SHOE REPAIRER INSISTED ON MONEY OR THE SHOES

A story comes from Sudbury of a man there in court on a vagrancy charge. He appeared in his stocking feet, and the magistrate in surprise asked—"Where are your shoes?" The crown attorney, Mr. Wilkins, suggested that the charge against him was proved as he had no visible means of support. Chief of Police Loudon told the court the man had been offered a couple of different pairs of shoes, but neither of them were good enough to suit him. To the magistrate the man said that his shoes had needed some repairs and he had visited a repair shop where the job was done while he waited. He insisted on a specially good job, but when the work was done the shoe repair man was equally insistent on being paid. "No pay, no shoes!" was his ultimatum, and eventually the man claimed he had to walk away in his stockings. He was fined $2.00 and costs, and not having the money (probably he keeps his money in his shoes) he was sent to jail for one month.

Not Enough Ducks to Go Round, is Claim

Some Hunters Think there Will be More Birds Coming Down Soon from the North.

There aren't enough ducks to go around this year, say some of the hunters who have been out early these mornings to Frederickhouse lake and other spots in the district. Many of them return empty-handed. It is expected by the more experienced duck hunters that there will be more birds within a short time than there were at the opening of the season.

One hunter, not ambitious enough to go far afield for his sport, was shooting at Gillies lake early one morning this week. So far as can be learned now, all he succeeded in doing was waking the neighbours for a hundred yards or so around.

The story is told of four men who all fired at the same duck at the same instant. It settled over on the water and the hunters immediately began to argue about who shot the bird. Finally it was decided that he who got to the spot first should be entitled to possession. The youngest and fastest of the hunters discovered to his amazement that some other hunter's decoy had been shot full of holes.

Many Traffic Cases for Court Tuesday

Other Cases Include Drunks, Vags, Fighting on Street, Maiming Cattle, Interfering with Police.

While most of the cases so far booked for next Tuesday's court are in connection with traffic offences, there is also a variety of other cases.

The provincial police on Tuesday arrested Tony Infelice, of Mountjoy township, charged with maiming cattle. The case is understood to arise from the shooting of a cow, the animal suffering two shots that caused painful injuries.

There are a couple of charges of fighting on street. In one case two men had a fight on Wilson avenue and when the one got down on the sidewalk the other started to "put the boots" to the fallen man. An officer in plain clothes happened along and when he went to stop the unfair style of fighting he was himself attacked. He was placing the two men under arrest when a third man joined the battle. This third man is being charged with interfering with the police while in the discharge of their duties.

There will be four or five vagrancy cases, the number of undesirable transients coming into town recently being larger than for some time. Up to last night the police found it necessary to pick up four men on vagrancy charges.

There are drunk and drunk and disorderly charges also on the docket now. One of these gave the name of Oscar Congus and said he came from Winnipeg. He was on Maple street and others on the street complained of the language he was using.

The cases picked up in the last day or two show that the police are continuing their efforts to assure safety for the public by enforcing the traffic rules and regulations. Following an accident on Tuesday evening one man faces a charge of reckless driving as well as suffering minor injuries. Apparently he drove his car into a parked car. He was rendered unconscious in the crash. Someone took him to a doctor before the police arrived. There is one man charged with speeding. One man is accused of having defective lights. A truck had only one light and this resulted in another case. Four men will be called on to answer for parking on the wrong side of the road. Still another has the charge of "double-parking" against his name. To complete the list up to this morning there is a case where an auto had neither lights nor proper braking power and a traffic case accordingly resulted.

Another Drill Contract Let in Night Hawk Area

Goward Gold Mines Limited have awarded a contract for diamond drilling on their Porcupine (Thomas township) property, Nighthawk Lake camp, comprising six claims of approximately 240 acres.

From surface operations which have been carried on during the past nine weeks, extra high values have been uncovered, the veins consisting of quartz and porphyry much sheared and schistified, and mineralized with pyrite, chalcopyrite, tourmaline, galena and native gold.

Diamond drilling commenced September 16, to prove depths and widths, and it is reasonably expected that wide ore bodies with desirable depths will be proven, according to reports received on account of the Ethiopian crisis.

Italy Appears to be Fully Determined to go to War

Latest despatches from overseas suggest that Italy is determined to proceed to war with Ethiopia. While the League of Nations committee of five handed peace proposals to Italy and Ethiopia, diplomats of France, Britain and other powers behind the scenes discussed systems of progressive sanctions, starting with withdrawal of all diplomatic representatives and going on to enforced economic boycott. While bombing planes roared overhead at Rome in practice demonstrations the Mussolini cabinet provided financial means for war in East Africa. A dozen Italian submarines passed through the Suez canal to the Red Sea this week. Britain has dropped all thought of a general election there until spring on account of the Ethiopian crisis.

BE BEAUTIFUL
By ELSIE PIERCE
FAMOUS BEAUTY EXPERT

HAIR NEEDS CARE AFTER PERMANENT AS WELL AS BEFORE
ANNA STEN'S permanently waved hair looks naturally waved. It is brushed daily to bring out the highlights and the ends turned in tiny ringlets.

Women know a good deal about permanent waves; a good deal more than they ever did before at any rate. They are "choosy" about the brand or type of wave, they go to reputable beauty salons employing experienced hair-dressers. They look at the pads to make certain they bear the same family name as the wave they are getting, and that the pads are fresh and clean and haven't been used before. They even come for their permanent properly prepared, the hair strengthened and conditioned beforehand by a series of beneficial scalp treatments, for it is very true that a healthy head of hair takes a better wave.

All this they know, yet the most sophisticated of them makes the grave mistake of not carrying on the good work after the permanent wave has turned straight and stray locks to well-behaved waves and ringlets. For some reason or other a great many women still permit themselves to become lax after the permanent. They fail to give their hair the nightly brushing, whether out of laziness or out of an erroneous impression that brushing may injure the wave. They fail to massage the scalp. And they do not give the hair the very necessary and very helpful oil treatments. These oil treatments, mind you, are as helpful after the permanent as before. More so, in fact, because the majority of permanents are bound to be slightly drying to the hair.

More Life and Lustre

A permanent wave is the important foundation for most coiffures to-day. But remember that the coiffure alone is lost unless the hair is full of life and lustre, sparkle, highlights. Dull, drab hair, no matter how beautifully or exotically arranged, fails to call forth any admiration. But a charming coiffure accompanied by refreshingly clean and vibrantly glossy hair is indeed a combination that women envy and men stop to exclaim over.

You have very likely had your fall permanent. If you have, please do continue to give your hair daily care. If you haven't, condition your hair before and just as diligently keep up the good work afterward. Remember that brushing, massaging, hot oil treatments and mild shampoos will not shorten the life of the wave but will heighten the life and beauty of the hair. Another thing: learn to press and coax your waves in place, wear a net while sleeping and your settings will last longer.
