) followed after strange gods like caviar and cocktails, and look where the world's landed! Why not follow The Journal's lead, and get back to first principles? Imagine people who can't make pumpkin pie, thinking they can cook up a new economic system. A new party should be formed, the chief plank in the platform being that very male or female from eight months of age to eighty years should be given at least one pumpkin pie a month. Then slogans are needed! Every party has its slogans! Here are some for the new pumpkin pie party:—"Banish boloney!" "Pumpkin Pie—the Pride of the Nation!" "An Extra Slab of Pumpkin Pie for Every Dinner Pail!"

The Pumpkin Pie Party should fill a long-felt want.

"LOCAL PEAT"

Some friends of The Advance have been having some fun with the banner head in the last issue of the paper. The banner read:—"Town Council to Try Out Local Peat."

"Good old Pete," says one would-be humorist. "Good old Peat," indeed, it is likely to prove. Present indications are that this Peat is going to prove an excellent thing for the town and the North. For the moment attention is centred on the idea of the saving that is likely to be made by the town and the people by the use of this fuel. Experiments so far seem to fully justify the expectations of a good fuel delivered right to the householder's door at a material saving. Important as that is, there is another feature that should not be lost sight of. It should be remembered that the town of Timmins and the North will have a new industry of some importance, with consequent employment of men and creation of new business resulting. As the crib players say, "that is not to be sneezed at."

Present indications are that the new peat industry may develop into a business of considerable proportions. Those promoting the new industry appear to have the goods, the proper process, and a notable fund of energy and enterprise.

"Good old Peat!" "Good old Local Peat!" May Peat prosper fully!

GRAVEL AND SAND—AND PLACER

Here is a strange thing: Will Rogers has been dead several weeks now, and yet no one has come forward with a claim for back pay for writing the humorist's wise-cracks.

Before the election Premier Aberhart promised all adults $25.00 per month. After the election he asks the Dominion for $18,000,000. There is always a catch in these things.

Watching near the schools just before nine o'clock these days it is evident there are some who observe the sign:—"School! Go Slowly!"

The ratepayers of Timmins are to vote at the coming municipal election on the question of a new town hall. In any event the town needs a new town hall much more than it needs a municipal power plant.

Sir Jos. Flavelle and Premier Aberhart, of Alberta, had their picture taken the other day and seemed to be good friends. Premier Aberhart, who apparently knows his bible, may have thought of the passage about the lion and the lamb.

People are still waiting for the war between Ethiopia and Italy to start, but it is one case where most people are quite content to keep on waiting.

Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King has proposed that before Canadians take any part in any possible war in Ethiopia, a plebiscite be held on the matter in Canada. If the plebiscite idea has any virtue why not use it in Italy and Ethiopia to decide whether there shall be any war or not?

The trouble between Italy and Ethiopia is very much like some of these championship prize fights where for months the boxers revile each other and make faces at each other through the medium of their press agents.

High-grade Sample from Week's Run of the Press

Sudbury Star:—As a startling example of the effect that high taxation is having upon the mining industry, it is interesting to observe that taxes absorbed slightly over 30 per cent. of the net profits recorded by Lake Shore Mines during the company's fiscal year ended June 30 last. It is doubtful if any other industry is burdened with a levy as severe.
