Memorial Service at the Synagogue on Tuesday

Hebrew People of the Town and District Pay Heartfelt Tribute to King George V. Eloquent Sermon by Rabbi H. Goodman. Other Features of Notable Service.

There was a special service in the Synagogue on Tuesday evening to pay special honour and respect to the memory of King George V. At the various memorial services in the different centres on Tuesday the Jewish people had been well represented during the day, both Rabbi Linder and Rabbi Goodman taking effective part in the community services in the Goldfields and New Empire theatres, but at their own special service in the Synagogue on Cedar street, Timmins, the Jewish people of the town and the whole district gathered to express their sorrow at the death of the late king and their prayers for the welfare and success of the new king and the Empire that they love.

After an introductory address by M. J. Brovender, "God Save the King," was sung in earnestness but with subdued voices because of their thought of the great king who had just passed on. Then followed the recitation of a prayer in Hebrew by the Rev. Wm. Linder. Rabbi H. Goodman read in English and in Hebrew from the Psalms.

In the sermon given by Rabbi H. Goodman, the strikingly appropriate text was taken from the Book of Psalms, chapter 29, verse 4:—"A king in justice establishes the land." Rabbi Goodman made feeling reference to the tolerance, the justice, the kindness which the Jewish people, together with all the other peoples of the Empire, had enjoyed under the reign of his late Majesty King George V. He made special mention of the acts of kindness and benevolence to the Jewish people, "In Jewish history," he said, "King George will go down as a second Cyrus in that under his government the restoration of Palestine has made notable progress to accomplishment through the Balfour declaration." With earnest pride the speaker made reference to the loyalty of the Jewish people through the Great War, and the fact that it was a Jew, by name Sir John Monash, who was commander-in-chief of the Australian army. "We are proud, too," he continued, "that the first volunteer to offer his services in the British army under the new king, Edward VIII, is a Jewish lad, 18 years old, named Glickman." The late king had shown great kindness to members of individual Jews who served him faithfully and loyally, Rabbi Goodman mentioning, among others:—Lord Reading, Viceroy of India; Sir Isaac Isaacs, Governor-General of Australia; and Sir Hubert Samuel. The late King had been imbued with the spirit of the Bible, the speaker said. He quoted the late King George as referring to the Bible as the greatest national treasure of the British people. King George once remarked to a Zionist leader that the re-establishment of the Jewish people was clearly indicated in the Bible, the preacher said. "To the whole world King George was the symbol of democracy and freedom and security," Rabbi Goodman stated, and he concluded with a verse from the Book of Ecclesiastes, chapter 12, verse 7:—"And the dust shall return to the earth as it was, and the spirit shall return to God who gave it." "And as one of the righteous men of the world, King George V. shall certainly be granted a position in the world to come," were the concluding words of Rabbi Goodman's eloquent and touching sermon.

After the sermon the Holy Ark was opened and the Scroll taken out, and the special memorial prayer chanted by Rev. W. Linder.

The service concluded by the singing of a hymn emphasizing the resurrection of the dead.

at St. Anthony's, was held at the Church of the Nativity, where all those of St. Anthony's will worship until their accommodation can be provided.

Millions Honour the Late King in Death

Kings and Presidents Walk in Immense Cortège.

Literally millions paid tribute to the late King, His Majesty King George V, at the time of his funeral on Tuesday morning. At London there were hundreds of thousands at the funeral services. There were special memorial services in every city, town and hamlet throughout the wide-flung empire.

King George V was buried beside the bodies of his father and other British sovereigns in the vaults under the 1000-year-old Windsor Castle. Hundreds of thousands followed the cortege from Westminster Hall, London, to the chapel. Before the body was lowered into the vault, the symbols of sovereignty—the crown, sceptre and orb—were removed from the coffin. The service at the chapel was simple but impressive. The Archbishop of Canterbury committed King George's soul to God and his body to eternal peace. Then King Edward VIII, his son and successor, sprinkled earth from a silver urn on the coffin as it was lowered to the crypt. Then the new King took his mother's arm and comforted her. Five kings of foreign lands, the President of France and a host of princes and the notables of the earth were in the mighty procession. Millions of his subjects gave final farewell to King George before the cortege could pass through London. Because of the immense concourse of people the schedule so carefully arranged was over half an hour behind time. Hundreds fainted or were injured in the crowds, perhaps the greatest ever gathered, and the St. John Ambulance Brigade reported nearly 10,000 cases of illness or injury. One person died in the crowd.

Merited Tribute Paid to the late Noah A. Timmins

In an editorial article on the late Noah A. Timmins, The Toronto Globe on Friday of last week had the following tribute to pay:—"Mr. Noah A. Timmins became a rich man whose name goes down in history with the flourishing mining town of Northern Ontario. His claim to future memory rests on much more solid ground. He embodied the spirit of adventure and conscientious effort, without which this country would amount to little. His close friends have never credited him with being a money-seeker first, but with possessing a never-satisfied desire to pioneer, discover and develop. He ventured, and probably lost oftener than he won. But when he won and built he passed on to other fields. At the time of his death his interests had extended from Northern Ontario to the far northwest, where he was still searching for the hidden riches of the earth. Benny Hollinger might have found others to develop the mine which bears his name, but it was Noah Timmins who, against advice of experts, put $330,000 into it and ultimately produced a property which has paid about $70,000,000 in dividends. He became known as Canada's greatest mining man, instead of remaining a merchant in his native town of Mattawa, and he will be missed because the country needs men who will risk their means in digging up new wealth."

Timmins Man Arrested and Held in Rouyn Case

Despatches from Sudbury this week tell of the appearance in court there of Edward Kingsbury, giving Timmins as his address, and held on a nominal charge of vagrancy. It is said that he is wanted at Rouyn, Quebec province, on a charge of the theft of clothing there. Police say that he brought the clothing to Sudbury by truck. When he came before the court at Sudbury he pleaded not guilty and was remanded to next week.

Fireman Boyd has Skull Fractured

The great steeple, framed of wood, but covered with silver painted metal, formerly visible many miles from Timmins, crashed toward the inside of the building before six o'clock. With it came the rest of the roof, steel girders were twisted and torn and the east wall almost completely caved in.

After it was seen that there was no hope of saving St. Anthony's, the great worry of the brigade was to protect the Church of the Nativity, only a few feet from the rear of St. Anthony's. No damage was done to the other church.

At noon to-day, the Timmins firemen, almost unrecognizable in long ice-coated coats were still pouring thousands of gallons of water into the ruins. Streams of water ran down Pine street and clouds of steam rose from the tops of those walls left standing.

Fire Chief Alex Borland left the scene of the fire only for brief intervals. Directing the work of his men calmly and efficiently, he remained at his post from five o'clock until all danger, to his men or to the adjoining buildings, was past.

Several Injuries
In addition to Bill Boyd, who suffered a fractured skull when a large chunk of ice fell on his head from the eaves of the church, other firemen sustained minor injuries. Captain Jim Morton and Volunteer Redden were hit by smaller pieces of ice but were not badly injured. Bill Aston had part of his foot frozen and is under the doctor's care. O. Chener and "Farmer" Neable had foot injuries from nails which penetrated their heavy boots.

It was bitterly cold when the fire broke out, nearly 20 below zero. Even the sunshine failed to help much, for a light breeze sprang up from the north.

Police and the public works department blocked the streets, both for the protection of the public and the convenience of the firemen. At one time, it was feared the west wall would fall outwards, across Pine street. It leaned about three feet out from the perpendicular, but the brick, tile and steel construction held.

Nearly eighty Timmins youngsters have no school classes this week. Two rooms in the basement of the church were used as auxiliary classrooms for St. Anthony's Separate School.

Card Party There Last Night
Last night a card party was held in St. Anthony's hall, in the basement of the building. Whether the fire may have been started from a carelessly thrown cigarette but is a theory mentioned to-day. Certainly the fire had its origin in the rear part of the building, near or in the furnace room.

A woman reported this morning that she had been going past St. Anthony's at about one o'clock and "had seen smoke coming from some windows at the rear." She did not report this to anyone, apparently thinking that all was well.

Although the main part of the church was brick, tile and steel, and the roof was tile, much of the interior work was of wood. The fire must have smouldered long in the upper part at the rear, spread slowly along the upper part of the interior and burst suddenly into blazes when air was admitted through the first hole burned in the roof.

Many beautiful pieces of work were destroyed in the fire, as well as artists worked for many weeks doing murals. A funeral service this morning, originally supposed to have been held

Objects to Division of the School Taxes

Claims Discrimination Shown Against the Public Schools of the Province.

The following letter has been received for publication:—

Timmins, Ont., Jan. 29th, 1935

To the Editor of The Advance, Timmins.

Dear Sir:—Recent press dispatches intimate the possibility of the Provincial Government making changes in the apportioning of school grants that will further favour the separate schools of the province, to the detriment of the great public school system.

The separate schools have been clamouring for some time for legislation which would divert taxes paid by corporations and utilities, regardless of stock ownership, on a basis of school attendance; which would mean that companies entirely Protestant-owned would be compelled to pay a portion of their taxes to these religious schools where the doctrines of the Church of Rome are taught daily. This change in the Act would not only divert tremendous sums from the public schools, which now rightly belong to them by law—which law is the basis of Confederation—it would be a great injustice and manifestly wrong that any other than a separate school supporter should be taxed for the support of denominational schools.

While the question of school grants is being discussed, it would be well for the public school supporters to give some thought to the way in which their schools have been treated during the last few years. How much is our school grant now? How much less is it than it was three or four years ago? How much better is the separate school treated?

The facts are, Mr. Editor, that in the years 1931 to 1934, public school grants were reduced from $4,104,436.41 to $3,112,814.92 (official government figures) or nearly ONE MILLION DOLLARS; while the separate school grants were increased considerably during the same period. The separate schools are only 10.6 per cent. of all primary schools, yet they get nearly 18 per cent. of all the government aid.

In 1934 for every $100 granted to a public school in Assisted School Grants, a separate school received $1.71. Why should this be, and why should public schools be so discriminated against? Public school trustees should be interested in getting to the bottom of this matter, and compel our member of the Legislature to do something to correct this grave injustice and see that the rights of the public school supporters are not further infringed upon.
