Text of Address of King Edward VIII

"I am still the Same Man," said the King in Referring to his Days as Prince of Wales.

Herewith is presented the text of the address given over the radio on Sunday last by His Majesty King Edward VIII.

Relayed throughout the Empire through the facilities of the British Broadcasting Company, the voice of His Majesty King Edward VIII was sent to his millions of subjects Sunday, in his first address to them since he ascended the throne of his dead father, King George V.

From every part of the British Empire have come reports of remarkably clear reception of the broadcast, the King's portion of which occupied a bare 10 minutes.

"London calling the British Empire at home and overseas," came the voice of the B.B.C. announcer. Then the National Anthem. Then the voice of the King:

The King's Address

It has been the ancient tradition of British Monarchy that a new sovereign should send a written message to his people.

This, however, is no innovation, for my father had for the last few years spoken to his peoples at Christmas time.

He was speaking then at the close of a long and wonderful reign which covered a period of 25 years, during which unprecedented changes have taken place and great anxieties have been shared by all.

Set High Example

Throughout his reign he set a high example of constant devotion to duty, and he was ever concerned for the welfare of his subjects and all those under his protection.

I know how the Dominions, in India and in the colonies and dependencies the bond of loyalty to the crown—that symbol of the unity of many lands and populations—has been strengthened by the tie of personal devotion to my father.

I feel that his death is not only an overwhelming grief to my mother and to us, his children, but it is at the same time also a personal loss to you all.

To the princes and peoples of India I send my greeting as the King-Emperor. The manifestations of your sorrow and your loyalty at this time have been a source of deep gratification to me.

The associations in peace and in war between the British and Indian peoples have been so long and honourable, and the example set by Queen Victoria, King Edward VII and King George lays on me, as their successor, a solemn trust to maintain and strengthen these associations.

Queen Mary, my family and myself have been greatly helped by the worldwide tributes of genuine sorrow which we received from every side.

It falls upon me to succeed him and to carry on his work. I am better known to most of you as the Prince of Wales—as a man who, during the war and since, has had the opportunity of getting to know the people of nearly every country of the world under all conditions and circumstances.

And although I now speak to you as the King, I am still the same man who has had that experience, and whose constant effort it will be to continue to promote the well-being of his fellow-men.

May the future bring peace and understanding throughout the world, prosperity and happiness to British people, and may we be worthy of the heritage which is ours.

No Improper Usage of the Prisoners at Burwash Farm

Provincial Secretary Harry C. Nixon stated this week that the department probe now being made into alleged "brutality" to prisoners at the Burwash Reformatory had so far disclosed no conditions that would warrant drastic disciplinary action or, for that matter, a widening of the present investigation.

The only thing revealed that might justify some of the complaints aired in the Legislature last week was unsatisfactory medical administration at the reformatory, said Mr. Nixon, and this, he added, had been rectified through a change of doctors, at least 10 days before the complaints were made public.

Deputy Provincial Secretary C. F. Neeldun returned from Burwash on Saturday to report verbally to Mr. Nixon on the investigation. He will again visit the reformatory this week to complete his probe. It is expected that when that is ended Mr. Nixon will reply in the House.

LEFT HUSBAND TO SLEEP, BUT HE FAILED TO AWAKE

Some days ago Mrs. Sophie Zielinski of Buffalo, N.Y., noted that her husband appeared tired when he slipped off the kitchen chair he was sitting on. She thought he had gone to sleep, and she covered him with a blanket, and let him sleep. Perhaps he was the kind that was cross if roused from slumber.

Anyway, Mrs. Zielinski let her husband sleep on—for two days—walking about, him as she went about her daily duties. The third day she told neighbours that "something must be wrong with Andy," as he had been sleeping for two days. The neighbours investigated and then called the police. The police found that Zielinski had been dead a couple of days.

Mrs. Zielinski, who is 55 years of age, says that her husband, who was 56 years old, returned from his work one evening and while sitting in the chair his body slumped to the floor. She thought he was tired, and "let him sleep" after covering him with the blanket so that he might not catch cold.

The teachers of Trinity United Sunday School are attending a meeting at the home of Mr. J. Higginbotham, in Timmins, on Thursday evening.

Mr. D. Antonella, of 80 Third avenue, who was injured while at work at the McIntyre last week, is doing as well as can be expected.

A delightful tea and sale of home baking and play was put on in the United Church on Saturday by the members of Golden Lights Mission Band, under the direction of Mrs. V. Phelps. The play, "The Love Flower," included eleven small girls dressed as flowers and one as a weed, but when the latter was tended and cared for, it shot forth a beautiful lily. The costumes were designed and made by Mrs. Phelps, who is to be congratulated in her mission work among the children, especially with present day counter attractions.

Miss O'Donnell, of Ottawa, is visiting friends in Timmins, and in town.

The Ladies' Association are planning to hold their annual St. Patrick's party on March 17th, in the basement of the church. In the past the St. Patrick's social has always been a pleasant event, and this year the ladies are planning something different, and expect it to exceed previous years.

Presbytery of Cochrane Recovers Recent Losses

Increase in Membership and Adherents of the United Church in District. All Causes Receiving Increased Support, Meeting Shown.

As far as Cochrane Presbytery of the United Church of Canada is concerned, the depression is over. The report of the statistical secretary presented at a recent meeting at Iroquois Falls shows that during 1935 the church advanced all along the line to beat its own fine record for the previous year.

Montelth and Connaught met in the paper mill town on the afternoon of Monday, February 17th, with the sessions continuing until Tuesday evening. Regret was expressed at the illness of Rev. Wm. Leeman, minister of the Timmins Finnish United Church, and of Rev. P. D. Fraser, D.D., of South Porcupine. At the last moment, Dr. H. S. Laidlaw, minister of the Presbytery church, most ably filled the latter's place and delivered the inspirational addresses.

Regret will be general as the north learns of the poor health of Rev. J. C. Cochrane, Superintendent of Missions. Presbytery passed an enthusiastic vote of approval of his presence at this session and of his interest in this section of the north year in and year out. A resolution also expressed great admiration for the tangible results that have been achieved in the building of the new church at Nakina.

Death Plays Last Joke on Famous Practical Joker

William Horace Devere Cole, 53, who boasted he had perpetrated 95 practical jokes throughout Europe without detection, is dead, despatches from France stated this week.

Fosing as "the Sultan of Zanzibar," Cole once deluded the authorities of Cambridge University into according him the official welcome due a visiting potentate.

Once, disguised as a road labourer, he roped off a large section of Piccadilly Circus, London, interfering with the heavy traffic of the section, and once as "the Prince of Abyssinia" he inspected a British battleship.

Cole bore a striking resemblance to former Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, and was said to have once made an unauthorized speech in MacDonald's behalf.

However, when Cole was married at Chelsea registry office in 1931, he took precautions against being victimized by fellow hoaxers.

While famed in London for many years as a practical joker, Cole never achieved the same prominence in this regard as did the famous Theodore Hook who played hundreds of pranks that made his name known in very wide circles not only in London but abroad. One of Hook's tricks was the sending of calls by mail to all sorts of tradesmen, professional men and others to call at a certain house at a certain time. The police had difficulty in guiding traffic, so large a crowd gathered, and Hook was fully revenged on the owner of the house for an alleged slight. Another of his pranks was the placing of a wooden cigar store Indian in a cab and solemnly instructing the driver to "take the gentleman home," giving the number and street. "He's a gentleman, but slightly under the influence of the weather," Hook told the cab driver.

Dismissal of Cashier at North Bay Liquor Store

L. G. Gibson, cashier at the North Bay store of the Ontario Liquor Control Board, was summarily dismissed at the week-end. Mr. Gibson is a crippled war veteran and is very popular in North Bay. Officials asked to explain the dismissal refused to do so, saying that the department would no doubt make any announcement necessary in the matter. The story going the rounds in North Bay, however, is to the effect that quantities of liquor are alleged to have been leaving the liquor store without proper permit entries being made, and that this state of affairs has been in force for some time. It is said that some other dismissals may follow as a result of the discovery of the alleged irregularities. It is further stated that there was a recent very close investigation made of the system and workings of the North Bay store and that afterwards changes in the staff were decided upon.

All the many in Timmins and district who are members of the Ontario Prospectors' and Developers' Association, and any who would like to join the association, should note that the annual meeting of the association will be held in the Crystal Ballroom of the King Edward hotel, Toronto, on Thursday of next week, March 12th.

Cut in Price of Wines has been Postponed a Month

Government has ordered the Liquor Control Board to postpone for one month a reduction of 10 cents per 26-ounce bottle of native wine, it was learned last week, following a conference between representatives of small wineries, grape-growers and Premier Hepburn. The new price was to have gone into effect on March 1. The postponement was agreed upon in order to give the wineries an opportunity of making further representations.

Fred H. Avery, Liberal member for Lincoln, took a leading part in the conference and he outlined the plight of the small winery. The fact that the Government had agreed to abolish the provincial wine tax meant very little if the Liquor Control Board now proposed to compel wineries to reduce the retail price of their product, Mr. Avery declared.

It was pointed out to E. G. Odette, Liquor Control commissioner, that the small wineries of the province would be unable to continue in business if they were compelled to lower the retail price. Abolition of the wine tax would give them an opportunity of improving the quality of native wine by using more grapes and less sugar and water. It would allow wineries to make 175 gallons of wine to a ton of grapes instead of 200 gallons to a ton, as at present. This would be of great assistance to the grape growers as well, it was stated.

Forest Research Committee to be Formed for Canada

Hon. W. D. Euler, minister of trade and commerce, last week at Ottawa announced appointment by the national research council of a committee to study research requirements in all branches of Canadian forestry.

Appointment of the committee follows within a short time a national forestry conference at Ottawa at which numerous delegates expressed belief policies of reforestation and conservation should be adopted to save the country's timber resources from destruction by fire, insects and wasteful logging practices.

The committee will function as an associate committee of the research council. It will include in its membership representatives of the Dominion departments of interior and agriculture as well as the research council, members of the forestry departments of each province, forestry faculties of universities, the lumber, pulp and paper and allied industries.

Forestry engineering societies, forest protective associations and the Canadian Forestry Association also will be represented.

IGNORED SUMMONS AND SO LANDED IN KIRKLAND LAKE

R. R. Hudson, of Kirkland Lake, was summoned to court last week to answer to a charge in connection with the drive to clean up alleged abuses in regard to relief. Hudson did not respond to the summons and so the police hunted him and he will stay in jail at least until afternoon when his case will be called again at court at Kirkland.

Financial Post.—It is fair to say that seven of the nine Canadian provinces are opposed to the St. Lawrence waterway. The other two would be largely indifferent if it were not for the unceasing propaganda of its promoters. Many of our major national white elephants were unloaded on us by self-interested or publicity-seeking propagandists. The nation cannot afford any more such white elephants.
