Again Premier

HON. STANLEY BALDWIN, premier of Great Britain, a winner himself and by his party in the British elections last week.

A dozen years ago, an inventor solved the problem of winter transportation. His machine would traverse the frozen wastes of Northern Canada at a speed not even dreamed of before that time. It would carry heavy loads yet its aluminum frame and the four cylinder motor-cycle engine that supplied the power tended to make the gross weight as little as possible.

"Are they all there?" asked a man in the audience before the cars were knocked down.
