Disgrace to Canadian Sport The "strike" staged by the Montreal football squad last week brought to public attention once again a disgraceful condition in certain Canadian athletic circles. The same thing might just as easily have occurred in baseball, in nockey, lacrosse and a dozen minor sports. It is too much to hope that the Montreal comedy will mean a cleanup of Canadian sport. Few expect it and it's doubtful if many, except the true amateur athletes themselves, would support a housecleaning effort. revision downward of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada's very high standards would appear to be the only thing that will save Canadian sport from becoming as hypocritical a thing as there is in the nation.
